

NO "M.M." FOR TWO WEEKS

Readers will have seen that, owing to the fuel crisis, all periodicals are to close down for two weeks after publication of this week's issue.

This means that the "Melody Maker" will not be published next week and the week after, but if the emergency permits, we hope to be back again with our issue dated March 8 (which will be on sale on Thursday, March 6).

This is the first break in the 21-years' history of the "Melody Maker," and we know our readers will appreciate that it is due to circumstances entirely beyond our control, and in the highest national interests.

The offices of the "Melody Maker" at 93, Long Acre, W.C.2, will be open as usual for callers or correspondence, and all preparations will be going on apace throughout the enforced "holiday" to give you as good a "Melody Maker" as we possibly can the moment conditions get back to normal.
