Listeners Have a Job to Do

TN the present war, radio has frequently been described as the fourth arm. Its offensive and defensive scopes have by now been fairly tested. In many ways radio has strongly determined the manoeuvres of the war-its capacity for transmitting information in the shortest time, for instance, has proved a valuable aid. But no less important has been its range of diffusion, which is all pervading and all powerful. This has helped to rout many a campaign of enemy lies, and also to defend the truth. As a potent means for the propagation of knowledge, therefore, it should rightly serve as a useful arm during an emergency.

EMERGENCY NOW

TODAY an emergency faces India. The country is menaced by outside aggression as it has never been for several centuries. The peace and civilisation for which we have all worked now stand threatened; and there is little doubt that the temperamentally peaceful Indian is confronted with an outsize problem of self-defence. At the same time we find that modern war has made this problem almost uniformly difficult for every citizen of the world. Aggression, today, is not restricted merely to hostilities over wide expanses of battlefields; it is now carried right into the homes and hearths of peaceful citizens. As an American critic cynically remarked sometime ago-"All's riot in the world of today". But though the problem is universal, it does not seem to have overwhelmed the people anywhere. They have succeeded in handling it with comparative ease by getting fuller knowledge of its details and preparing themselves in advance.

CLASSIC EXAMPLE

ceed. follow is: deadly designs of professional marauders.

A COMMON DUTY

THEREIN we have a lesson to learn—we the listener-citizens of this country who

IN thinking of civil defence, no one can fail to recall the classic example of London during the trying days of the 1940 blitz. And, in doing so, there is bound to be some consolation in the thought that the most devilish of attempts ever made to obliterate normal life from the world's mostthickly populated city did not, after all, suc-The question that would naturally "If London could take it, why can't others?" Well, we all know that London did take it, and we also know that behind that glory there was not only grim determination but also much knowledge of the means to withstand and preparation to counter the perils of the blitz. Civil defence in that city was not merely preached but practised also; details of A. R. P. were known to almost every adult citizen and the supreme emergency enlisted discipline of a high order. It was the first effective organisation of a Citizen Army which fought back and defended itself successfully against the are threatened today by a similar deadly foe. A sky overcast with bombers, ready to rain death and destruction, need not paralyse anyone with fear. There is always a way to defend oneself. We must be watchful and we must plan our own defence. Our co-operation and active participation in A. R. P. must become a common duty if danger to life and property is to be curtailed, and unnecessary loss of lives avoided. We have all a job to do-to protect our hearths. and homes, and our loved ones.

In India, we have within recent memory the bitter moral of Rangoon. Mercilessly bombed from the air, innocent and unprepared populace ran helter-skelter on the first day of the attack, spreading panic in their wake. And yet a knowledge of A. R. P. could have saved many precious lives. Similarly, in many other parts of the world indescribable horror has been witnessed among people not well organised for civil defence.

PRACTICAL HINTS

BUT we can yet learn, and we can yet forearm ourselves. Elsewhere in this issue is published one of a series of talks giving practical hints on A. R. P. The instructions are simple and brief, so that everybody can understand and remember them easily. They are the result of knowledge gained after close study of air raids at other places. It is imperative for us today to know about these precautions that would minimise the risk to life from sudden enemy attack. The heroic deeds of firefighters, rescue squads and other home guard units in London are still fresh in our memory. Citizens in this country may be called upon to perform similar duties; but if they are prepared we have no doubt they will acquit themselves equally well. the present, radio is doing its bit by bringing this knowledge to the home of every citizenlistener. It is up to them to organise and fit themselves for the emergency.

Taxes We Don't Pay

TAXES, indeed, are odious to almost everybody. Never was a new tax levied without protest from one quarter or another. Even among the lightly taxed communities, a little additional tax would often be described as the last straw that might break the camel's back. The "camel's back," how-ever, never really gets broken. In western countries, the burden of taxation has increased rapidly since the last century and, comparatively, India may be considered lightly taxed. It is true that the incidence of taxation must bear a favourable ratio to that of income. But the fact remains that in any scheme of national organisation money has to be provided for-and must be contributed justly by those who enjoy the benefit of the scheme. Sir Manohar Lal will discuss this all-important subject in a broadcast talk at 8.0 p.m. on March 4 from A I R Delhi.

Sidelights on Tagore

IT is not quite a year since the passing of India's great poet, but Rabindranath Tagore is a figure in India's national life whom we could never remember too much, or too often. His far-reaching influence as a man of letters is known to the world at large; but there are still many aspects of this great personality which are unknown to the general public. To know them we must go beyond the ambit of his writings, and study the man who gave the world so many literary masterpieces.

On March 7, at 8 p.m., Dr. Amiya Chakravarti, an old and intimate friend of the poet, will broadcast a talk in the Delhi series "As I Knew Him". Dr. Chakravarti had the privilege of being for many years the literary secretary of the Poet.

The New Alchemy

LONG, long ago—before the Derby and the stock exchange came into being—alchemy was the method favoured by the getrich-quick men all over the world. People spent their lives and fortunes searching for the philosopher's stone, but its elusive pursuit never had a happy ending. Late in the 19th century, with the spread of scientific knowledge it was found that the elements were immutable and, therefore, people felt that it was useless trying to change their atomic structures. This theory has, however, again been upset by modern research which has proved that the miracle can indeed be wrought. The atom, which was originally considered the ultimate unit of all matter, is now established as a complex structure composed of a central nucleus and surrounded by a cloud of electrons. At first it was thought that this nucleus was impenetrable and unchangeable. But, in 1919, Rutherford found that the central core of the atom could be penetrated and permanently altered by bombarding the element with high-velocity Alpha particles. Alchemy, thus, is a proved fact today. Many improvements have been devised and new approaches discovered in the methods adopted for such transmutations since Rutherford's discovery. "The New Alchemy" will be discussed in a broadcast talk by the eminent scientist, Sir C. V. Raman, on March 5, at 7.40 p.m. from A I R Madras.

A Madras Experiment

SOME years ago, the late Yuvarajah of Mysore, while presiding over a music conference at Madras, made some profound remarks about the latent possibilities of Indian music. Why was it, he asked, that all classical music was either devotional or erotic—erotic often in a primitive way? "All music is impulsive in origin—today, I suppose, some would term it a primary sublimation of the libido. Why, then, should it not be addressed to—instead of 'god' or 'love'—a passing cloud, a waterfall, or to a batsman who has made a sparkling century before lunch?" This idea, which was sustained throughout His Highness's speech, made an obvious impression on his listeners both by its novelty and its profoundness. However, no new composition or rendering other than in the traditional manner was sung at that conference during all the days it met.

Next fortnight, on March 12, A I R Madras will seek to present the late Yuvarajah's idea over the air. The experiment will be confined for the present to providing musical settings to impressionistic verse. Listeners are invited to forward their critical views on the programme to the Station Director, A I R Madras.

" Arsenal of the East"

A I R Calcutta is broadcasting a series of talks illustrating the industrial efforts now being made by India to meet the growing needs of the war. Recent broadcasters dwelt on the rapid strides made by the Indian steel industry which is now expected to keep pace with the increasing demands of armoured units of the army. Timber, too, is an important item of the war programme, on which Indian shipyards have to depend for building everything from a minesweeper to a life-boat. Similarly, India's textile mills and handlooms are now doing their bit, turning out millions of yards of materials, sufficient not only for internal requirements but also for considerable export to overseas. In the matter of drugs and chemical stores, too, we now know that India has multiplied her production almost twentyfold.

The next two talks in the Calcutta series "India—Arsenal of the East" will be broadcast on March 4 and 11, respectively, and review the improvement in India's shipbuilding and textile industries.

Savings Week in U.P.

THE question of thrift, which is more or less à private matter in peace-time, assumes national importance during war. In abnormal times like the present, savings must be encouraged not only to serve the useful purpose of raising money for defence, but also in order to check inflation, and, after the war, to keep up the consumer's purchasing power. Next fortnight, during the National Defence and Savings Week, from March 10 to March 15, A I R Lucknow will put on the air a series of programmes which will comprise four Hindustani talks, a talk in English by Prof. S. K. Rudra, a talk in the Women's Programme by Begum Aizaz Rasul, and a feature in which the popular radio character "Munshiji" will be presented in the role of a "reformed" spendthrift (March 12: 6.10 p.m.)

National Defence Council

BARRING the general outline of their activities there is so far very little information outside of the valuable work which India's National Defence Council is doing today. Listeners to Lucknow will know some interesting details of its activities from three of its members—the Raja Saheb of Salempur, Prof. E. Ahmad Shah and Sir J. P. Srivastava—when they will broadcast about the work of the Council on March 4, 7 and 17, respectively.

Anarkali: Radio Version

SYED Imtiaz Ali Taj's famous play "Anarkali" occupies an honourable place in Urdu literature: indeed many consider it to be the first modern play written in the language. From the point of view of characterisation, style and structural beauty, the play hardly leaves anything to be desired. The author has himself now adapted this play for the radio, and the radio version will be broadcast from A I R Lahore on March 3, at 10 p.m. The A I R Stations of Delhi and Lucknow will relay this programme.

Journalism of Yesterday

DACCA was once well-known for her colourful contribution in the sphere of journalism in Bengal. These journalistic efforts inspired a wide literary awakening. The most brilliant contribution to the periodical literature of Bengal was made under the O N THE AIR inspiration and guidance of the immortal Bengali author, Kaliprasanna Ghosh. The journal Bandhab, edited by him, exerted immense influence on the intellectual life of Bengal. After a long spell of marked decadence, a group of eminent scholars and literary men of Dacca brought about a revival in the domain of journalism during the beginning of the present century.

In the Dacca series "Journalism of Yesterday", a review of the journalistic enterprises in Dacca is being given in Bengali by Mr. Parimal Kumar Ghosh, Professor of Hooghly College, who has been intimately connected with the literary activities of Dacca for the last twenty-five years. He possesses rare collections of various journals, now defunct, and other valuable records from which he will quote to illustrate his talks. The third talk in this series will be broadcast from Dacca on March 10 at 7.30 p.m.

Classic Satire

PANKIM Chandra Chatterjee has enriched Bengali literature by his immortal writings, but his Kamala Kanter Daptar is distinguished by his reflections on the profound realities of life through the humorous dronings of an opium eater. Like Coleridge's "Kubla Khan," "Kamala Kanta" inhabits a dream world, but his reflections on the ironies of life draw out realism with apt satire, wit and humour. A I R Dacca has arranged a mental recreation for its listeners by broadcasting readings from light Bengali literature. Tune in to Dacca on March I and 15 at 6.30 p.m. for some selections from Kamala Kanter Daptar.

RADIO LICENCES: RECORD INCREASE IN JANUARY

Broadcast receiver licences in force in British India have passed the one lakh and a half mark. There were 1,50,387 licences in force at the end of January last as against 1,21,534 for the corresponding period of 1941. This represents an increase of 28,853 licences in 12 months.

Altogether 15,608 licences were issued in the month of which 5,299—a record figure—were new licences.

IN STIRRING TIMES

SIR T.

TT is good to be alive. It is particularly good to be alive in these times. The events that are happening today are so worldshaking that I feel disposed to cry out with Wordsworth, "Bliss was it in that dawn to be alive, but to be young was very Heaven". He said that of the French Revolution. That was an event which stirred the world, shook thrones and nations, and altered men's ways of thinking. I am no longer young-at any rate other people say so, though I deny it. A man is as old as he feels and I am not ashamed to confess that today I feel like twenty-five. I was perhaps older in 1939 but the events of 1940 and 1941 and the great days we are passing through have been a tonic. I have not undergone a course of rejuvenation at Voronoff's hands. I do not propose to take the course in the future either. What is happening in the world is more than enough to restore youth to a man who has suffered age to defeat him.

LIVING INTENSELY

NE crowded hour of glorious life is worth an age without a name. We live intensely in these days. How can we help it when suddenly out of the blue comes the news that Mr. Winston Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt have deserted their usual place of business and have braved the perils of the sea to meet in the Atlantic? How I should have loved to have been a newspaper correspondent and been able to report my first-hand impressions of that historic meeting! But wonders do not cease. Hardly have we had time to recover from that dramatic surprise when Mr. Churchill deals out another resounding blow. He is in Washington, addressing both the Houses of Congress in the Senate Chamber. That Chamber has witnessed many historic incidents since the day when the United States of America became a nation, but none so unique as that of the Prime Minister of England addressing the Legislature of the world's greatest Republic. Mr. Churchill himself described it as one of the most moving and thrilling experiences of his life. And what a life it has been! A career so full of dramatic surprises, so packed with adventure -India, Cuba, South Africa, Egypt. Cold as the icy winds that blow in the Simla winter must be the heart of the man who does not catch a little of Winston's spirit in these days when we see history in the making. Here is a man at 68 still not recovered from the wonder and the fascination of living. How can we help being infected by something of that boyish, insatiable curiosity and of that eagerness for the great adventure which we call life!

FATEFUL ISSUES

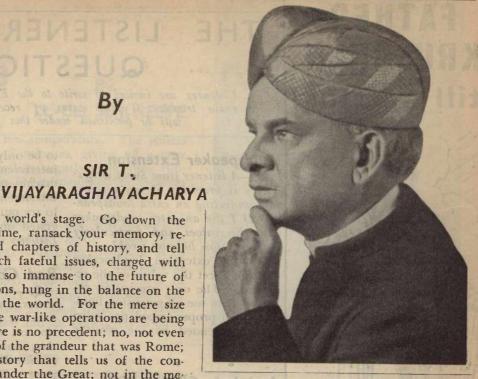

WE are spectators and participants in one of the greatest dramas that was ever enacted on the world's stage. Go down the corridors of time, ransack your memory, recall the closed chapters of history, and tell me if ever such fateful issues, charged with consequences so immense to the future of men and nations, hung in the balance on the battlefields of the world. For the mere size over which the war-like operations are being carried on there is no precedent; no, not even in the record of the grandeur that was Rome; not in the history that tells us of the conquests of Alexander the Great; not in the meteoric career of Napoleon Bonaparte. The Great War of 1914-18 was on a much more limited scale. More important than the area of the theatre of the war is the gravity of the issues that the war will determine. It is not possible to dismiss the subject with the facile cynicism that it is a struggle between two Imperialisms as to which of the two is to dominate the world. Every successive stage of the war as it unfolds itself makes the theory fit less and less with the facts. First the Union of the Socialist Soviet Republics, now the United States of America. Nor is it possible to dismiss the claim that the war will decide the issue between Absolutism and Democracy with the airy assumption that the dividing line between the two is in actual administration very thin.

RECOGNISE that in recent years democracy as represented by parliament-ary government has not been in fashion. The Extreme Right are apt to see in it an impediment to quick and decisive action. They are inclined to the view that what matters is the efficient administration of law and order. As regards this I would only make the comment that all of us are in favour of law and order so long as we are the people who make the law and we are the people who lay down the order. The Extreme Left criticise the system of parliamentary government on the ground that it means the rule of a caucus and that public opinion as re-presenting the will of the large majority of the nation is suppressed by the party machine. To these I say that if at any time the party in power is likely to draw more strength to it than is consistent with democratic principles it is in war-time. Look at the way in which after the outbreak of this war the House of Commons has effectively interfered not only to correct errors in the conduct of the war; but what is even more important from the democratic point of view, to limit executive encroachments on the sphere of the reign of law, on the individual's right to express opinions and on the liberty of the

LIFE IN AXIS COUNTRIES

To men who are familiar with life as lived in Italy after Mussolini consolidated his party and his power and in Germany after the death of Field Marshal Hindenburg, the question that really matters is not so much the theoretical merits of a parliamentary form of government but of the practical consequences to the decent, law-abiding citizen of the establishment of a totalitarian system of administration. To live in hourly fear of being denounced by agents provocateur, to suppress rigidly the expression of any unfavourable opinion of the Government even in the privacy of home life and to be careful not to mention even by name the Dictators, were some of the consequences that flowed from it. In the restaurants in Rome where we used to meet English and American friends we had a code word for Mussolini which had to be changed at frequent intervals. One day he was "Mr. Smith", another day he was "Cab-bage" and a third day he was "Cauliflower". As for the Italian himself, he chose the wiser line of not mentioning him at all. In Germany the discretion to be observed was much stricter.

Even more serious than the loss of individual freedom was the retrogression in State policy to the barbarism of the Middle Ages. People who have not visited Germany are apt to discount the stories of the treatment of the Jews by the Nazi Government. To those who have been in Hitler's Germany and witnessed outrages which they were powerless to prevent, it was a source of humiliation that they had to suffer in silence. The extent of the demoralisation can be judged by the fact that when I visited that ancient home of learning, the University of Heidelberg, I could not find a single professor to criticise the infamous treatment of the Jews even in the pri-

THE LISTENER'S QUESTION-BOX

Listeners are invited to write to the Editor about their radio troubles. Typical cases of reception difficulties will be published under this feature.

Loudspeaker Extension

Q.—A listener from Surat writes: There is provision in my receiver for connecting an extra loudspeaker. If I use an extra loudspeaker will the valves and particularly the reception become weak?

A.—An extension loudspeaker will not affect the valves or the reception. The only precaution necessary is to use an extension loudspeaker of proper impedance valve as recommended by the receiver makers.

Aerial As Clothes-line

Q.—Mr. G. V. K. from Bezwada writes: Our neighbour is hanging his wet clothes on the aerial to dry off. I have learnt from him that the reception of his receiver has improved a lot. Can this be true? If not why? Is there any harm in doing so? If so why?

A.—Aerial wires should always be inaccessible. For the listener's information we advise him to read question 1 and its answer appearing on page 21 of the Indian Listener dated 22nd September, 1941.

Electrical Interference

Q.—Mr. A. V. S. from Allahabad writes: I am not able to receive Lucknow and Lahore during the day. I only hear a noise kharkhar-khar. Please let me know the cause and its remedy.

A.—At Allahabad, Lucknow should be received nicely during the day. The poor reception seems to be only due to the high level of interference from some electrical machinery. To reduce electrical interference, the listener is advised to try out the several methods suggested on page 13 of the Indian Listener dated 22nd April, 1941.

Mr. V. V. Sheth says: "I have tried many pens but I am convinced that Eversharp is far superior to all both in quality and performance". Advt.

Bad Contacts

Q.—Mr. P. S. R. from Kovvut writes: In my 6-volt battery set of 8 valves I did not receive any station on medium wave. After three days automatically I was able to receive all the stations on medium wave. What precautions am I to take lest this defect occurs again?

A.—Such troubles may be caused by some bad contact in the wave change switch or some loose connection in the medium wave coil. When the trouble re-appears, the listener is advised to call his service engineer to rectify the fault.

Medium Wave Reception

Q.—Mr. R. D. K. from Cutch writes: I never used to hear Lucknow and Lahore during the day but I used to hear them at night. For the past 15 days I am not getting these stations even at night. May I know the cause and the remedy?

A.—Regarding reception from distant medium wave stations, the listener is referred to the detailed answer given to question 2 on page 19 of the Indian Listener dated 7th February, 1941. To improve reception at night the valves of your receiver should be tested and weak ones replaced. The alignment of your receiver should also be checked up.

vacy of a dinner party. In Rome, the professors of the University dutifully signed an official document declaring that previous history was wrong and that the Italian race was pure and unsullied by any admixture of Jewish blood.

No, it is not possible to subscribe to the old Indian proverb that it does not matter who rules, Rama or Ravana—we have definitely to elect between the New World Order promised by Hitler and the ways of living and thinking we have been accustomed to regard as the ideals which civilised men should cherish. Civilisation has been built up by a long and painful process in which man has emerged from the brute stage in which the law of the jungle decided right and wrong. Are we prepared to go back to it?

INDOMITABLE SPIRIT

HAVE been asked by many people to forecast the issue of this titantic struggle. Personally I feel no doubt that in spite of temporary set-backs the Allied Nations that signed the Washington Declaration the other day will win. An American friend who is a journalist by profession started with a bias against England. Having now lived in London in the years of the war, sharing the life of the Londoners in their underground shelters, she tells me that the spirit of the English people, of the common men and women, is indomitable, that come what may they will never surrender. My letters from Englishmen and Englishwomen refer lightly to the risks and hardships which surround them every moment of their lives. There is not a word of complaint against the rationing of food and what is more surprising none from the women against the rationing of clothes. If the difficulties of transport, of blackout, are referred to they are referred to only incidentally, and more often than not as subjects for humorous comment. Anything like panic or alarm seems to be absent. There is a quiet confidence in the ultimate result of the war and the one dominant note in all the letters is that of an inflexible purpose to do his or her bit to win the war, a dogged resolution to suffer anything rather than go under. The Englishman is usually characterised as phlegmatic. If this quality can produce such an attitude in the moment of England's greatest danger, then all that I can say is that more of us in this country should endeavour to cultivate it.

We, indeed, live in stirring times. We may pass through difficulties and dangers, but of the ultimate result, there is no doubt. Are we downhearted? No. Shall we win? Rather.—Broadcast from Bombay.

Hints on Civil Defence.—1

HOW TO HANDLE THE INCENDIARY BOMB

Lt.-Col. A. J. REEVE

I AM going to tell you about the incendiary bomb which the Japanese have been using in their air raids over Burma and Singapore and to explain to you how they can be dealt with should your town ever be subjected to a raid. There is nothing to fear since they are quite easily disposed of and are not as dangerous as the magnesium electron bomb.

These bombs weigh about one-and-a-half maunds, are fitted with an instantaneous fuse and burst on impact. On explosion, the steel case disintegrates into splinters which have a very low trajectory and a large number of incendiary pellets are scattered all over the place. Some have been located as far as 50 yards away, from the point of impact of the bombs. These incendiary pellets which are grey in colour and are made of rubber impregnated with phosphorus, are a little over one inch in length, and are one inch in diameter.

When the bomb explodes, the incendiary pellets ignite immediately or within a minute or two of falling, each pellet giving a flame four to six inches high and burning at a comparatively low temperature. The pellets burn for 5 to 7 minutes, giving off a grey smoke, and smelling slightly of burning rubber. They can be extinguished by dousing them with water or covering them with wet sand.

When the water evaporates or the sand is removed, the pellets ignite again. The best way to deal with them, therefore, is to extinguish them with water or wet sand as already explained, and then place them in a bucket of water. When convenient, the bucket is emptied at some place away from human habitation and the pellets left to burn themselves out.

TREATMENT OF BURNS

IT is, of course, very necessary to make sure that all the pellets are collected. If any of them has started a small fire, then the fire should be extinguished by means of the stirrup pump. The pellets should not be touched by any part of the body because they cause dangerous burns on coming in contact with the skin. Should you be so unfortunate as to get burnt, cover the burnt area with gauze or lint soaked in a 5 per cent.

Chutian of histories of a live is solution of bicarbonate of soda or, if you have no bicarbonate of soda, immerse the affected part in water, or apply a thick pad soaked in water.

Any burning clothing should be immediately immersed in cold water and carefully examined afterwards for bits of unconsumed phosphorus. Any contaminated foodstuff or liquid should be thrown away.—Broadcast from Delhi.

THE ART OF STORY-TELLING

A GES ago when the primitive man came home at dusk after his day's adventures in the woods, he said to his primitive wife: said he, "Woman, look what I have brought for myself and you—look!" The woman looked with wide open wondering wild ever looked with wide open, wondering, wild eyes.

He went on, "—And do you know how I killed it. Ah! the animal couldn't escape me—not me!" And saying this, he expanded his chest, tossed his head carelessly about with an air of unaffected and obvious pride.

The wife was at once impressed. Then he told her all about it—how the animal had wagged its tail, how it had flashed its eyes, and gnashed its teeth, and how the very earth had stood aghast! And the woman was not only impressed, but interested. He was telling her a story. She was the impressible, emotional and intelligent audience. He was not content to narrate the bare facts of the hunt. He was toning their hard lines down with details that came out of his fertile fancy. And so he entertained her the whole evening.

GRANDMOTHER'S STORY

THE child today, as the primitive man then, is an artist. He waxes eloquent over what the dog said to him, what he said to the dog, how daddy went off to sleep (with his mouth open) in his arm-chair near the wireless set, and how uninteresting the teacher sounded that morning when she said, "And now, children, I am going to tell you a very interesting story!"

Now, all the time, the child is telling you a story. He is not only inventing, he is creating.

And, then, there is the grandmother. What an interesting institution she is for the children—what a fascinating phenomena of human species! Not only does she satisfy the ego of the child by listening to his own importance, she satisfies his artistic craving by telling him stories about this and that. "Once upon a time—."What magnetic charm these words have for a child! The very sound of these words takes us back to the age of romance and mystery. The grandmother begins "Once upon a time"; the children get nearer to her, their faces alive with eagerness—eager to be pleased rather than pained, eager to be amused rather than instructed.

"Once upon a time", she says, "there lived a king; a king who had a crown on his head, a king who had seven wives. (Just seven, and no more!) He was a good king—loved his seven wives dearly. Did they love him? I don't know; I really couldn't tell you. He was a good king. Six of his wives were blessed, blessed with seven sons each, but the seventh wife—poor little thing—had do you know how many? Only six! All many? Only six! All boys, but only six. She was so sad, ever so sad. No, not because she didn't have seven sons, like the others. Oh, no; she wasn't jealous, but because—because she didn't like the six she had. They were all so ugly, the very image of the father and not at all like her. So this unfortunate woman, a queen among the other queens, sat in her tower and wept steadily. The six ugly children—all boys—not realising the seriousness of the situation danced about her as if nothing had happened, as if all was well with the world. There was she, and there were they

And the grandmother goes on entertaining her willing listeners.

THE ART OF THE MINSTREL

THE minstrel's art of telling a story was appreciated for a long time in all countries and his popularity persists even now in some places in spite of the various forms of entertainment which modern life provides for us. He sang from door to door, and entertained his audience not only with the beauty of the song, and the quality of his voice but with the story itself. He sang the Robinhood ballads because they had in them stirring events, striking characters, vivid dialogues. The ministrel's visit to the house must have taken away a great deal of the monotony and drudgery of life at a time when amusements were few. In fact men have always told each other stories to while away the tedium of life. Chaucer's pilgrims, for example. Canterbury was a long way, but the stories were interesting and the pilgrims were feeling rather virtuous because they were on a pilgrimage. So on they went, on with their stories and their trudge.

COLLABORATION

ISTENING to a story being well told is pleasing but the taste of the story, I think, lies in the telling of it. The art of story-telling is intricate and difficult—but isn't difficulty a pure joy to the artist? It, however, like every art, demands a collaboration between the one who creates and the other who appreciates. The person who listens to a story must be very willing to surrender. The story-teller, as an artist, needs an intelligent and a willing audience. Profoundly intimate as the art is, it takes the form of a confidential chat sometimes. The audience is buttonholed, so to speak. Although mentally alert, the audience is not expected to be critical in the sense that analytical criticism should not have an important part in it. The unreasoned expression of a personal like or dislike does not matter. The art demands liesure, patience, a sense of form and a certain aesthetic equipment.

Every story cannot be told successfully, although it may read very well. So the choice of a story for the purpose of telling is very important. I think a story which one can reasonably hope to tell tolerably well should be short, and should have a curious haunting and suggestive quality. It has to be short, with not an intricate plot, so that it can be expanded in words to allow more elbow room, so to speak, to the person who is telling it. For example, if there is a drunkard in the story he should not be dismissed as a drunkard; it would be interesting to say what the colour of his favourite drink is. It would be amusing to point out whether he gulps it all down at once or whether he takes his drink with true philosophical air. But it should not be the aim of the story-teller to leave nothing unsaid. That would be unpleasant for the person who is listening to the story. A story well told should be provocative and imaginative. If nothing is left to the imagination of the audience it gives the uncomfortable impression of a lecturer and an unintelligent student.

Exaggeration has a place in the art of story-telling. The story-teller has to tone down certain things in his story and exaggerate others. He does this in the manner of the journalist. For emphasis he may have to repeat certain things as the writers of ballads did. And if the audience happens to be that of children, more repetition will be necessary.

PORTRAYAL OF CHARACTER

DIALOGUE, with its swift and impressive indications, is important to the story-teller, who, on no account, can afford to be (Continued on Page, 14).

EYE-WITNESS accounts of war nearer home gripped the listener's interest in India during the first month of the new year when All India Radio put on the air as many as 557 items relating to the war—390 talks and discussions, 71 plays and feature programmes, and 96 relays from the B B C.

On the New Year day, His Excellency General Sir Archibald Wavell broadcast a talk from Delhi reviewing the progress of the war in 1941 and discussing its prospects in 1942. The talk was relayed by all stations.

The momentous events taking place in the Far East were naturally the background of the large number of talks, given in English and in various Indian languages, from all A I R stations. Mr. A. W. Ibbotson, Secretary, Civil Defence Department, broadcast from Delhi on January 19 a talk about the bombing of Rangoon. Another talk, giving his experiences of enemy air raids on Rangoon, was given from Calcutta by Mr. H. S. E. Stevens on January 20. Mr. B. Bahari was interviewed before the Delhi microphone on January 30, when he gave an eye-witness account of the conditions in the capital of Burma. On the same day, Mr. S. M. Sarma

SYEDA SARDAR BEGAM AKHTAR, Member of War Board, U.P., who recently broadcast a talk in the Lucknow Women's programme entitled "Women and A R P."

Radio Link with War-fronts: Eye-witness Accounts related his experiences in Malaya, also from the Delhi studios.

MESSAGES BROADCAST

MESSAGES from Indian soldiers serving abroad formed a useful feature of A I R broadcasts during this month. The many friends and relatives of these men heard comforting voices from distant fronts in England, Malaya, Singapore and the Middle East, rebroadcast from Delhi, Bombay, Madras, Trichy and Lahore.

The Delhi station also inaugurated a new service during this month whereby messages from friends and relatives of persons residing in Rangoon, Malaya and Singapore, about whom people in this country were naturally anxious, could be broadcast to those areas. So many of these messages poured in that the station found it difficult to deal with them within the limited time as its disposal.

As during the preceding month Civil Defence and A R P continued to receive much attention and useful advice was broadcast from the various A I R stations. His Excellency the Governor of Madras (January 13) and His Excellency the Governor of Bombay (January 28) broadcast short talks impressing upon listeners the need of civil defence.

TALKS ON CHINA

CHINA, whose soldiers are fighting shoulder to shoulder with our troops against the common aggressor, was the subject of four important talks broadcast from Calcutta, on January 20, 22, 27 and 31. Dr. C. J. Pao, the Chinese Consul-General in India, giving the first three talks discussed "Total War and the Object-lessons of China," "Characteristics of Japanese Aggression", and "The Myth of the Asiatic Saviour." Mrs. Pao, broadcasting on January 31, spoke about the part women were playing in total warfare. All four talks were relayed by Dacca and two of these were rebroadcast later from Lucknow.

Among other outstanding talks broad-cast during the month may be mentioned those by Sir Evelyn Wrench on "World Reconstruction in Post-War Era" (Delhi: January 3); Col. Iver Jehu on "Libya" (Delhi: January 4); Sir Vepa Ramesam on "The Common Cause" (Madras: January 7); Sir F. E. James on "War Finance" (Lahore: January 4); Rajah Chittra Singh Ju Deo Bahadur on "U.P's War Effort" (Lucknow: January 11); Dr. Isabel Hutton on "Auxiliary Nursing, Services in India" (Delhi: January 16); Mr. Arthur Moore on "London Now" (Delhi: January 17); Mrs. Dorothy Bird on "The Work of the Joint Organisations of the Indian Red Cross and St. John's Ambulance" (Delhi: January 16) and Mr. Justice Wadsworth on Japan's much trumpetted slogan "Asia for the Asiatics" (Madras: January 30).

"Asia for the Asiatics" (Madras: January 30).

Bombay started on January 17 a new biweekly feature entitled "Dot and Dash" given by Mr. D. F. Karaka, the well-known author and journalist.

As usual a large number of plays and feature programmes presenting war themes in a dramatised form were arranged from the various stations. Among these may be mentioned "Rajputana Rifles" (Delhi); "1941 Scrap Book" (Calcutta); "The Crooked Cross" by Peter Donne (Calcutta and Madras); "Cheeni Sipahi" and "How War Came to America" (Lucknow).

B B C RELAYS

SOME of the important relays from the B B C were a talk by the Rt. Hon'ble Anthony Eden on his return from Moscow, President Roosevelt's message to the United States Congress and Lord Beaverbrook's talk on return from the United States.

ponderous, pedantic and heavy. A lapse such as this will harm his art to a very great extent. Dialogue, I think, is the briefest and the best form of character delineation. The story-teller, through the medium of dialogue, should reveal characters whom he has made alive in his mind. If the characters are stale dummies for him his art will suffer. But a long description of the character of a man or a woman is unnecessary because in that case the story-teller is asking the audience to believe rather than deduce. The audience must be mentally active and it is to a very great extent the job of the story-teller to keep them so. The character has only to say what he would say, and the listener would find out in the most pleasing, natural way what manner of man or woman he or she is. We all have our manner of speaking and if the storyteller can, easily and conveniently, indicate the tones of the various characters in the story the listeners would be all the more interested. Their characteristics, mannerisms, peculiarities, and oddities should be brought out by what they say and how they say it. And just then if the story-teller hints at the surrounding or the place in which they are talking the story will sound more real. The gestures and movements of the characters should be indicated. Sometimes one single gesture may convey and reveal much more than a lot of words.

The story-teller, however, should guard against becoming too dramatic. His performance is a performance with words more than anything else. Essentially he is a man who narrates and describes, not a man who acts, although some acting must come into his art. With digressions and side issues in dialogue, with slight exaggeration in words here and there, some significant repetition of words or phrases, and, above all, with the quality of his voice and intonation, he can achieve a great deal in his art.

HOMELY ENTERTAINMENT

THE art of story-telling has gradually dwindled into insignificance. It is a simple, quiet and homely form of entertainment, and it has found difficulty in withstanding the rush of modern life and spectacular amusements. But since men have always told each other stories and listened to stories, I don't see why the art should die out. I believe some of us have a special aptitude for story-telling and I do think that, for the sake of children if not for the sake of grown-ups as well, this art should be developed. The minstrel is no more, but the stories are still there—a superb heritage of imaginative literature.

—Broadcast from Lahore.

Points from Talks

NUMOUR.—The Hon'ble Mr. Justice Wadsworth. IN times of peace it is an interesting and amusing study to trace the growth of lantastic stories which pass from mouth to mouth, gradually losing all resemblance to he mild incidents from which they started. But in times of war, rumour is a deadly peril to the common cause. It works like fire, spreading panic and undermining discipline and common sense. When there is a fire in a crowded place, it is not the flames which cause the casualties. The real danger lies in the ruthlessness of the panic-stricken mob, rampling underfoot the weak and helpless in a mad stampede for safety. And so it is with rumour, which destroys morale, stultifies the forces of law and order and turns the instinct for self-preservation into a destructive force. It is much easier to start a rumour than to stop it. One lighted match will start a fire which ten fire-engines cannot extinguish. Rumour, like fires, fall naturally into two classes, the accidental and the intentional, both equally difficult to extiguish and sometimes equally disastrous in their results. We hear a good deal nowadays about a mysterious quality known as morale and I fancy that many of us are apt to think of morale as if it were a kind of epidemic prevalent only in foreign lands. But the French word morale means very much the same as the English word spirit. Let us be of good spirit and cast from us depressing and largely untrue rumours.—Broadcast from Madras.

WAR MONGERS IN JAPAN.—Diwan Chand Sharma.

FOR more than two centuries Japan sealed itself against all foreign influences, and it was only within living memory that it established intercourse with the countries of the west. Then it began to model its life in many ways on western lines. Soon it made itself an industrial and military power. Thus for many years its one mission was to imitate the west. Later on it developed imperialist ambitions and its sole purpose has been to subjugate defenceless nations. One cannot call all this glorious historic mission. Mission it certainly is not and glorious it certainly cannot be. It cannot be called historic because the sanction of the history of Japan is not behind it. All this shows that the military leaders in Japan have learnt to talk so glibly in the manner of Nazis.—Broadcast from Lahore.

BEETHOVEN THE LIBERATOR.—Dr. Bake.

IN Beethoven's life there is no sign of his having had to fight free from bonds. His passionate longing for freedom was accompanied by a loathing of anything that smacked of servility even it it concerned only courtly or polite manners. The famous poet Goethe, for instance, was most unfavourably impressed and shocked by what appeared to him nothing but boorishness. He did not see that this unpleasant peculiarity was only one of the minor natural consequences of the whole conception of the world and mankind Beethoven stood for. Into the world of growing democratic ideas and of the growth of cultured classes apart from and outside the nobility, the figure of Beethoven fits to perfection. In these days of oppression and injustice it is good and heartening to remember what Beethoven stood for; not to forget how he nearly tore up his third symphony, the Eroica, in a furious rage when he discovered that Napoleon to whom he had dedicated the work, was not the hero of freedom he had thought him to be, but just another man thirsting for might and power and grabbing it when it came his way. And how deeply we can feel with the music of his Opera Fidelio where the whole theme and almost every note cries out for justice, freedom and abolition of oppression. In these days when Hitler's creed has killed joy more effectively than anything else, the whole world will feel that light has come again when we will be able to join the choir singing an "Ode to Joy". Joy which makes all men brothers and joins them in the worship of God.— Broadcast from Calcutta.

INDUSTRIAL PLANNING.—Dr. John Mathai.

If I were asked to sum up in a few words the kind of economic organisation which I would like to see set up in India, I would state it somewhat as follows. Industries, that is, the production of manufactured goods, would fill a much larger and more important place in the economy of the country than they do now. Agriculture, however, would still remain the predominant economic activity of the country in so far as it would continue to employ more labour and capital and represent a larger share of the aggregate national production. But its importance would not outweigh that of industries in anything like the proportion it does now, and to this extent there would be a better balancing of our resources between the two. Industries in our economy would exist primarily for the benefit of the countryside, producing the manufactured goods required by the rural population, providing an outlet for the surplus production of their farms, helping to relieve the pressure exerted by a growing population upon the land and contributing certain elements of organisation and character required for a more vigorous national life. But the foundations of our life would remain agricultural and our people would draw from the village, as they have done hitherto, the main sustenance and enjoyment of their lives. -Broadcast from Bombay.

THE FUN OF EAVESDROPPING.—R. S. T. Iohn.

W HERE in a club can there be such a profitable place to eavesdrop as at the swing door that leads to the kitchen? And true it is that there I have found on many occasions that I have heard some enlightening remarks made by the staff. I well remember taking one friend, a gentleman of more than robust appearance who had been staying in the club for a few days, on a visit of inspection. As we got by the swing door, he stopped, (to tie a bootlace or something like that) and out floated a voice-no other than the voice of the cook himself: "The boss says that that fat old geezer from table number 4 is coming down here to see us this morning. Strikes me that this isn't the first kitchen he's visited. By the look of him the kitchen is the only room in the house he's happy in". And to do us justice, both of us walked in through that door and made our tour of inspection with completely wooden faces, and the cook will never know that he had had an unseen audience.-Broadcast from Dacca.

MIXED GRILL, 3 8:0 Taxes We Do Not Pay Talk by Sir Manohar Lal, Finance

Talk by Sir Manohar Lal, Finance Minister, Punjab

We grumble over-much about the burden of taxation, not realising that there are quite a number of taxes, levied all over the civilised world from which we are exempt. Actually, compared to say an Englishman, an Indian of a similar status in life pays a smaller number of taxes. In this talk Sir Manohar Lal, himself an astute practical economist, will examine our taxation system. suggestive ways to make it more comprehen sive.

	Indian ship-yards are building a large number of small craft—from mines sweepers to life-boats—and all available capacity for the larger of these craft is occupied, with orders waiting as slips fall empty. India has hitherto not made marine boiler and propelling machinery. She is now about to begin her first attempt at making propelling machinery. The accounts of the launching of two ships—the H.M.I.S. Travancore and Baroda have been published, but many a fine vessel has already left the docks in India and is doing her part in the defence of democracy.

If digestive discomfort is the penalty you pay for eating what you most like, read this, from Richmond:

"I was unable to eat without pain or "I was unable to eat without pain or unpleasantness from Indigestion, a good many things I liked: after a while of taking Dr. Jenner's I was able to enjoy the things I was most frightened to touch, which I can now eat without fear of after-effects" . . . 27.6.39.

Dr. Jenner's Absorbent Lozenges have 150 years reputation for quick relief of Acid stomach, Flatulence and Digestive Disorders: discovered by Dr. Jenner of Vaccination fame and increasingly prescribed to-day by leading Stomach Specialists.

The festival of lights! The myriads of twinkling lamps which garland your home, the flash of fireworks, the joyous laughter of children and the happy family reunion mark this great occasion. Appropriately enough the most important item of this evening's festivities is tea-the cup of good cheer—for everyone. your near and dear ones with tea-the great beverage for every great occasion.

	Suite No. I Op 46: Grieg † John Barbirolli and his Orchestra The music to be heard this morning is the first of the two suites which Grieg arranged from his incidental mu- sic to Ibsen's drama "Peer Gynt".
	MORNING (Allegretto-Pastorale) Suggests the breaking of dawn and the gradual rising of the sun, as Peer Gynt stands before the statue of Memmon, in Morocco. DEATH OF ASE (Andante Doloroso). This lament, built upon a four-note theme, describes the death of Peer Gynt's mother. It is scored for wood-winds and strings.
	ANITRA'S DANCE (Tempo di Minuetto) Depicts the dancing of Anitra the daughter of the Bedouin Chief, with whom Peer Gynt is, for the moment, infatuated. It is for muted strings only. IN THE HALL OF THE MOUNTAIN KING. This movement describes the scene in which Peer Gynt is driven out of the Hall of the Mountain King by the trolds. It is based on a grotesque of the Hall of the Mountain King by the trolds. It is based on a grotesque theme given out by the bassoons and cellos. The dance grows wilder and wilder until it reaches a climax. It has often been described as a "musical bassotte neet".

BRITISH MUSIC † Tintagel Mediterranean Arnold Bax Mediterranean
New Symphony Orchestra
Conducted by Eugene Goossens Arnold Bax's music is not the kind that makes an appeal on its first hearing.
His music has often been criticised for its lack of emotional content, its austerity, mournful themes and blatant harmonies, but in all his works is found an unmistakable under-current of lyrical beauty, strong colour, and imagery.

21,00	A30 B.C. The Athenians, so goes the tale, consulted the oracle at Delos, which ordered them to double the size of the altar of Apollo without changing its shape. This altar was in the form of a cube and the problem was to find the side of a cube whose volume was twice that of a given cube. The Greeks, who could use only the ruler and compasses, could not, of course, arrive at an accurate construction, but such problems have been a powerful stimulus to mathematicians throughout the centuries	7.0

END GREY HAIR NO STAINS. NO DYES

Carpentier

The problem of greyness has been scientifically solved, "DEJOOR" a distinctive hair food, entirely free from dyes and harmful ingredients, will restore safely the natural colour of your hair to its former appearance in a remarkably short time and will stimulate a healthy growth of beautifully soft lustrous hair. The change is gradual and fatural. Detection is impossible during treatment. New and sensationally different in the form of sweetly fragrant oil". LET RESULTS SPEAK THAN WORDS.

theatres and auditoriums and offering of prizes for the best composer. Previously all the dramas, or "thing done" in the literal Greek sense, were oneman shows and different characters were impersonated by means of a mask and costume. Aeschylus introduced a second character and by so doing became the first true dramatist of Europe to bring two persons in confrontation and collision. Greek drama then blossomed forth into a flower of sweet fragrance under the genius of the Three Masters whose works are still to-day the very best specimens of literary endeavour in this direction. 7.0 J. P. GOSWAMI ‡ Khayal in Bengali
