THE BILLBOARD

Newspaper Agents.

Those bill posters who are loudly demanding that there shall be no discrimination against newspaper agents who apply for solicitorships in the Associated Bill Posters should read an article in the current issue of Printers' Ink. It is entitled "Country Publisher and Advertising Agent: One a Rogue, the Other an Ass." It consists of extracts from an address delivered at the thirty-sixth annual session of the Illinois Press Association in Chicago, January 31, 1901, by Lafe Young, of Des Moines, Iowa. Ordered printed and sent to every newspaper in the State of Illinois.

Our space will not permit us to give it in full, but we append a few extracts to show country bill posters how the newspaper agent stands with country publishers:

Nearly everybody has made money out of what is called general advertising excepting the country publisher. * * * Great advertisers make their contracts in a lump with what is called the general advertising agencies. Therefore these agencies for years have controlled the situation. They take large contracts and have the entire country to cover, and if they fail to get one country paper they will get another by their low offers. They in a measure coerce the country publisher by the power which is given them by the great and systematic general advertiser. They do not deal justly with the country publisher, certainly not in many instances. The form of contract arranged by the general advertising agencies is gotten up to convet and to defeat the ends of its use. Such contracts usually make such requirements as to position, condition, etc., as to make their correct fulfillment impossible. It is evident that some at least of these complicated requirements are put in to secure advertising free of charge.

Who has made these agencies what they are? The country publisher. What capital have these agencies had usually to start with? None whatever except desk room and a typewriter. The publishers of the United States send all of their papers to them free, and thus their capital stock is made up. If they have one client who spends $100,000 per year in general advertising, they have sufficient wherewithal to found a general agency. They collect their bills from him every month, and then by vigorous correspondence in many instances keep the money for years and maybe for ever. I am told that one of the large general advertising agencies for many years has never owed the country publisher less than $500,000 at any one time. That amount the general agency considers worth $30,000 or $25,000 per year for use in the bank. The country publisher as a rule furnishes this money on which the general advertising agency grows rich. * * * The houses connected with the present advertising agency business are almost too numerous to mention, and the country publishers are not one chumps, not the only sneaks. Recently a general advertising agency backed a patent medicine has asked for a credit of eighteen months or more before one cent should be paid. * * * Therefore it can be seen that the general agency is plucking the country publisher two ways. * * * They catch the country publisher both coming and going.

If the country newspaper has such a poor opinion of the newspaper agent as the foregoing would seem to indicate, why should the country bill poster uphold him? There is evidence already in hand among the bill posters that newspaper agents are very slow pay. That alone ought to keep the bars up against further invasions.

Levyne's Letter.

To the Editor of "The Billboard": I notice one of the State associations is hell-bent to be antagonistic to the managers of opera houses who are bill posters.

In the name of common sense can those people see farther than the end of their nose? or unless they be brought down to the stern realization of stubborn facts by a打thud on their clouded brains?

Of all classes of bill posters, the managers of theaters stand out clearly ahead of most all bill posters in point of intelligence.

"The way these petty jealousies run and the soreness which always seems to exist between a poor little second-class, tumble-down bill poster and a first-class man who is prosperous and progressive, makes it dangerous for a man to try and do good work or to try and get to the front."

I quoted from one of the best known bill posters in the city. How many bill posters are there who support themselves entirely by the show poster? And how many of these self same bill posters know that the managers could put up a plant of their own inside of ten days if they so wished. The managers can fight them to a standstill and win out with a pocket full of money while Mr. Bill Poster was starving.

If the State associations keep this tight up much longer, the opera house managers will be compelled to form themselves into a ring and call themselves the "Theatrical Managers' Bill Posters' Protective Association." A long name, yes; a long arm, too.

Now, on this question—I know whereof I speak. This "child" was born more than a year ago, and it has grown to such proportions that the wonder is that it is not known by all. But its leaders have done all they could to hide it until they have needs it perfect, and at some time when they are trodden upon harder than they could bear, they will arise and throw this who will make a big mark in the future. Mr. Charles K. Hager, our manager, has been on the sick list for the past ten days with blood poisoning. At one time it looked quite serious for him, but now, I am glad to say, he is convalescent.

Yours truly, M. L. LEVYNE.

Mr. Stahlbrodt Writes.

To the Editor of "The Billboard": Dear Sir: In answer to your favor of the 23d inst., relative to my opinion regarding whether or not it be feasible to disintegrate the soliciting office, should the several bill posting associations become amalgamated, I beg to say that that is a matter which I have not given very careful consideration, and feel that it is a very important factor which must receive the careful consideration of every one of the bill posters at the time that the matter is to be definitely decided.

There are good reasons why the soliciting office should be maintained in the interest of the association, yet there is also no especial reason for continuing such an arrangement, unless the members may feel themselves more secure from outside interference with the business handled through their own office. Very truly yours,

EDWARD A. STAHLBRODT.

Two General Offices.

It is rumored that in the event that amalgamation is effected, a movement will be made to have two general offices, one in New York and the other in Chicago, but Pasted It Over.

There has been trouble for the "Ruby cigar," manufactured by Kent & Co., of Elmhurst, N. Y. The chief of police of Washington, D. C., ordered the paper pasted over because the temblous figure displayed a voluptuousness of bust that was said to be immoral. The strangest part of the incident is that Avery & Sons, of Philadelphia, who are models of propriety, and are supposed to be models for the imitation of bill poster solicitors, are said to be handling the paper. Unless there is positive proof that such is the case, "The Billboard" wants its readers to withhold their judgment.

Big Chewing Gum Contract.

The American Chicle Company, of New York City, will put out in the near future a three months' contract for posting Lee's Adams & White's Chewing Gum. This contract will be a general one for the entire country. H. J. Gude, who has been handling the work of the company, was after this contract, although it was known that Clarence E. Rinney was also hot to get the work for the Protective Company. Regarding the matter of sufficient importance to be considered rather more than a squib, our New York correspondent writes us that Rinney has secured the contract. The extent and importance of this big deal is shown by the fact that it requires approximately $18,000 to cover the country for one month, and as this contract is for three months, the large sum which the Chicle Company invests is readily apparent. It will be a godsend to many of the smaller "unister" at the head of these foolishness.

Any one who is well acquainted with the bill posting situation can very nearly place his fingers on the spot, and those who can "see the spot" are the very ones who should use their influence for the good of the association and call off those "foolish ones" before this new opposition is given a good chance to live.

In several cases some sore heads have brought or tried to bring this question up before the National body, but they were always given a black eye, and that is as it should be, for how can the bill posters of this country turn down their brightest lights?

I am writing for the good of the association, and hope it will be considered in all seriousness when I say that some months ago, when I was constantly traveling, one of its leaders asked me to sound every state meeting on this proposition, which I did, and I can in them were in favor of it should it be needed.

I may possibly bring this up again in my next week's letter, and if I do there will be a reason for it, and that reason will be given with a few pointers which will read strangely to some of the bill posters of this country.

The Union Advertising Company of this city, which advertise in street cars, have just closed with the Last St. Louis & Belleville Traction Company, covering all cars between Belleville, Collinsville and Edwardsville, Ill. They also control the car lines of Galesburg and Linton, Ill., and Grant City.

Mr. M. E. Montgomery, manager, is connected with the St. Louis Bill Poster Company as contractor and specie hunter. He is a young man 30 years old and a hard worker. He is well thought of, and a man now being placed through both. The idea is that instead of business going through the individual bill poster, it will be handled by these two offices, 10 per cent being allowed to the bill poster who furnishes the work, and 12-3 per cent for the running expenses of the two establishments. It is believed that by this plan a great expense will be saved in the clerical work of the individual bill poster, and the association can employ competent inspectors to check the work. This, of course, would not apply to local contracts, but would include business of a general or national character. The Western members of the association who are opposed to amalgamation might be tempted to listen to this scheme as a compromise.

They object to having all work bundled and sent out from New York, and they think that Chicago should have better representation than at the present time. It is contended by those who favor this plan that the $12 newspaper solicitors could be taken into the association and yet the bill posters control the business. It can be readily seen that the advantage to be derived from handling the newspaper business through this plan is that where a solicitor or inexperienced agency recommends a four sheet poster or starts a new advertiser on the board with a one-sheet poster, that these matters can all be remedied at the headquarters of this new office, or, in other words, these two offices would act as an adviser to the different agencies as to the best plan of procedure to handle the advertisers. It is a well known fact that there are very few expert men in the United States today who understand the poster proposition, but with a couple of these men at the head of these two offices they would be in position then to present the proper plans for an advertising campaign.

bill posters who have been clamoring for more work. The Protective Company has made a ten strike and have reason to feel very gratified of their achievement.

A New Concern on the Boards.

One of the oldest establishments in Chicago, Mihelovich, Fletcher & Co., have decided to go on the boards. They have just closed a contract with the Associated Bill Posters' Protective Company, through Clarence E. Rinney, to post 5,000 eight sheets and 10,000 two-sheets in selected territory all over the United States. The heading of the poster will be "Nature's Remedy," advertising in the form of an eight sheet bottle their brand of Colonial Blackberry Cordial. This is the first appearance on the boards of this old and reliable concern, which has been in existence twenty-six years.

Another New Concern.

Helmman Bros., of Baltimore, makers of the Ida Costa cigar, closed a contract recently with the Associated Bill Posters' Protective Company to put up eight and two-sheet posters in the Southern States. This is another concern that, although in business for sixteen years, has never ventured into bill board advertising. This poster will be an eight sheet, with a reproduction of a box of cigars in the center four sheet. The heading will be, "You Are Burning Haywire." This is the new catch line and one which follows along the lines of other manufacturers, such as "Helenously Good," "I am for men," etc.

THE BILLBOARD

Daubs.

Chapman will attend the meeting on April 16.

offices of the Protective Company moved May 1 to rooms 1508 and St. James Building, 1133 Broadway, New York.

W. W. Hoke got the big Fairbank's Poster in Chicago March 30. There are two sheets and 24 sheets. The latter is said to be something startling.

Ruddison, the Philadelphia bill poster, has with an eight sheet poster 16x24 and 7 feet wide, 50 square feet, at 10 cents a day. This is a big showing for money.

The city is going to have a celebration on Fourth of July, write us to that effect and send us the name of the secretary and that of the chairman of the committee on arrangements.

McGowen Bowers, general contractor for John Chapman Company, is handling all the posting advertising for J. H. Lucke who is in Cincinnati advertising. The business consists of cigar houses in every city in the United States.

B. J. Spaulding, of Boise, Idaho, says: "The motto of our merchants is, 'That you can drive the advertising nail further and quicker with the poster sledge than with the newspaper tie hammer.'" Whatever Mr. Spaulding says is usually well said.

Campbell Bros., 45 Whitney Building, Boston, Mass., are sending out 1000 sheets, 1-sheets, 4-sheets, 6-sheets, 8-sheets and 24-sheets. They have contracted with Messrs. DeMolby & Sons, Boston, for 20,000 sheets posting matter during the month of March.

J. H. Ramsey, general manager of the Consolidated Bill Posting Company, writes that the opposition in Louisville has as yet made no move to indicate that they are alive. Mr. Ramsey has a great plant, and he is confident that the advertisers will stick to the "real thing."

B. J. Spaulding & Co., Boise, Idaho, have contracts for the future aggregating 1,000 sheets a month. So they write, "The Bill Board." This gives them an income of $750 a month from this source alone. The firm is putting up 1,200 feet of new boards soon, which will give them the largest plant to be built Salt Lake City and Portland.

O. G. Murray, the bill poster at Richmond, Ind., who bought out Mr. Robbins, and is at the same time the owner of both cigar houses, was a "Billboard" caller the other day. He is a great admirer of the paper. Mr. Murray, although a young man, is a hustler. He has now about 2,500 feet of boards, but will build more very soon.

J. H. Ramsey, the well-known Louisville bill poster, who has plants in six other cities of Kentucky, was a "Billboard" caller the other day. On his boards at present are the following posters: Bull Durham Tobacco, Ben Hur Cigar, General Arthur Cigar, Inner Seal Biscuit, Wetmore Tobacco, Quaker Oats, English Wooden Mills and a number of local posters.

Complaints have been filed with President Pivon of the Associated Job Posters against several members of the association who have been allowing commissions to P. L. Morton the Cincinnati bill poster, to see if they will be very severely dealt with, as the rule against giving commissions to any one, not even advertisers, is so strong that its violation means expulsion. Any bill poster who does anything of this kind risks his franchise.

The new offices of the Protective Company are in the St. James Building on the fifteenth floor. They are commodious, light and pleasant. What is more to the point, is the fact that they are cheaper. They only cost $300 per year, whereas the quarters on Twenty-eighth street cost $1,500 per year, and, with light, janitor and other expenses added, the expense was nearly $2,000 annually. By moving a saving of nearly $1,100 a year is effected.

It is quite generally admitted now that the expense of membership in the amalgamated company at the beginning will not be any less than it now costs a man to belong to all three organizations. Those, of course, who now only belong to one will find their dues higher, but they will get additional protection, which in some measure will compensate them for the increased cost of dues, etc. Later on it would seem that amalgamation would result in a saving due to economies to the members.

The Cincinnati papers have been attacking the Board of Public Service for routing a car along the entrance to Eden Park for erection of boards for advertising purposes. President Allison, of the board, is to the defense of John Chapman's action in effect by declaring that no boards were not there the city would be compelled to erect a high wall at a cost of ten thousand dollars, to prevent the cars plunging into the dumps. While the cars only gets a rental of $150 a year for boards, they would get nothing for the property if the boards were not seven men to put up their money and join the union.

Mr. Hermin, advertising agent of McVicker's, has to bear the brunt of the battle, as nearly all the bill posters are union members. They will pass up any other poster to cover McVicker's. As the Democratic gang was the first to have a showing, they continue to hold it. In the outside wards each aldermanic candidate has his own bills and bill posters to do his work, but his showing is short, for the Republicans or Democrats recognize no one but the party they are working for.

One of the American Posting Company's several wagons was run into by an electric car on Linton avenue. The wagon was ditched. The foreman, Ardelle Wiles, was thrown out and had his left arm broken in two places. Jack Gengerson was thrown out, landing on his head and cutting a large gash, which had to be sewed up. These two were rolling on the front seat. Jim Domine, who was seated in the rear of the wagon, jumped as the car struck the wagon, but was considerably shaken up. The horse escaped injury with the loss of some of the harness.

The printers, bill posters and paste makers are doing well during this mayoralty campaign in Chicago. No bill poster has to look for work, everybody wants him. The American Bill Posting Service have their boards covered with stands for the Republican party, and are doing very little suppling. Nearly all their suppling is for mass meetings. The Illinois Advertising Company (Mr. Al Remondot) is putting out one sheets and one half sheets in the center of the city. If you stop for half an hour you see a bill poster paste a bill on a wall, and it will be covered by seven more bill posters, one after the other.

Curran Very Busy.

To the Editor of "The Billboard":

Dear Sir: We have had a great rush of posting for the different political parties for the coming spring election. In fact, we have done more election posting than we ever did before, and it goes to show that politicians, when they want to make a successful campaign, generally use the bill boards more and more every year. Bill boards never run down, criticize or try to injure any respective candidate on any ticket, while a great many of the newspapers do. For instance, take the editorial column of one of two of our daily papers here in Denver. They run down and criticize, and cast the ticket and candidates all the names imaginable, from a sneak thief to a murderer. Then on another page of the paper they ask the politicians to help them kill the bill boards, and also want them to pass an ordinance that all bill boards are a nuisance, and should be done away with. Then the question comes, "What for?" The answer is it is done and is for the interest of the papers, to bring more business and advertising for these same papers. It also gives them an opportunity to increase their rates of advertising and crush all other enterprises that ever dare to attempt to do any advertising out side of the newspapers. Yours respectfully, JAS. A. CURRAN, Denver, Col.

More Political Posters.

The effectiveness of advertising political candidates on the bill boards is again being demonstrated. Several times "The Billboard" has referred to the hot poster campaign in Chicago, and now Springfield, Ohio, has caught the fever, the Republican candidate for Mayor, Mr. McMillin, being extensively advertised by three sheets all over the city. James E. Cannon, the manager of the Louisville Auditorium, and a candidate for City Treasurer of Louisville, subject to the decision of the Democratic convention in June, is putting out 300 three-sheets and 200 one-sheets, announcing his candidacy. The political poster seems to have come to stay.

Jailed for Posting Bills.

A man employed by a medebile company was arrested and fined $5 for violating the bill posting ordinance in Hawesville, Ky., recently, and, refusing to pay the fine, he was sent to jail. Later he was released on a writ of habeas corpus. He threatens to bring suit for false imprisonment—Fourth Estate.

Chapman is Busy.

One of the busiest concerns in the country is the John Chapman Bill Posting Company of Cincinnati. They have contracted for and are posting as follows:

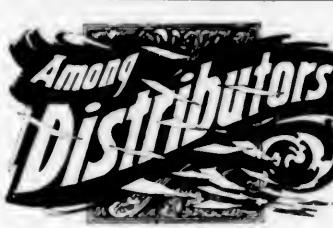

Walkover Shoe Company, Cincinnati, O.; Fieheliuer & Co., clothiers, Cincinnati, O.; Dr. Shober, dentist, Cincinnati, O.; Pepper Whisky, Cincinnati, O.; Bull Durham Tobacco, Cincinnati, O.; General Arthur Cigar.

And will shortly commence on Buffalo Bill's Wild West, 11th Floor Ballroom, C. H. & D. Railroad, Vouey Island, Chester Park. They will paint all bulletin boards inside the Cincinnati Base Ball Park; also put up running feet of bulletins for the C. H. & D. R. R.

What Mr. Steinbrenner Says.

In his monthly tips to distributors, a copy of which was given us by the printer, Mr. W. H. Steinbrenner, secretary of the I. A. D., says in regard to the letter of Mr. L. Hill, which appeared in last week's issue of "The Billboard," the following:

"Mr. James L. Hill, of Nashville, Tenn., against whom charges have been preferred by the Lydia Pinkham Medical Company, has, through the columns of "The Billboard," criticized my action in regard to his suspension. He has also made several insinuations in regard to what he pleases to call 'teathering my nest.' I do not deem it policy to reply to him publicly, but, for the benefit of the members, will say that I am not a candidate for re-election to the secretaryship. There are several reasons for this: In the first place, I can not afford to serve the association longer, as it takes up nearly all of my time, and I am compelled to employ an extra man, which adds considerably to the running expense of my business. As to my action in suspending Mr. Hill, I will leave the entire matter to the judgment of the members. Would it be policy for me to place the question of suspension before the executive committee and await its decision, allowing Mr. Hill to continue to do business under the guarantee of the association? Which should have first consideration, the welfare of an individual member at the sacrifice of the balance of the membership, or the protection of the entire body? If Mr. Hill had conducted his business as conscientiously as I have that of the association, there would be no grounds for charges. Mr. Hill endeavors to lead you to believe that I am in a deal with parties interested in the amalgamation of our association with that of the bill posters and other outdoor advertising interests. I have never heard of any proposed plan or scheme for amalgamating the I. A. D. with other associations, nor would I be in favor of such a plan, and I fully coincide with Mr. H. H. Tyler, of Springfield, O., on that subject. I repeat, if there are any plans for consolidation, I have been kept in ignorance."

"In conclusion I beg to state that my actions, my character and my reputation, both in personal and association affairs, are open for inspection at any and at times."

Defense of Uniforms.

A well-known distributor who has been connected with one of the largest concerns in the country, and who has been following the articles in this department opposing the uniforming of distributors, writes as follows: "I think that the gentlemen who claim that it is impractical to uniform distributors are in the wrong. What is nicer in appearance than a man in uniform doing work of any kind? The uniform which was adopted by the International Distributors' Association, manufactured by D. Klein & Bros., of 950 Walnut street, Philadelphia, consists of a gray suit with brass buttons, suit trimmed in narrow black braid. The coat is buttoned full on the neck, giving the entire suit a very natty appearance. The cap is of the same color and made in the same style as a conductor's cap. The total cost of the suit is $5 to the members of the I. A. D. and $4.25 to non-members. I have never seen any neater or more complete distributing than was done by Edward A. Stuhlbordt's force of uniformed distributors in Rochester, and the same can be said of C. C. Ames, of Providence, R. I., and Owens, Varney & Green, of San Francisco. I might mention several others, but these are sufficient to illustrate my point, the ground of opposition to the uniformed distributor is that it is humiliating for men to go around in uniform unless members of some military organization. The fallacy of this contention is shown by the fact that all street car conductors, motormen, employees of hotels, regimental bands and railroad employees and thousands of others appear in uniforms every day when on duty. Why are distributors any better than the multitudes of employees in other lines of business? I will admit as true to a certain extent the claim that some of the distributors will have the uniforms thrown back on their backs as insults, but at the same time many of them hire boys, being unwilling to pay men's wages. For this class of distributors the I. A. D. at the same meeting adopted a brown kahkai uniform which costs only $1.75 made to order, and which is washable, one of the best reasons for uniforming distributors is that it enables the traveling auditor of the concern doing distributing to keep the men in sight and to see that the work is properly done. In addition to that, the impression made upon people by a uniformed distributor is much better than that created by a man without any uniform, who may be very slovenly and untidy in his dress. I had this truth demonstrated to me while sitting on the porch with my family last summer. A distributor came along with a package of advertising matter. As his appearance was not such as to inspire confidence or respect, my wife made the remark that advertisers ought to be more particular about the appearance of their men. A few moments later a second man of another concern, neatly uniformed, came along, politely tipped his hat and graciously handed us a package. The contrast between the two was so marked that I could not help but give preference to the distributor in uniform. I am willing to pay fifty cents more on the thousand to have my work done by uniformed distributors."

Samplings.

Every distributor should read our "Talks with Advertisers" every week. A distributor is an advertiser, and should be conversant with every phase of the advertising business. He should be able to talk advertising fluently, to argue and dispute with his customers. Nothing inspires confidence in an agent so readily as to find the distributor intelligent, quick-witted and thoroughly posted.

The bill posters who are members of the I. A. D. almost to a man will oppose amalgamation if the I. D. A. is included in the plan. They are sold against it, and very loyal, indeed, to their own organization. This is an entirely disinterested observation on our part. All distributors' organizations look alike to us. We have no alliance with any of them. It is a simple statement of fact attested by our correspondence.

In Chicago there exists a firm called the Consumers' Penny Coin Express Company, which has a distributing system which is thus described: "The unit of organization is the district, or precinct. Every one of the fifty wards of the city of Chicago, and every suburban town in Cook County as well, is divided into districts of a size practical for oversight by one man. Distribution in these districts (which number 2,000) is in charge of district agents. Each of these agents canvasses every family in his district, and obtains his, when the merits of our system are presented, he easily obtains permission to leave one of our mail pouches at the home every day, securing also valuable data for the use of our customers. Being personally known to every family in his territory, the agent is enabled to obtain that specific information which makes possible a discriminating distribution of advertising matter based on habits, tastes, occupations, circumstances, nationality, etc. Whenever any nationality is colonized in a district, as in German, Norwegian, Polish, Bohemian, etc., quarters, the agent is a man of the prevalent nationality, who is able to throw valuable light on the customs, needs and peculiarities of his own people. Distributors'

Commercial Advertisers.

If you are advertising with almanacs or circulars or pamphlets, and you want to cut down the cost you may trim, if you must, the writer and the printer and the engraver, but oh! don't try to trim the distributor. Nothing will get you service but a fair price. No man is going to work hard (and it is hard work) and honestly for $1.50 per thousand (about 83 cents a day). He will not give you service, and without service you are lost.

Mr. C. E. Woodbury, the general representative of the Stephen Bartlett Company, has been in New Haven, Conn., and vicinity for the past few weeks, where he has billed heavily and largely increased the market for "Beusdorp's Cocoa." He reports having landed some "swell" orders. Mr. Woodbury is a firm believer in bill board publicity, and is known to be a friend to the bill posters, from whom he always receives courteous treatment and is given a good showing. He was well pleased in New Haven. Mr. Woodbury is a hard worker. More luck to him.

There is no God-given genius in the advertising writing line. It is steady, sympathetic work which brings success. There must be thorough knowledge of what is to be sold and the manner in which it is to be sold. There must be belief that the goods are what they are represented to be and that they are needed by the people, and there must be the utmost effort and care in the presentation of the announcements; not only care in the wording, but care in the illustrations, designs, type-effects. No detail is too small to be overlooked. A wrong word, an inappropriate illustration, an inharmonious effect of type, each is like a false note in music—the work of the greatest master may be spoiled.—Advertising Experience.

Any enterprising showman would readily give $100,000 for the privilege of exhibiting Aguinaldo before the American people. As an attraction he would be worth very much more than that.

"The Billboard" desires to have a representative with every tent show in the country this summer to act as correspondent and agent. Our purpose is to give more circus news than has ever been printed before, and we feel that we can count upon the hearty co-operation of show managers to attain that end.

The Kansas saloon wrecker, Mrs. Carrie Nation, has proven an awful "frost" as a drawing card. Her tour through the East was a failure financially. Curious crowds would follow her on the street, but when it came to putting up a quarter to hear her talk in a hall, it was a different matter. The enterprising showman who circulated the report that he had secured Mrs. Nation to go with his circus this summer may consider himself lucky that he did not get her. She is only a passing freak of that variety in which Kansas is prolific.

The trouble between the Cincinnati Musicians' Union and the Cincinnati Zoological Garden over the engagement of foreign bands to play at that resort this summer promises to attract National attention. Both sides are firm in their determination not to yield an inch of ground, believing that a vital principle is involved. The Zoo management maintain that there is a public demand for outside talent; that home bands have ceased to attract the people. Their most vigorous contention, however, is that they have a right to hire whom they please without dictation from any one, and they resent the efforts of the Musicians' Union to force them to act contrary to their own ideas of what they consider the best business policy. The Musicians' Union have stated their case forcibly in a circular letter to the public. They assert that Cincinnati is recognized as one of the greatest musical cities in America; that her musicians have loyally and ably maintained her reputation in that respect, and that to bring in foreign bands which are inferior in quality to the local organizations would not only be an insult to the musical standing of the city, but would ultimately force many of the best instrumental performers to seek employment elsewhere and disrupt the powerful musical forces of this community. Enlisted with the Musicians' Union will be every organization affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. The Zoo will be placed upon the unfair list, and all organized workmen in Cincinnati and within a radius of 50 miles will be urged to stay away from the Zoo and to persuade their friends to do the same. The outcome of this controversy, which may be considered a battle royal between capital and labor, will be watched with interest everywhere. The musicians realize that to lose this fight would practically disrupt their organization, which in this locality has heretofore been invincible. The Union is well equipped financially for a long fight, and there is a unity of sentiment and purpose in its ranks which indicates that they will not weaken. The Zoo management, who are just as firm in their conviction that their cause is just and that it is contrary to the principles of free government for one man or set of men to dictate to another how he shall run his business or spend his money, declare their purpose to stand by Liberati and Brooke, leaders of the two outside bands which have been engaged.

In a recent interview in Baltimore, Milt Barlow, the veteran minstrel, talked about the decline of black-faced entertainments. He asserted that the public has lost interest in negro minstrelsy, although the success this season of Primrose & Buckstader, Al. G. Fields and the Harrison Brothers contradict his statement in the very outset. Mr. Barlow probably associates his own decadence with that branch of the theatrical profession in which he was once a shining light. The sage Milt made one observation which, on the surface, appears to be a fact, when he says:

"The downfall of minstrelsy began when Thatcher raised the number of his company from sixteen to forty. After he set the pace the rest of us had to follow suit or fall behind. The effect of the increase of numbers was to obtain quantity at the expense of quality. In my days the salaries of our small shows came to a total nearly as large as that of the present large ones, and the consequence is that you find a few artists surrounded by mediocre men whose shortcomings detract from the work of those who are better."

"You see an octet get up, and, instead of the splendid volume of sound which you would expect from eight good singers, you find that several of them are 'soldering,' and that hardly more than half of them are really singing. Or you see sixteen buck dancers come out on the stage and in the entire collection there will not be more than two or three who can do more than the ordinary steps, and the really accomplished dancers have to tone down their work to suit that of their fellows."

The fallacy of Mr. Barlow's argument is that he fails to take into account the fact that there has been an evolution in minstrelsy the same as in everything else. The promoters of this class of amusement who have attempted to get back to the old style of entertainment in its simplicity have inevitably failed to interest the public. Modern minstrelsy is a success. Nineteenth century plays to attract theatergoers must be given with twentieth century surroundings; that is, they must have all the detail and spectacular force required for their perfect presentation. The old-time minstrel performance is no more attractive to the public in this age than the one-ring circus would be in a large city.

The great bill posters of New England are John Donnelly's Sons, of Boston. The leading spirit in that great concern is E. C. Donnelly, who is not only a man of means and a gentleman, but enjoys the respect and confidence of advertisers all over the country. Mr. Donnelly, who is not much more than forty years of age, is very modest, and has always declined to furnish a history of himself. While some bill posters have incurred the cuntry of the big circus managers, John Donnelly's Sons, is a notable exception to the rule. They are always spoken of in the highest terms. E. C. Donnelly has taken an active and influential interest in the Associated Bill Posters, and his views carry weight with his fellow members. Mr. Donnelly is a man who inspires respect, and it is to the power and support of such as he that the bill posting business has achieved a standing that ten years ago it did not enjoy.

Mr. Haber's Call.

P. B. Haber, president of the Wisconsin Bill Posters' Association, owner of the opera house at Fox City, and interested in various enterprises, was a "Billboard" caller last Saturday. Mr. Haber was en route home from Florida with his wife. He has extensive financial interests in Florida, and he went back to Wisconsin in the best of health. In regard to the amalgamation scheme, Mr. Haber is quite reticent, for he has not made up his mind. "I think that we can trust to the various committees to do the right thing," he said. "The Billboard" was highly complimented for its energy and brightness, and Mr. Haber thinks it is getting better with each issue.

The combination of opera house manager and bill poster in the smaller towns continues to be one of the nightmares disturbing the peace and prosperity of the outdoor advertising business; that is, from the point of view of the metropolitan bill posting magnates. According to many of these mugs, the "Charley box," that venerable relic of antiquity, still plays an important and convenient part in the business affairs of too many of these theatrical promoting bill posters.

Among the few bill posters who are openly in favor of admitting newspaper solicitors to the reorganized association, is E. B. Endy, of Mansfield, O. Mr. Endy, in a letter to "The Billboard," said: "I want to say in behalf of N. W. Aver & Son, of Philadelphia, that since they have been members, I have received from them as much, if not more, work than from any other solicitor. The more solicitors we have, the better, and if the other newspaper people, who are trying to join our association, would send us as much work, I say indeed, 'They surely can not do us any more harm in the association than out of it!'"

LETTER BOX

Our readers and subscribers in all lines are invited to avail themselves of "The Billboard's" new mail scheme. We have an experienced clerk in charge of this department. He keeps track of people and forwards their mail wherever possible, the moment it is received, thus avoiding delay. Letters are only advertised when we do not know the whereabouts of the persons to whom they are addressed. Letters advertised for four weeks and unclaimed for will be returned to the post office. Circulars, postal cards and newspapers excluded. Letters are forwarded without expense.

Comments.

A movement is on foot in the East again to gobble the presidency in July. So the old days of three continuous terms in New York, via Jersey City, are sadly missed.

It's about time for Sam Robinson to go out his summer dipnets for the usual crop of fake circus agents. What a Sherlock Holmes the jovial Philadelphia would make, with "Husky" Sulley as his chief shadow, of course.

In the past two or three years Frank Fitzgerald has dug up quite a bit of business in Milwaukee that has been shipped to other cities, principally in the East. Some of Fitz's best customers are large tobacco manufacturers.

The Protective Company of the Associated Bill Posters has closed its contract with the Keystone Overalls manufacturers, of Newburg, N. Y. The contract calls for eight sheets, and all the larger cities of the country will receive good-sized consignments.

It is a pleasure to know where our friend and neighbor, Major Henry H. Tyne, stands on the question of amalgamation. The doughty major never was a straddler, and his views on any subject are always set forth in an interesting and individual style.

Isn't it about time for some one to jump up and spring the old "agreement of honor" resolution, which caused so much merriment in days gone by? It might help some in solving the intricate problems of amalgamation. But what honorable gentleman has nerve enough to revive it?

In spite of the blonde giant's goo goo eyes and the sleek brownie's glad-handed familiarity, the feed between the houses of Gude and Pratt still drags on apace. But suppose that behind all the bluff and bluster a mutual personal agreement should exist between Gulliver and the Lilliput, old Bob won't it "bunk" ye?

Somebody should try Charlie Fibber to have the largest lolling up that the super Illinois caravans of a splendid bill posting plant can purchase in readiness for the Buffalo blowout. It will be sorely needed about the middle of July, and if its service in the first can be accepted as a criterion, it will not fail to do the trick.

Frisco can grasp Milwaukee's hand in mutual disappointment. Each city has had the honor of being duly chosen by the votes of the bill posters in national session as semibabes in the meeting place for a regular annual convention. Both have been tendered the compliment of a turn-down to gratify the whims of the potentates.

Bob Campbell's map folder of Chicago and vicinity, including a radius of 50 miles, is one of the best things of the kind ever issued. It is accurate, attractive, convincing, and shows that the claims of the American Posting Service as the biggest bill posting plant in the world are undoubtably correct. Bob has certainly wrought wonders in Chicago.

Among the interesting facts that are sure to be dragged before the calendar at the forthcoming Auditorium meeting in Chicago, the exact financial condition of the Protective Company and the other local organ are not of the least importance. Other reports on these ventures have heretofore been rather condescending and never satisfactory to the minds of all concerned.

Uncle Sam now has a band of which he can really feel proud. The United States Marine Band is a credit to the nation. The act of Congress last year which raised the pay of enlisted men in this organization, and made the conductor, W. H. Santelmann, a first lieutenant, has induced good musicians to join. The band is meeting with great success in its tour of the country.

Bob Gunnings' retirement from the St. Louis Bill Posting Company was no surprise to his intimate friends. Many years ago, when St. Louis was one of the hottest opposition bill posting cities in the United States, Bob had considerable local interests there to protect, and was gradually drawn into the bill posting conflict, much against his wishes. He never posed as a paper man, but in the outfit and bulletin business, which was his first love, he is universally conceded to be without a peer.

It is to be regretted that "Teddy" Stahlbach does not more frequently appear as a factor in the momentous events of the bill posting arena. Time was when the Lion of Rochester could make them all feel sorry. Whatever may be his shortcomings, his march can be said to the credit of "Teddy," he always has the sand to stand by his convictions. His frankness and fighting qualities once made him a picturesque figure at all meetings, now striking the contrast between his manly style and the so-called diplomatic and dubious methods of some of his conferees.

The report of Treasurer Beall, of the Associated Bill Posters, submitted at the Atlantic City meeting, showed that the organization was in a flourishing condition, and funds were at hand to back up his statement. This led Barney Iacob to suggest remission of dues for one year as an inducement to an overflowing treasury. But Barney's generous proposition was quickly voted down. It may not be generally known, but it is nevertheless a fact that the Brooklyn firm pays more dues than any other bill posting establishment in the country. Now, why should this be so? Let some mathematical politician figure it out.

Hamilton Fund Closed.

The fund started by "The Billboard" for the benefit of Mrs. James M. Hamilton, widow of the well-known showman, has been completed so far as this paper is concerned. Individual subscriptions may, however, be sent to Mrs. Hamilton, 2319 Pulte street, Cincinnati. The amount received by "The Billboard" reached $282. A portion of this amount has already been turned over to Mrs. Hamilton, and the remainder will be sent to her as soon as collected.

Bill Doris' Niece Elopement Twice with the Same Man.

Irene Kingsbury, 17 years old, has made a record by eloping twice with the same man. On January 23 she ran away with Henry Doran, a saloon keeper of No. 135 High street, Brooklyn, and was married to him.

Her guardian, William J. Doris, the well-known side showman and privilege man of the Walter L. Main Shows, immediately brought suit to have the marriage annulled, and the case was set down for hearing before Justice Mareau in the Supreme Court of Brooklyn, March 23. Just before the calendar was called Mr. Doris rushed into the courtroom and announced that his ward had disappeared with Doran January 21 and could not be found.

Doran and his bride first met at a social gathering in Flatbush. It was a case of love at first sight. As Mr. and Mrs. Doris were traveling at the time the young couple often met in secret. They became engaged and were married January 23 at the home of the rector of the York Street Methodist Episcopal Church. The Rev. G. W. Simonson performed the ceremony, and James McBride and wife, friends of Doran, were the witnesses.

Immediately afterward Doran took his bride home. For several days her relatives knew nothing of her marriage. Finally her maid, Mrs. Torts, was notified. The girl was found at the home of McTighe, No. 61 Talman street. The uncle of the girl, accompanied by a detective, had first gone to the home of Doran in High street. They found the young man there, and after threatening him with arrest on a charge of abduction, he disclosed his wife's whereabouts.

The girl's relatives are wealthy. They secured the services of Leonard & Leonard, and the annulment proceedings were at once instituted. Thinking that young Irene would change her mind if she traveled a little, her uncle, Mr. Doris, took her with him on a trip to Idaho. While away the proceedings came up for trial and were adjourned. The young bride returned again to Flatbush with her uncle and appeared contented. But the first good chance she got she eloped again, as detailed above.

As soon as Mr. Doris learned of the second elopement he went before Justice Steers, in Brooklyn, and asked for a warrant for Doran's arrest.

When asked if it was true that Irene was engaged to a man employed by Walter L. Main's (Irene's, now at Geneva, U. S., Mr. Doris said):

"I do not know whether that is true or not. They corresponded regularly, but I am not positive that they were engaged."

An Appeal.

Mrs. Walter L. Main is coming East. Broken in health and spirit, and disengaged, she is coming home to defend, as best she can, her name and her rights in the suit for divorce which her husband has instituted against her. She is almost penniless, for eighteen months she has been at Los Angeles, engaged in fruitless effort to check the disease which is ravaging her lungs, though she sought and found employment, and endeavored to be self supporting, though it was a difficult task. The salary of secretary, at best, is but a small one, and there were long weeks when the disease incapacitated her for work. Although she dragged her weak, weary and pain-stricken body to her desk as often as she possibly could, her funds gradually became exhausted by doctor bills and expenditures for medicine and nurses, and now she is destitute.

More, without money and without friends, this frail little woman, wasted by disease and thoroughly disheartened, is coming home to do battle in the courts. Before she lost her health and her husband's regard, she was a good wife, a hard and faithful worker, kind and considerate to her subordinates about the show.

It is said and repeated on every hand, that no woman in her position ever made less trouble about the show or showed greater consideration for the employees.

Many stories of her kind deeds have reached us, of merdes shown the sick, of comforts given the sorrowing, and of gifts to the needy. She was a kind-hearted woman.

Now that she has lost health, heart and home, shall she be allowed to enter this unequal battle alone and unarmed?

Will the circus folks of America, seeing her thus handicapped and without a chance, stand idly by, or will they come nobly and promptly to her relief?

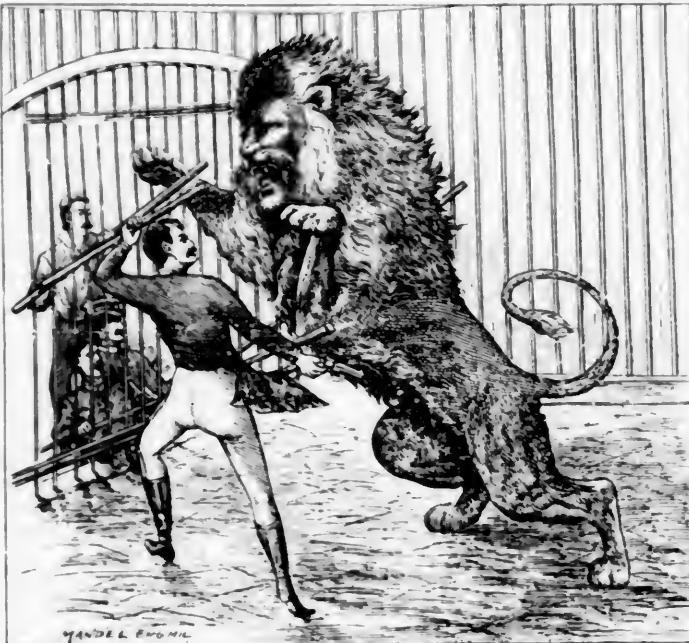

store. Some days after a letter, the envelope directed in Mr. Harris' handwriting, reached me. As I took it from the post the familiar chirography gave me a sudden shock, until I was reminded of my own habit of addressing the envelope first and writing the letter afterwards. The unfinished and unsigned letter was found on the manager's desk. Mr. Wilson penneled in the house of death a few lines explanatory to the unfilled second page, and the last words of one I esteemed so highly reached me like a voice of the departed. In a previous letter, the one before the last—Mr. Harris wrote me of the uncertainty of life, and of his own life in particular. In his sad talk off his friends have the consolation that he was prepared to go, and that his departure from life was painless, and that his departure from life was painless. There is no need of my adding eulogy here. Several articles for publication, prepared during his lifetime, and not yet in print, speak of him frankly, as I knew him, and emphasizes my opinion of the ability, amiability and character of William H. Harris. God bless his memory, and preserve and protect his loved ones!

CHARLES H. DAY.

Not the Tocci Twins.

A letter from the Barnum & Bailey winter quarters in Berlin to "The Billboard," says:

"In your issue of March 9 there appears a 'Special from Vienna,' stating that a surgeon had made all preparations to operate upon and separate 'Barnum's new Siamese Twins,' but was interfered with by the relatives." You further state that 'these twins are the Brothers Toed, first exhibited in America by Frank Huffner.'

Suits Against Buckskin Bill.

Four suits were recently filed in the Circuit Court at Paducah, Ky., against A. S. and Fletcher Terrell, proprietors of the Buckskin Bill Show. The plaintiffs are J. W. Devere and wife, who have a claim of $800; Nora and Kathleen Wren, $80; J. B. Wright and wife, $80; J. F. Breckenridge, $95. The plaintiffs allege that they secured judgment in Justice Barber's court against Buckskin Bill's Wild West, but the sheriff made his return of no property found. The plaintiffs ask that the incorporators of the show be required to pay into court the $800 corporation money to satisfy their claims for wages alleged to be due.

Mr. Breckenridge in a letter to "The Billboard" says: "I do not think the Buckskin Bill Wild West will go on the road this season, as the performers and employees of last season hold a judgment against the show for about $2,000, and it will have to be paid before the show can take the road."

The Story of a Letter.

Before me lies the last epistle penned by my long-time friend and correspondent, William H. Harris, and he never lived to complete it. When it reached me the writer was "in the cold, cold ground." It is dated Tuesday, Feb. 10, 1901, in the circus manager's firm, distinct and easily read running hand, filling one letter sheet and running a third of the way on the second. Monday morning, Feb. 11, I received a wire from Charles C. Wilson that his father-in-law had crossed to the other

In both statements you are in error: first, because there was no intention on the part of the surgeon to attempt an operation, and, second, because the twins mentioned are not the Toed. The Chinese and Siamese Twins referred to Soo San Lin and Tang San Lin were brought direct from China to Barnum & Bailey some two years ago, and have since been on exhibition with this show. They visited the professors here for the purpose of an X-ray examination, the bond of union is not at all like the Siamese Twins, Little Christine or the Tocci Brothers, but is similar to that of Radida and Dodida, the twin sisters exhibited by Barnum & Bailey in America in 1882.

You are further in error in stating that they have "but one pair of legs and one set of bowels between them." Examinations by the most eminent physicians in England, Scotland, Germany and Australia have resulted in a unified expression of opinion that the children each possess a complete set of organs.

"The Toed Twins" were exhibited by Barnum & Bailey during their season at Olympia, London, winter of 1889-90.

She needs funds—money to procure counsel and attorneys. At best the Ohio laws will give her little.

Good lawyers, however, can at least procure that little for her. She deserves it. She is entitled to it under every consideration of moral right and rectitude. Will you help?

"The Billboard" has been asked to conduct a subscription fund for her aid and relief, and has agreed to do so. Send in your subscription. Send it promptly. Her necessities are not so great as they are immediate.

Remember that of the cardinal graces—faith, hope and charity—the greatest of these is charity.

Gossip.

Publish your call in "The Billboard."

Ike Ellis, of the Robinson Shows, reported April 1.

Bunk Allen has the privileges with Buckskin Bill's Wild West.

Benny Lynch has gotten in almost two months' work already.

Charlie St. Clair, of Indianapolis, was a "Billboard" caller March 30.

The paper that publishes the most news deserves the most advertising.

Master James Brooks, slack wire artist, has signed for the coming season with King E. Zemmer's Royal American Shows, "A la Fin Dafarie."

E. H. Woods, accompanied by his wife, reached Cincinnati March 31, and registered at the Palace Hotel. Mr. Woods reported for duty April 1.

Denny Stark, an aerial performer and one-time member of the famous team of Stark and Zeino, died in New York March 25. His wife survives him.

There is a nice little stonette in the April "Munsey" called "A Circus Nun." It is by Katherine L. Mehl, and is well done, albeit without apologies to Miss Ryland.

The Gentry Show was prevented from giving a performance at Gainesville, Fla., on the night of March 25, on account of a heavy rain, which washed everything out. The afternoon house was big.

... Pete Sun and his staff of bill posters, lithographers and programmers started to spread their all-new paper on March 20. Their layout, horses, wagons, etc., are certainly swell, and will help to advertise the Sun Bros.' World's Progressive Shows, which open their tenth year on April 10.

Mrs. Lola Lee Earl writes that, in the estimation of several of her friends, "The Billboard" surpasses the Clipper. If that be true, now we wonder what the verdict will be six months or a year hence? We have hardly gotten a fair start yet. Before another year we will have the hottest thing that ever came down the pike.

George W. Hall, Jr., has bought some animals for his circus, now at winter quarters at Evansville, Ind. The roster of the show so far announced is as follows: E. D. Ferguson, in advance, with three assistants. The other people are, A. R. Bent, Ralph Conger, Len Drake, T. F. Kenney, T. L. Dunlap, Chester Roy, Neolia, Frank E. Lavell, C. L. Odell and wife, S. L. Lewis, C. R. Dryden, Julius Jepson, S. W. Anderson, J. C. Whitemeyer, Wm. Snous, Asa Turner, Jim Cherry will have charge of canvas, and Billy Williams in charge of stock.

Al. Armer, white clowning in a parade with the Haag's Show (the second day out), at Leavenworth, La., met with a severe accident. While driving a green mule in a January cart, the mule became frightened at a bicycle, and ran down an embankment, throwing Armer out on his head and shoulders, breaking the collar bone, injuring the shoulder and hurting him internally. He was carried to the doctor's office, where two physicians attended him, after which he was immediately put on a train and sent back to Leavenworth, where he is now at the house of Mr. P. W. Frederik, and is resting well. His physicians say he will be able to join the show in two or three weeks.

George Ringling, of circus fame, was in Pittsburgh the other day, en route home to Chicago from Europe, where he has been spending the winter. Mr. Ringling says that the English are wild over American amusement enterprises, and are more liberal in their patronage to such than to their own time-honored institutions. "The Barnum Show," said Mr. Ringling, "has made a barrel of money over there, and I doubt not will continue to do so for years to come. It is a stock company, you know, and is maintained largely by English capital, and, as the investment has turned out a veritable gold mine, the Britishers are looking anxiously for more schemes of a similar kind in which to put their spare coin. Whether another American circus would pay over there, however, I very much doubt, and I for one have no ambition to try the experiment."

THE BILLBOARD

Taking One's Own Medicine.

How I Broke into the Circus; and also Something about the People who Consider it Non-Professional to Advertise, but who are Firm Believers in Free Publicity.

By CHARLES H. DAY.

It is nothing nowadays to pick up a copy of "The Billboard" or any of the papers devoted to amusement interests and read the cards or wants of professionals. But it was not ever thus, as I well recall. Now you may read the personal address of John Drew and Jim Fluke—good on either end—side by side, followed by the announcement of Mand Adams and Gertie Fine.

While with Newcomb & Arlington at their minstrel hall, on Twenty-eighth street, near Broadway, in 1871, I became the New York correspondent of John Stetson's Sporting Times, writing on theatrical matters and incidentally looking after some of the Boston publisher and managers' other interests, considerably to my profit and a good deal more to my satisfaction. Being so well pleased with New York I elected to remain in the large town and not accompany the black band on tour. As it resulted, I was the better off for it financially, but the X a week for the letter from Stetson would not permit one to hang on in Gotham—except by the eyebrows. So, to add to my income, I contributed a series of humorous statistics to the New York Sunday Mercury, now extinct, but then a powerful and highly profitable and successful newspaper. It also issued a country edition, with the "Sunday" omitted, and a large share of the extra issue devoted to amusements. In an endeavor—a vain endeavor—to compete with the New York Clipper. And, by the way, I also wrote for the Clipper.

Fortunately, during the summer John Stetson came to town, and I made his acquaintance, to considerable advantage, selling him a serial and getting therefrom many jobs that he was glad to put in my way and I was joyful to execute. Stetson was coining money, and paid liberally. Although the ex-pedestrian was a terror to some of his employes, we never had a word and I was never more fairly treated by any one for whom I shed ink.

Occasionally I was called on for special writing or attention to some manager or star's interests, and I did not scruple for existence by any manner of means. But I had to spread lots of ink on paper to foot my bills. It costs a pretty penny to live in New York and keep up with the procession.

Some professional people were not loth to announce in the Clipper that they were "resting" or had "open time." A good many, in fact, of the younger performers and actors and managers were also tooling their teams and trying to sell their claims. That was what aroused the cupidity of the Mercury Folks in seeking to trespass in the Clipper's field of tall grass.

The growth of amusement advertising in the Clipper was slow, and it was some time before local managers used it as a medium or lent it any encouragement. Laura Keene was the first to lead the way. Being an Englishwoman, she, of course, was a reader and a believer in the class paper, because she appreciated its value by the knowledge and use of the London Era. And it may be remarked that the era was originally modeled in the same type as the Clipper and was devoted to sporting matters, and amusement interests as well. Later the era dropped the sports.

Living at the St. Charles Hotel, 648 Broadway the circus headquarters, I came in contact and acquaintance with many advance agents of the tent shows, and was a welcome visitor to Room No. 1, where they gathered to exchange stories and boast of the triumphs of the past season. A smart, sharp, jolly lot they were, and I wrote them up in the circus number of the Clipper in a big spread entitled "Room No. 1, or a Night With the Circus Folks."

By the time my yarn was in print I was ready to follow off a red wagon, and, being an advertiser, I took my own medicine and inserted the following card in the Clipper:

To Managers of First-Class CIRCUSES AND MENAGERIES,
CHARLES H. DAY.

New York Correspondent of the Sporting Times, Author of the "Humors of Show Life," published in the New York Mercury; also, "Alice Brayton," "Jersey Blues," "Actress and Minstrel," "Tip Hill" and numerous other novelettes, can be secured as

WRITER

For the Tenting Season of '72 and '73 by any Responsible Management. Five years' experience as an Advertiser. Two years Agent and Business Manager with Miss Laura Keene. Address care St. Charles Hotel, 648 Broadway, N. Y.

When this announcement came out in print I was called to account and "read out of meeting" by the sticklers, who looked upon advertising for an engagement as non-professional, and I believe that I would have been put under the ban and ostracized but for the fact that I was earning a dollar and could be touched to a limited extent.

Even some of my circus friends shook their heads and remarked: "I would like to see you get into the business, but that is not exactly the way to do it."

Those who did not like me anyhow just sulfited and turned up their noses and remarked:

"Upstart!"
"Mr. Fresh!"
"Bairn new!"
"Suh, what a gal!"

Well, being an advertiser, I did not feel guilty of any crime, and if I had disregarded the ethics of the profession, the matter was already past mending.

I couldn't see why I should go barefooted because the shoemaker's wife did. And I knew that even doctors and lawyers had no objection to publicity without expense. And where was the greater sin if you paid for it?

I did not cry over the adverse comments of my carping critics; neither did I smile. I will admit, I was firm in the opinion to ask for what you wanted was very proper. A personal experience satisfied me, for I had proved the problem by replying to an advertisement of Laura Keene in the Clipper and securing the engagement invited thereon.

Certainly there could be no harm in the agent's advertising; the manager needed the service and the agent needed the situation. The newspaper column served as the means of communication; that was the way I looked at it. All the good things of the amusement press are not for the manager alone.

For all the warnings of the false prophets, my want was supplied, and through the Clipper announcement, added to the influence of Mike Boyle, I became director of publications for John H. Murray, and remained in his employ for four years. And I am quite sure that neither Murray nor Boyle thought any the less of me because I advertised.

After that, when I was "at liberty," I made haste to herald the fact, and always successfully. In fact, I found such publicity better than direct application to a manager, circus, theatrical or minstrel. If a manager is much in need of you, he may wire in haste, but if you write he begins with the shrewd palaver:

"I think I might possibly use you at a moderate salary. You see, etc., etc., &c., &c."

Having time in correspondence, the applicant is held at arm's length and negotiated with. The advertisement of the agent or the performer opens competition to the advantage of the advertiser.

I am free to admit that up to a much later date in after years my occasional cards in the show sheets were a subject of sarcasm comment. In advertising, to get the object sought, I tried to make the announcement catchy, just as much so in my own interests as if I was penning it for a existing manager. And why not, pray?

I recall one call of mine in the column:

HIS PEN
CAN BE SEPIA'D,

Wasn't that cute?

It got me an engagement, and I'll tell the rest of it frankly. The very next we appended an advertisement similar to this:

BILL BOYKUS
TWO PENS

can be secured for the concert of any circus that pays salaries and does not feed the troupe on mankey bread.

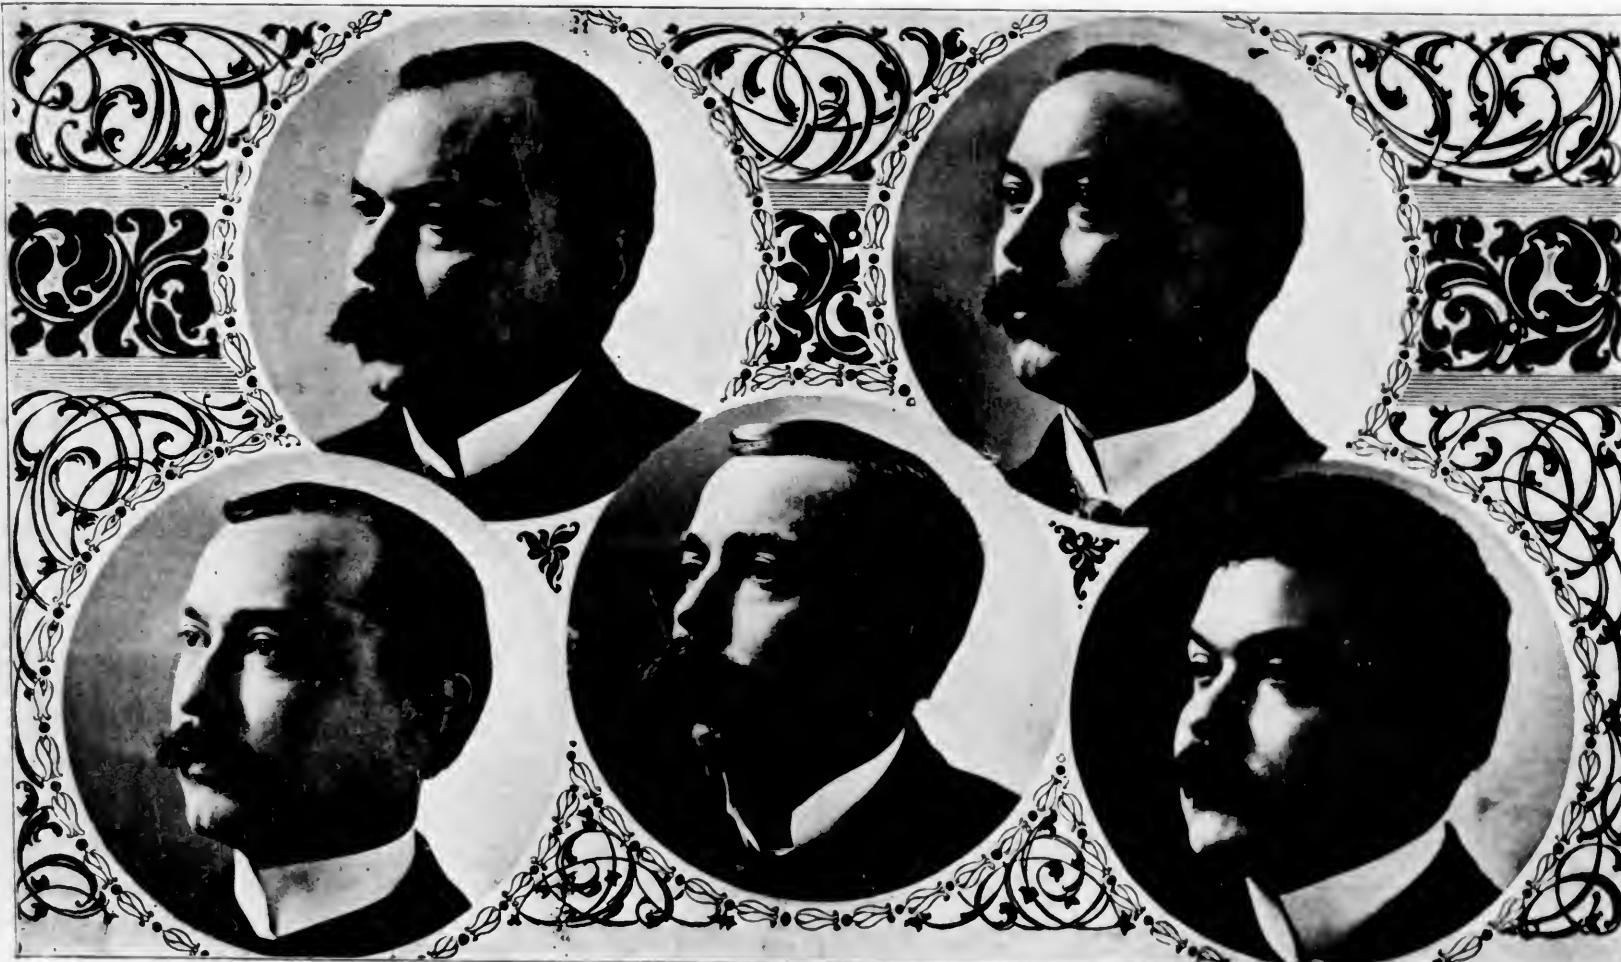

I never knew the result, but I will wager that fellow did not get lost in the shuffle.

American Posters.

Mr. Clarence Dean, press agent of the waltzes as follows regarding the effect of the Barnum & Bailey Show, now in Vienna, posters on Vienna people: "Our American posters have sold Vienna wild. Nothing like them was ever seen before, either in size or the quantity used. People stand in front of them so thickly that they even obstruct traffic. We were summoned by the police for interfering with the traffic on the streets, but we succeeded in persuading the court that we were not to blame because our bills are so attractive that people stand and gaze at them."

Story on Himself.

W. E. Franklin, the great circus agent, tells a rather good story about himself. He was walking one day through Terrace Park, a suburb of Cincinnati, when his thoughts were interrupted by a pleading voice, saying, "Oh, please, sir, will you open this gate for me?" Looking down, Mr. Franklin saw a little girl of about eight, with a cherubic face, framed in sunny curls, and has tened to comply with the request. He held back the gate for the little maiden to pass through, and when she thanked him with a smile, he asked if she was not big enough to open the garden gate herself. "Oh, yes, sir," she replied sweetly, "but you see the paint is wet and I should have dirtled my hands."

THE RINGLING BROTHERS,
Whose Great Show will open at the Coliseum, Chicago, April the 10th.

THE BILLBOARD

Circus Gossip.

Mr. Ringling has returned from the Phila. Exposition. The Klumpp of the Walter Main Show, April 19 and 20 in Philadelphia.

The return of the Wallace Show, also, arrived at Cincinnati March 25.

John Vernon, formerly of the Boldson, is now manager of "The Angel of Valley."

Ed Oakley (diver) left Chicago to the Sells-Forbes-Pugh Show as clown for the tour.

It is reported that Walter L. Main called to Geneva and declared all graft off, on the short is buried.

Tom Griffen has contributed $10 to the Hamilton Fund. This brings the total sum raised for her relief up to $202.

A. W. Thompson, a well-known showman and best known as "Zeko," is connected at the Central Theater of San Fran.

P. J. Murphy, president of the Bill Post's Union, has resigned his office to accept a position with Ringling Bros. Big Show.

When Warren A. Patrick sailed from New York to Savannah, some two dozen of his friends assembled at the pier to see him off. He was:

Sam F. Cline, who has been agent for Simpson's Indoor Circus, closed with the show in Chicago to join the Ringling Bros. stock feeder for the coming season.

The distinction among animals requiring a steep belongs to the elephant. In spite of its capacity for hard work, the elephant, it never sleeps more than four, or occasionally five, hours.

"The Billboard" is growing at a greater rate than any other publication in America. It has the call in the circus, fair and meet trade. Everybody likes it, and everybody is boasting for it.

George E. Hatcher, formerly press agent of the City Opera House, Cincinnati, and Masonic Rod Garden, Chicago, and a newspaper man of ability, will do press work in advance with the Sells-Gray Shows.

John F. Robinson, owner of the Robinson Shows, is quite ill at his home in Terrace Park near Cincinnati. The "Governer" has a rigged constitution, and his thousands of friends will hope for his speedy recovery.

R. M. Harvey, contracting agent of the Wallace Shows, has resigned the management of his newspaper at Perry, Ia., and is resting on his farm near the Des Moines River, preparatory to resuming work with the Wallace people.

Clarence Horton, of the Big Four Rallies in Cincinnati, is a great favorite among the circus agents. He is a great raver, and numbers his friends by hundreds. All the boys play for the Big Four on Horton's account.

Mr. Charles Hugo, manager of the Willard Sells & James H. Gray Side Show, at 14th New York on the steamer City of Alabam, from Savannah, Ga., last Monday night, and is continuing business with pleasure during his sojourn in the metropolis.

C. E. Rector, proprietor of Burke's Uncle Tom's Cabin tent performances, has just recovered from a severe illness. The show is in winter quarters at Lincoln, Neb. C. T. Brookway will again be general agent. The company will number thirty people.

George Hines is going to put on snake eaters for a side issue at Buffalo. He has a sole privilege for all theaters, at all times, in conjunction with Fred McElmahan. Mrs. Hines, in partnership with Louis Steinberg, will put on the snake eaters.

The roster of Barr Brothers Shows is as follows: Allen Reeves, boss canvasman; John Parkin, Joseph Burke, Samuel Long, Fred Jones, assistants; Thomas Brown, bartender man; Jerome Hunstein, boss property man; George Kehn, James McCay, assistants.

Lou Hutchinson, a showman who expected to go out with the Binks'kin Bill's Wild West, was arrested on the charge of burglary in Paducah, Ky., the other day. He accused of stealing $400 from Sam Good's saloon. The result of his preliminary trial has not been ascertained.

The Bigall Brothers' Circus will go out this year with 40 people and 45 head. They have everything new. The roster is: F. C. Bigall, general manager; F. E. Bigall, treasurer; J. G. Bigall, superintendent of privileges. J. D. Bigall will have charge of the advance, with three assistants.

Gus Jaffet has entered into partnership with W. H. Kindt, and they will put out a new outfit. The roster, so far as arranged, is as follows: Proprietors, Gus Jaffet and Mrs. W. H. Kindt; treasurer, W. Wilber; advance, George Christ; captain, George Kaufman, boss hustler.

The Ashland Club, of Chicago, gave a major circus and side show on March 29. The clubhouse bore a striking resemblance to an old-fashioned traveling circus. Everything pertaining to the "real thing" - spiders, ringmasters, clowns, barkers and vendors were presented in all their primitive glory.

M. L. Clark's Combined Shows open their season at Alexandria, La., March 24. The show has been considerably enlarged in every way and entirely refurbished. A feature this season will be a $1,500 military band organ, which is used as a second band in parades. Fred Van Gundy is the secretary, and M. L. Clark, the sole owner.

Mc. G. Spicer Bros., Brooklyn, N. Y., have long been recognized as among the most reliable manufacturers of tents and goods of a like nature. They guarantee positive satisfaction, and willingly return money where they fail to please. In their advertisement they quote some very attractive prices, and samples and catalogue will be sent free.

The Harrison Brothers write that they are highly pleased with the tent made for them by Vanderherschen, of Philadelphia. It is of peculiar design, and must have been a difficult affair to lay out and build, as the ground line is egg-shape. One end is but seventy feet in diameter, while the other is one hundred and ten feet. They say it handles well and is very durable.

W. H. Lushbaugh, the practical tent maker of Covington, Ky., has an immense prestige by reason of the fact that he makes the Barnum & Bailey canvas. Other showmen argue that he must be all right to hold Mr. Bailey's trade year after year. It secures him many an order, and as he always turns out excellent work, he holds his trade and is rapidly building up his business.

The editor of "The Billboard" acknowledges the receipt of an invitation to attend the opening performance of the Buffaloe Bill Show at Madison Square Garden, New York City, on Tuesday night, April 2. The invitation is signed by the great general representative of the show, Louis E. Cooke. The Ringling opening, at the Coliseum, Chicago, will take place Wednesday night, April 10.

Col. Sam Dawson writes as follows, viz.: "In looking over the advance of the Buffalo Bill Show, I read the names of Major John Burke, Mike Doyle, Dick Ball, 'Pip' Seman, Henry Henders and Al Biel. All of them are sixty years old or over, and what a sextet of veterans! all proficient, all loyal, all experienced, and postmasters in their several lines. The owners of the Cody Show evidently believe in seasoned men."

One of the finest places in the world for the collection of a menagerie is Port Alice, the British Government headquarters in Uganda. The taxes on the natives of this protectorate amount to $200,000 a year, and the generous protectors allow the taxes to be paid in kind. So it happens that in Port Alice are assembled just now five elephants, a zebra, twenty chimpanzees, and many other monkeys, several warthogs, water antelopes, snakes and cranes.

A show which will go out under canvas this spring is Remond, Eaton & Harrison's Dramatic-Vanderlye Company, who will open May 6 at Flora, Ill. The following performers have signed: Miss Virgine Rankin, Harry Koster, high wire, John Santers, contortion; Babette Birz, soubrette; F. J. Boyle, juggler; Martyn and Davenant, sketch; Frank and Mabel Colton, vocalists; Tess Higbee, Bandall Brothers, black face, and the three Gaither Brothers, gymnasts.

Having closed a short but highly successful season as manager of the Elite Ten Nights in a Bar Room Company, H. Stanley Lewis has rejoined Welsh Bros.' Rail road Shows as advertising manager, making his fifth season with that firm. Mrs. Lewis has charge of reserved seats with the same attraction their third season. Mr. Lewis will take out an augmented Ten Nights' company next fall with band and orchestra featuring Baby Lamette as Little Mary.

Charles G. Kilpatrick, the one-legged cyclist, who was the sensational feature at the Lagoon last year, when he coasted on his wheel down a high and narrow stair, has been engaged by the Forepaugh-Sells-Forbes Show as the bright particular feature of the company at the Madison Square Garden, opening on April 22. This year he will ride on a specially built automobile up and down a stair 120 feet long, 15° of the building at an angle of 40 degrees. Kilpatrick, as the "Mirror" says, certainly tries to live up to his title, "The Roughest Rider of Them All."

Mrs. Louise Aymer, wife of Wm. Aymer, and mother of the late Fred Aymer, died March 15, at her residence, 25th East 12th street, New York, of apoplexy. Two sons, Oscar and Louis, survive her. She was widely known in the profession, having been in the business all her life, first as a rider and dancer and later in dramatic business. She was a most estimable lady, and was loved by every one. Her casket was profusely covered with choice flowers. She was laid to rest at Kensico Park, in the family plot, Sunday, March 17.

Fleming & La Fay's Diane Show, under a canvas, is organizing at Buffalo, N. Y. A new follower of the red wagons. Their opening date at Buffalo is May 15. The whole layout will be new, and the roster will be G. H. Treat, business hustler and contractor; Harry Johnson's colored band of six pieces; Ivy La Fay, snake charmer; Little Gossips, novelty dancer; Billy Carlton, magician and Punch; Little St. Devil, tattooed lady; Fred Merviney, strong man; Harrelle Day, Oriental dancer, also carrying a Bosom platform; William Carl Fleming, manager; Ivy La Fay, treasurer.

The roster of Cap Stewart's Family Show, which opens at Ft. Wayne, April 27, is as follows: Captain W. H. Stewart, proprietor and manager; Mrs. Captain W. H. Stewart, trapeze; Julian A. Short, local trainer; W. D. Van Troter, agent; Dad Toronto, master of horses; Frank Raugh, master of canaries; David Meyer, master of property; Dorothy Lucas, in charge of costume; Hattie Stewart, in charge of refreshment stand; Little Stewart, in charge of reserved seats. Performers and musicians engaged for the show: Flynn Bowery, R. D. Stewart, Charlie Stewart, Henry Boyce, Shepherd Brothers, Frank Brinkhoff, Walter Lyons, Mrs. Captain Stewart will have charge of all mail.

It may not be generally known that William Alther is the largest individual owner of Shetland ponies for amusements in this country today, but nevertheless it is a fact, as he controls over 300 head, and is ever ready to buy more. The pony tracks now controlled by Mr. Alther are at Delmar Gardens, St. Louis, where he has 48 head; Washington Gardens, Los Angeles, Cal., 26 head; Coney Island, the famous resort at Milwaukee, Wis., 25 head, as well as other privileges, such as the miniature railway striking machines, etc. At the Boston State grounds, Huntington Avenue, Boston, Mass., 17 head; at the Shoot-the-Shutes Park at Chicago, Ill., where there are 35 head located, as well as many Western burrows to please the ladies and children, and at Euclid Beach Park, Cleveland, O., with 22 head, as well as the miniature railroad.

Richard A. Coe's Union Shows opened their season March 28, at Grismer Lodge, La., to satisfactory business. The roster of the show is as follows: Hattie Richard, proprietor; J. B. Morton, manager; Joe Pichard, equestrian director; Signor Von Allan, manager side show; W. L. Brown, general agent, with three assistants, T. L. Welden, in charge of band, with seven mouthpieces; Johnny Smith, in charge of concert. Performers: Signor Von Allan, hurdle pony, riding dog and monk; the Richards, acrobats; the Osbornes, triple bars; Fred Faber, contortionist; Ed Leo Moind, wire and juggler; Shirley Bourne, flying wings; Johnny Smith and Teddy Osborne are the funny fellows; Jack Davis, bass cymbalist, with ten men; Herbert Moore, in charge of stock, with eight men; Kit Davis, bass property man, with four men.

Correction.

A careless compositor, together with a negligent proofreader, last week made us say that E. H. Wood had accepted a post then as "general" agent, when it should have been "special" agent of the John Robinson Shows. We do not believe any one has been seriously misled by the item, still, in instore to all concerned, and especially to Mr. Oliver Scott, we feel that a correction is due. Mr. Oliver Scott will fill the position of general agent of the Robinson Shows again this year.

Advertising Tableaux.

Some time ago all the merchants in Los Angeles, Cal., were invited to compete in a friendly rivalry to exhibit the most beautiful picture or best design for advertising purposes, to be exhibited upon the stage of the largest theater in the city. All the various trades were represented, and the competition was very keen in some lines; people paid the regular admission charges and were entertained during intervals between the scenes by solos and quartets. A young lady walked upon the stage amidst a scene representing a garden; as soon as she stepped forward a dozen little ostriches from the South Pasadena Ostrich Farm were turned loose before the footlights, while others were held in leash by robins. Thus perambulating around, surrounded by these curious little freaks, she attracted a great deal of attention, and, according to the votes collected by the judges at the end of the three entertainments given, received the largest number. Upon her head was a lovely array of white ostrich feathers; her parasol was made entirely of large ostrich feathers and represented in value a hundred pounds; around her neck was a magnificent ostrich bag. Added to these, the natural charm of the lady "brought down" the house and carried off the first prize for the South Pasadena Ostrich Farm. We are indebted for a photo to Mr. E. Horsfall Rydell, which was taken by Reynolds, Los Angeles, Cal. The tableau that won the prize is illustrated in the current issue of the Strand by a half-tone of a photo by Reynolds, Los Angeles.

Merchant and Circus.

Away down on the Indian River, in Florida, there is a town called Titusville which boasts of as enterprising a newspaper as can be found in the whole country. The paper in question is the Indian River Advocate, and is published by Graham & Walton. In a recent issue they say:

A CIRCUS COMING.

We understand a circus will exhibit in Titusville on the 22d inst. The coming of such an exhibition is always an important event. A circus is always a benefit to the merchants. Many people come from long distances to see the show and, incidentally, do a good deal of trading while in town. Railroad companies should give excursion rates on such occasions; and we do not believe it is a sound or wise policy for any town to impose an exorbitant license tax, we understand the coming circus had so much difficulty in obtaining an eligible lot at a reasonable price to erect their tents, that the advance agent was in doubt whether it would pay for the show to come to Titusville. We had never given the subject much thought heretofore, but it seems to us a town government which renders it difficult for a circus to visit the place by imposing almost prohibitory conditions, stands in its own light. We feel confident the coming of a circus at this season will be the means of causing at least a hundred people to visit Titusville from down-river points, especially if the railroad acts liberally by giving excursion rates; and the crowd that comes to town to see the circus will leave many hundreds of dollars with our merchants, and carry home lots of merchandise, particularly Christmas goods. Always welcome the circus for the sake of the small boy and for the sound business principles of which we have hinted. The Indian River Advocate enjoys the distinction of having spoken first upon a matter upon which "The Billboard" will have much to say hereafter. Why will a lot of intelligent citizens tax themselves severely, both in the matter of time, ingenuity and money, to get up a celebration, street fair, fair, etc., in their town or city, as the case may be, for the purpose of attracting visitors and securing their trade? Why will they, we repeat, tax a circus which accomplishes identically the same results without any cost to the merchants whatever? Is it wise? Is it sound business policy? Is there any rhyme or reason in it whatever? It may not be generally known, but it is a fact, nevertheless, that in nine out of every ten towns that a circus exhibits in it actually leaves more money in the town than it takes out. Paradoxical as it may seem, it can be demonstrated beyond a shadow of a doubt. The percentage of out-of-town people at the night show is always very small, for the reason that farmers and excursionists from adjacent towns always attend the afternoon performance in order to get home before dark. The expense of a circus will not only absorb the entire receipts of the night house, but will also make great inroads on the amount taken in at the afternoon performance. The press of the country at large will have to take this matter up sooner or later. Municipal greed in the matter of circuses will have to be curbed. The American circus is a national institution, and its welfare is seriously menaced.

Advertisers' Small Talk.

Satisfied customers are the greatest of all ads.

If you use type posters, be as simple and plain in your text as possible.

"Keep Posted" is a motto that every advertiser ought to adopt and be guided by.

If you use posters, you need not trouble about circulation. Posters reach everybody in town.

Get your posters into the country. Your bill poster will manage it for you if you make it an object to him.

"Funny Signs of the Times," an illustrated article by Ludlow Brownell in the current issue of the Strand, is well worth reading.

Handbills are always good, but they must be carefully put out. This costs money. Better not use them at all unless you are prepared to pay for careful, first-class distribution.

Albert Holby has advertised for a lame wife. Holby is lame, and he says he would like to have a life companion who could limp in step with him. Holby works in an artificial limb store—Cleveland (O.) Press.

The "want" advertisements are often funny, says the Toledo (O.) Blade. A late instance is that of woman who advertised for "work in a boarding house; one that can go home nights." A boarding house that can go home nights would be an innovation.

An order has just been received by the National Advertising Company for 1,000,000 foot rulers. The order is from the Prudential Insurance Company of Newark, N. J. It is thought that the rulers, which will be of hard wood, will be turned out at the rate of 20,000 per day. Syracuse (N. Y.) Standard.

The Gunning System, of Chicago, have been mailing a booklet to druggists and soda water dispensers in the list of towns they are now publishing for the Coca Cola Company, of Atlanta, Ga. This work covers the States of Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Maryland and North and South Carolina.

Posters are not as cheap in small lots as they are in large quantities. The larger the edition, the lower the price per sheet. The temptation to obtain a low price frequently moves advertisers to content themselves with one design, when it is advisable to have three or four. Better pay a little more for smaller editions and have a greater variety of designs in your posters.

The man who came all the way from Salem, Ore., to Kenton, O., to marry a lady of whom he had learned through a medium of an advertisement in a Cincinnati paper, might have been a good example of how advertising pays if he had not found her advanced age a sufficient reason for refusing to marry her. Findlay (O.) Republic.

Retail advertising is the latest addition to the ranks of the advertising journals, which, if we mistake not, now number 115. For all that, though, the newcomer may fill a "long felt want." Floyd T. Short and Harvey W. Carey will preside over its destinies as president and secretary, respectively. The subscription price is $2 per year, and its offices are at 350 Dearborn street, Chicago.

Imprints.

The soliciting agents are beginning to want the imprint, and, as usual, the poster printers are ready to concede it.

Competition is so fierce that they will grant and allow anything in order to get an order. Prices went to the dogs long ago. In New York there is apparently "no bottom" to rate cutting on the big commercial orders.

And yet the movement toward an association languishes.

"What fools these mortals be."

Poster Pointers.

John P. Church will attend Ringling's opening in Chicago.

E. H. Macoy and J. D. Barton are not interested in the Allen and Quinn Minstrels.

There were eight poster printers after the big Forbark's poster order in Chicago, but Sam W. Rake got it.

The Donaldson Litho. Company has five other printing houses helping to get out their orders.

E. H. Macoy has returned to his desk at the National after enjoying a "washout" at West Baden.

If ten poster printers will request us to do so, "The Billboard" will call a meeting to talk association.

D. Philip Phillips has been engaged by the Greve Litho. Company, of Milwaukee, as Chicago representative. He has offices at 125 Washington street.

J. B. Austin, New York representative of the Erie Job Co., stole out to Chicago and quietly gathered in Lincoln J. Carter's big order last week.

It is expected that the plea of appeal of the Courier Company vs. Donaldson Company will be decided by the United States Supreme Court next week.

Mark Murphy's schedule of liabilities as disclosed by his discharge in bankruptcy, shows that he owed the W. J. Morgan Company, of Cleveland, $500, and the Brooklyn Times Printing Company $1,100.

M. B. Raymond, New York representative of the Russell Morgan Company, took the third degree in Masonry at Pacific Lodge, No. 223, March 21. Al. McPhail, of the Forepaugh Sells Shows, and Ed Salter, of Broadhurst, went through with him.

The human mind is easily fascinated by the extraordinary. Whatever is superlative in its way becomes at once the absorbing topic of conversation. The richest man in the world, the fastest horse in the world, the biggest fool in the world—the press makes these the subjects of its comments, to the exclusion of the things which are not phenomenal.

The press agent of the circus knows this well and works on these lines almost altogether. It is effective, too—wonderfully so. But it can not be sustained for any great length of time in any one community.

Repetition and iteration will in time make any story commonplace, and commonplace is the antithesis of extraordinary.

No merchant can afford to adopt the circus agent's methods. He would only succeed in being grandiose, highflying and ridiculous.

Themistocle's Advertisement.

A recently discovered poster found among some old manuscripts in Athens turns out to have been made for or by Themistocles. He advertises a piece of land for sale, and it is a good ad, too, although as old as the hills.

The Greek sage understood the science of suggestive inducement.

In speaking of his land he said, "It lay by a good neighbor."

Strangely enough, now, after a lapse of years, the first query in regard to land or lots is, "What sort of a neighborhood is it in?"

Cincinnati Theaters.

Mr. James A. Hackett, who was playing in the "Pride of Jennie" at the Walnut last week, broke down during the performance Tuesday night, and it is very likely that he can not appear upon the stage again for a long time, and possibly never. He is suffering from a severe attack of nervous prostration. Mr. Hackett has gone East for a much-needed rest.

The greatest of living magicians, Kellar, who leads his world by his mechanical tricks, is the attraction at the Walnut this week, and is pleasing large audiences.

One of the prettiest of society plays, "The Lost Paradise," is being presented in an admirable manner by the Pike Stock Company this week. This splendid company will close its season next week, and then go to Detroit for an extended engagement.

The Olympia Show, one of the first class vaudeville combinations of the season, is at the Columbia this week for a re-union engagement. Several new acts are presented. Al Leech and the three Roselands is a new feature. Will M. Crossy and Blanche Dame offer a new sketch, "The Key of Life." Mlle. Adèle and her troupe of performing birds are also a new feature. Others on the bill are Johnson, Davenport and Loredo, gymnasts, the Durangs, equilibrists, Bertie Fowler, minstrel; Weston and Herbert, must-d'act, and Jack Norworth, monologist.

The attraction at the People's this week is Bryant's Burlesques. Besides the popular Harry Bryant, the company includes Prentiss and Saville, Nolan and White, Kennedy and Quatrelli, Perry and Burns, Lee and Chapman, Perry and Hyland. Two burlets, with Harry Bryant and "The Girl in White" as features, are very lively.

One of Lincoln J. Carter's sensational melodramas, "Down Mobile," is pleasing the patrons of the Lyceum this week.

That laughable masked farce, "McFadden's Bow of Flats," is presented at Gentry's this week in a new dress. A number of clever specialties are introduced by Harry Watson, the comical tramp cyclist; the musical Frederick Brothers, Bobby Ralston, Ima Thomas, Frank Cotton and his educated donkeys, McWatters and Tyson, John Price, Jerry Sullivan, Jenilee Lamont, Mozo Lang and others well known in vaudeville work.

C. H. Roberts, the modern Samson, is the leading feature in the circus halls of Beck's Wonder World this week. All Baba, the Oriental magician, remains for another week. In the theater is a bright vaudeville show, in which Mr. and Mrs. Larry Shaw, the Two Hewitts, Smith and Chester and other good performers appear.

Chicago Chatter.

This is a bad week for the theaters. There has been almost a steady rain for the past week, and, with cold winds, has kept a great many away from the shows.

At the Illinois Miss Ilida Spong is doing a fair business in "Lady Huntworth's Experience." She has not the drawing attraction which the shows that preceded her had.

"Sag Harbor" at the Grand Opera House, with its realistic domesticity and quaint simplicity, began its second week with crowded houses.

At Powers' Theater John Hare has commenced his third and final week in "The Gay Lord Quex," Annie Russell in "A Royal Family" follows.

James O'Neill is still doing a big business in "Monte Cristo" at McVicker's. A benefit for the Actors' Fund occurred Thursday, March 28.

"Greater Than King" still holds the boards at the Dearborn. Play and patronage improving with each performance.

At the Studebaker Miss Esther Ellsworth, the new prima donna, made her debut in the role of Violetta in "La Traviata," and she made a pleasing impression.

The Victoria filled all the seats twice on Sunday with the drama, "Against the Tide," and the business continues good.

At Hopkins' that great spectacular melodrama, "Sondan," is doing a good business, with vaudeville between acts.

James J. Jeffries in "The Man From the West" has moved over to the Alhambra, doing a good business. Crowds hasten to see him act; crowds outside to see how he looks.

At the Academy the Royal Lilliputians are doing a nice business. Next week "Treasure Island."

Go Won to Mohawk in "The Flaming Arrow" opened her first week at the Bijou. Second week's bill unannounced.

"Cowslip Farm" opened at the Criterion to fair business only.

At Sam T. Jack's the Oriental Burlesques,

At the Trocadero the Rose Hill English Folly Company.

At the Diamond Henek & Fennessy's Bambers Company.

Irwin's Theater, a Jewish company gave "Gismonda" in Yiddish.

At the Auditorium Thursday and Friday the Toledo Orchestra gave two concerts. Saturday afternoon Joseph Hoffman gave a piano recital.

At Middleton's Clark Street Museum, "The Cornstalk Gantess."

At the Olympia Theater, Kara, the juggler and acrobat, is the headliner of a large bill, comprising Thorn and Carlton, Tom Lewis, Sam Ryan and many others.

At the Haymarket the Nelson tammy of aerobatics will be seen in a new act.

At the Chicago Opera House Clifford and Huth will head a large list of vaudeville stars. Sam, Kitty and Clara Morton, Smith and Fuller, St. Guyx Brothers and Minnie Forrester, Lawrence Crane and many others.

Gleete's comedy, "Because She Loved Him So," is drawing very nicely at the Great Northern.

Louisville Gossip.

Tommy Nelson, treasurer of the Avenue Theater, in this city, spent several days in Chicago last week, making arrangements for the new summer theater to be run the coming summer near Jacob Park. Mr. Nelson is booking first-class vaudeville talent, and wants the best on the market. Sosman & Lands, of Chicago, are now at work painting the drop curtain.

It is rumored that the lessees of the theater to be built in connection with the new Masonic Temple will pay a rental of $9,000 per year. No ground has yet been broken for the new building, although it is supposed to be ready for the beginning of the fall season in September.

Meany's Theater.—E. S. Willard is playing to crowded houses during the entire week. Next week James K. Hackett in "The Pride of Jennie."

The Auditorium.—The United States Marine Band played to a crowded house on March 28. Next week Mrs. Fliske in "Rebecca Sharp."

Avenue Theater.—Byrne Brothers' new "Eight Bells" during entire week to good business. Next week, Smith O'Brien in "The Gamekeeper."

The Temple Theater Company.—Meffert-Eagle Stock Company in "The Scales of Justice," with Valadita and her lions and Wedderburn and Shepherd, song illustrators, and polyscopic to furnish the vaudeville features, had good houses during the week.

The Buckingham Theater.—Minee & Van's Bohemian Burlesques doing good business. Next week the Knickerbockers.

Manager James B. Camp, of the Auditorium, has definitely decided to open his theater during the coming summer with vaudeville. Mr. Charles B. Brown, manager of the Columbia Theater, St. Louis, will have entire charge of the attractions, and promises to give the city the best summer attraction it has ever had. No expense will be spared to get the best people to furnish the entertainment.

J. W. BRIGMAN.

San Francisco Gossip.

Thought I would drop you a few lines to let you know about the condition of the show business in San Francisco and in the surrounding country. All the shows in San Francisco have done very well, although Lent has affected them a little.

The Alcazar does a big business right along, and the Central Theater does a very good business. The Central is a new theater located in Central Park, and connected with the Central Park attractions. It is a very large house, with a seating capacity of about 2,500, but it is possible to accommodate 3,000 in it. E. J. McCarthy is managing Central Park, where there is a Filipino Village at present.

I attended the Tivoli yesterday afternoon, Wednesday, and all the acts were very good. There is one act especially good, the cats.

At the Alhambra "The Angel of the Alley" is playing. They opened big, but have fallen off. Show for two weeks. "The Telephone Girl" at the California has caught on. The Columbia, with "The Highwayman," is not doing very well. It is to be here for another week. The Tivoli did a very big business with "Wizard of the Nile." Last Monday they opened with "The Wedding Day," of course, this is, in a little opposition to the Columbia. The Tivoli is an opera house that plays opera all the year round, partly grand opera, but mostly comic opera.

The Sembrich Grand Opera Company opened very large at the Grand Opera House here, but Madame Sembrich had to cancel her engagement for last night on account of a cold.

There are quite a number of free shows here, the Olympia, the Thalia and Kapp & Street's. They are doing a good business. There are two continuous shows and cinematograph parlors on Market street. They do well.

Whatever show in the line of a circuses comes here this year will do well. It has been a very prosperous year. The crops are good, and the oil excitement has made things very lively in the southern part of the State. Morris and Rowe's Trained Animal Show has been showing here, but they did not do as well as last year. I attribute this to the fact of their having been here twice within a year, and besides the Gentry Show followed them last time, and I hear the Gentry show is coming again. Morris and Rowe claim that they cleared $12,000 last year.

Mark Thall is one of the most popular managers on the Pacific Coast. He goes East next month to get attractions for the Central and Alcazar. If you gentlemen should meet him while he is on his Eastern tour please do all you can for him. He is a very nice fellow. Yours,

A. W. THOMSON (Zeke).

Indianapolis Items.

Grand Opera House. Although there are one or two weak features on the bill, this week holds up pretty well the reputation of the house for furnishing clever and bright entertainment for its patrons. The bill has no steady headliner this week. Harry C. Stanley and Doris Wilson head the bill with their sketch, "Before the Ball." Mr. Stanley's imitations were very clever. The next act on the bill is the Streator Zonies. Alice Shaw and her two daughters do a rather clever whistling act. Following are Sisson and Wallace. In a sketch entitled "My Wife's Presents," Joseph Santley proves to be a lad with a fine baritone voice. Terry and Elmer do a very neat turn. Little Leslie in a singing specialty, followed by Dempsey and Mack and company in a sketch entitled "A Man of Character."

Park Theater. March 21, 22 and 23 "East Lynne" played to big business. Every seat was sold before the curtain raised for each performance. The show was given by employable people. March 25, 26 and 27, "Me and Mother" played to big business. March 28, 29 and 30, "Kidnapped in New York" opened to S. P. O. April 1, 2 and 3, the famous Brothers Byrne in "New Bells." April 4, house dark. April 5 and 6, Mrs. Fliske in "Becky Sharpe" plays to advanced prices, which is something out of the ordinary for the Park.

Empire. March 25, 26 and 27, the High Rollers opened to fair business. This show was not what this house is used to. The company was not composed of many male performers, as quite a number of them belong to the White Rats, which seemed to be having difficulty with this show. March 28, 29 and 30, Watson's Americans opened to big business. The show is clean throughout. Week of April 1 the house will be dark. Week of April 8, City Club Burlesque Company.

English. March 25, "Foxy Quiller" opened to big business. March 26 and 27, Francis Wilson in "The Monks of Malaibar." March 28, 29 and 30, Harry Lacey in "The $19 Alarm" opened to packed business. Harry Lacey is the central figure in his original creation of Jack Manley, the hero.

Zoo. The attendance at the Zoo Monday night exceeded that of a week ago. Many ladies were noticed among the audience.

NOTES.

The Billboards' Union took a large amount of tickets for the ball to be given by the Laundry Girl's Union, April 8.

The Troc brush handles sold by the Empire Bill Posting Company are selling very fast. There has been a great demand for these new handles. Thanks to the ad in "The Billboard."

Jersey Wishard says there was a slight mistake in regard to his baby. It weighs twelve pounds instead of eight pounds. It is named Elizabeth Josephine Wishard. Jersey says if it had been a boy he would have made a bill poster out of him.

John Miller and Ben Tullen leave next week to join the Robinson Show.

Philip Kendall is negotiating with A. M. Oswald to take charge of the Commercial Bill Posting plants at Anderson and Kokomo.

J. L. Weed, advertising agent at the Grand, leaves for Buffalo at the close of the season, where he will be connected in the advertising line at the Exposition.

Philip Kendall, of the Kendall Advertising Company, has taken full charge of the Inter-Orion paper. The paper is a weekly published here in Indianapolis and distributed through the gas belt. Mr. Kendall will have full charge of the advertising columns.

Mr. Joe Waddell, the smiling press man for Mr. Bostock, will soon leave for the Buffalo Exhibition, where he will be connected with Bostock's enterprise. Mr. Waddell made quite a number of friends here, especially among the newspaper men. He will be sadly missed by a great number of friends here in Indianapolis.

Daniel Judge, assistant advertising agent for the Grand, leaves April 16 to join the Robinson Circus. He will be with the advertising car No. 2.

New Orleans News.

Academy of Music ("The Home of Burlesque"). Charles E. Parson Davies, manager. This is the last week of the successful burlesque, "Tribute," as put on by Harry Morris and his shapely maids. It has proved very amusing. Matt Morgan's "real things" meet popular favor. Next week Manager Morris puts on "The Mormon Wives" and a new and enlarged olio. Myrtle Tressider is still a headliner. Busness continues to the top notch.

Crescent Theater.—W. H. Rowells, manager. Week of March 24 to 30, "Brown's in Town" had large patronage. "My Friend From India," March 31 to April 6.

Tulane Theater.—W. H. Rowells, manager. Marguerite Sylva and her opera company in "The Princess Ogle," March 24 to 30, proved remunerative to the management. The Lees, hypnotists, March 31 to April 6.

Grand Opera House.—H. Greenwald, manager. "The World Against Her," made famous by Kate Claxton, is this week's production of the Baldwin-Melville Stock Company. For week of March 31 Manager Baldwin is preparing a spectacular production of the celebrated burlesque, "The Black Crook." He is not sparing either money or time in making it as elaborate as possible.

Roehm's New Theater.—John T. Cochran, manager. This house, formerly Wengler's, is undergoing a general overhauling, and opens to the public Sunday night, March 31, with the Olympia Opera Company in "Salad Pasta." The next opera, Sunday, April 7, "Fra Diavolo."

NOTES.

"The Billboard" is to be complimented for its handsome street fair edition gotten out last week. Many of its readers here said it was a "stunner."

So that the new Olympia Theater can be completed in the time scheduled, it has been found necessary to have the workmen work on Sunday.

The Great American Comedy Company is being organized here, and is expected to work out north by April 15. Some clever people are with the show. May Carson will be featured as soubrette.

The Fired & Flushed Vaudeville Company appears here April 8, 9 and 10.

Stone Bros., of this city, architects, are drawing plans for the rebuilding of the Chattanooga Opera House.

Master Clifford, of the Four Bridges, now appearing in the olio at Barry Morris' Academy, is a real prodigy. His impersonations of the Hebrew and Irishman are perfect to the infinite detail. But six years of age, he has a bright future ahead.

Preparations for the Street fair still go on uninterrupted. It is expected that in a few days the work of constructing the booths and entrance is to commence. A souvenir program is being gotten up. Many novelties are promised, chiefly among them Hagenbeck's animals. Mrs. Hattie McCall Travis is working hard, and with that it is not out of place to predict a glorious opening May 6.

Athletic Park throws open its doors to the public for the season of 1901 May 12. During its "hay-up" many repairs and changes were made. The seating capacity of the Casino has been materially increased. Manager Fourton will have opera again this season as the principal attraction. The company will be known as the Metropolitan English Opera Company. H. C. Fourton is to be managing director. A. W. E. MacCollum, stage director; Salle Simonson, musical director, and Charles Eisken, advertising agent. Following will be some of the principals, a majority favorites from last season: Belle Thorne, Evelyn Trox, William Herman West, Harry Limestone and, last but not least, William Hicks, comedian.

Cooper & Co.'s Circus, March 23 and 24, two nights and one matinee, did fair business. A creditable performance was given. The principal performers of the show are Elsie Empino Japs; Joe Cousins, rider; Theodore Beretta, clown, and Mihodola's trained ponies. Joe Grimes, fat man, is a feature of the concert and side show. Colonel Hemmey is mourning the loss of Ten Frock, captain of the six-penny drill. He was found dead in the car March 22 as the show was passing through Gretna, La. The show travels in five cars, and is working out north. The roster: J. R. W. Hemmey, busness manager; T. J. Ottman, equestrian director, and Prof. Springer, leader of band of ten pieces.

A. H. Gardner, manager of the Natchez (Miss.) Opera House, was in the city last week on business and pleasure.

Dayton, O., Doings.

Victoria—As I stated in my last letter, "Foxy Quiller" in all probability would do a good business. That does not tell it all. The house was picked, and even standing room was at a premium, never was such an audience together at this playhouse.

The next card at this popular house is Francis Wilson in "Monks of Malaibar," March 30. This will also do a good business.

July one play for week of April 1, which is Henry Miller in "Bleeding Savage," for April 4.

The Park Bohemian Burlesque Company opens April 1 for three days.

The last three nights with Agnes Burroughs as the star in "East Lynne." W. D. F.

HEARD ON THE RIALTO.

A Batch of News and Gossip from the Theatrical Center.

New York, April 2.—(Special)—The air is now full with rumors of new play houses, disregarding those which are to a degree ephemeral, there looms up Hammerstein's Drury Lane Theater at Eighth avenue and Thirty-fourth street, where demolition of the old buildings is now in hand. Kirk La Shelle's Colonial Theater at Broadway and Forty-seventh street is also assured; the money has been paid over, the contractors employed and ground will be broken May 1. The Broadway front will be an office building above the entrance. The stage will be 70 feet wide and 36 feet deep.

A location destined for an ideal theatrical center is the "Circle" at Fifty-ninth street and Eighth avenue, and through injunctions and like proceedings dance halls have been kept away. The Paulist Fathers successfully opposed the advent as a "manager" in their neighborhood of "Billy" McGlory, of unsavory repute. There are several vacant so-called halls awaiting tenents, but the police have denied them leases. Now comes the advice that a syndicate wants the site of Durand's old riding academy for a theater. It affords exposure on all sides, occupying a small-sized block opposite Central Park.

Another location facing the Circle is sought by Stair & Nicolai, who want it for a vaudeville house to be styled the Majestic. Far-seeing ones predict that the next decade will find this neighborhood the Rialto of that period. It has already earned the title "the new Tenderloin." A syndicate, the names of those composing it being withheld, is negotiating for the northwest corner of Broadway and Forty-first street for the bulking of a theater there.

It is not as yet definitely settled that the Manhattan Theater opened by the late "Josh" Hart as a variety house in the early 80's, and the scene of many successes, is to be razed.

John H. Haverly, well known in the theatrical world as manager and minstrel man, will again go before the public as an amusement producer. This he will do through the J. H. Haverly Amusement Company, and his venture will be in Brooklyn. Mr. Haverly will call this place the Haverly Musee and Concert Parlors, and will open about May 1 with a continuous performance program from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m. There will be wax works, following the line of the Eden Musee in Manhattan, and other features calculated to attract the best patronage.

New York is, if signs may be interpreted, destined to enjoy plays at something like reasonable charges of admission. There have been of late premonitions that managers were awakening to the fact that two dollars for a 50-cent show will not find favor with the theater-going public. Facts talk! Now comes Manager George W. Lederer, who will present high-class vaudeville at the Metropolitan Opera House throughout the year other than the ten weeks of grand opera, or at a hippodrome to be built this summer, with prices of admission ranging from 15 cents to 50 cents. Last week Oscar Hammerstein, than whom there is no more astute manager in the country, tired of watching the well-dressed crowds going to a 50-cent theater not far removed from his offices, decided to make the prices of good easy seats on the first floor of the Victoria 50 cents. He can sell out the house ten times over nightly now at this figure. Before he did this Manager Jacob Litt, of the Broadway Theater, whose gigantic production, "The Price of Peace," noticed elsewhere, said "$2 is too much; make the prices from 25 cents to $1.50." At the New York Theater the Sre Brothers, managers, put the price for the best seats in the house down to 50 cents, and the fine bill there occasions the selling out of the house ten days ahead. Koslow & Bial now sell their best seats for 70 cents, and have the "standing room" sign out. Besides Proctor's and Keith's, the best known of the continuous houses, where half a dollar gets a good seat, there are the American and Murray Hill Theaters, homes of good stock companies, both changing bills weekly, charging 25, 35 and 50 cents, and crowding the houses.

The most spectacular dramatic disclosure, perhaps, of the season was when the Broadway Theater was reopened with "The Price of Peace." This is an English melodrama, by Cecil Raleigh, which caused much discussion when it was produced last summer at the Drury Lane Theater, London. The point especially talked about was the boldness of showing the Prime Minister of England as murderer. There are eighteen scenes, and some of them show such famous places as the interior of Westminster Abbey, the House of Commons in session, and a carnival at the Niagara Skating Block. A yacht sunk in a fog by an ocean liner was also exhibited. The cast that Jacob Litt has engaged is rich in names, including those of Wilton Lackaye, W. T. Carlton, E. Harrison Hunter, Harry Roberts, Arthur Forrest, the Earl of Yarmouth, Charles Cherry, Fred Thorne, Charles Charters, Henry Bergman, Charles Kent, May Buckley, Minnie Salligan, Anne Sutherland, Kate Lester, Mabel Tallafarro and many others.

Critics were a bit stingy with their commendatory adjectives while telling of the work of Herbert Kelsey and Effie Shannon in Sayre's arrangement of the Abbe Provost's famous novel, "Mamou Leconte," at Wallack's Theater. It is melodramatic; it shocks some Broadway sensibilities to find dainty Miss Shannon in such a rugged situation where she must make light of her reputation—all for her manager's benefit. The play has merit; it is virile and even audacious. No money has been spared on scenery nor on costumes. In the cast are Winona Shannon, Isabel Waldron, May Monte Donico, Sandford Dwight, Charles S. Robinson, Henry Dumont, George C. Pearce, William Evans, Frank Andrews, Emilie Hoch, Richard Dillon, Joseph Osborne, Harrison Armstrong, William Boag, Guy Bates Post, Gaston Mervale and Frederick Perry.

"Lovers' Lane" at the Manhattan Theater can be safely put down as one of the few unqualified successes of this turbulent and trying season. Its pastoral situations, its healthy atmosphere, its vivacity, with its honest humor and sentiment, make it a refreshing acquisition to the New York stage. Each week the business has increased until now that old familiar sign "S. R. O." is hung up early in the night.

At the Garden Theater "Under Two Flags," with Blanche Bates as Cigarette, is drawing crowded houses, which are certain to continue there until the end of the season. The play is given vast pictorial treatment, and is acted in a stirring mannot yet admit that his new play, "Betsy Ross," is the venture to go in there.

The change of prices at the Victoria to 50 cents resulted in a crowded house at all performances of "My Lady." As a popular price house the Victoria will undoubtedly make its mark. Charles Ross has a new part.

Julia Marlowe is approaching the one hundredth New York performance of "When Knighthood Was in Flower."

William Collier in "In the Quiet" at the Madison Square has the big farcical hit of the year.

New Yorkers saw Ada Rehan for the last time this season at the Harlem Opera House, when she gave her vivacious rendering of Nell Gwynn in Paul Kester's comedy, "Sweet Nell of Drury Lane."

Henry V. Donnelly, manager of the Murray Hill popular priced theater, has reaped such satisfactory box office returns from his comedies, particularly Hoyt's, that he is for the time being sidetracking drama.

Another popular priced house where the seating capacity is taxed, the American, Eighth avenue and Forty-second street, sticks to melodrama with profit. Manager Greenwall has one of the best stock companies in the country.

As Frohman's "The Girl From Up There" takes its flight for a London engagement, Lederer's "Casino Girl" comes back to New York to gladden old friends with her rhythmic nonsense at the Knickerbocker Theater. Among those who fill leading roles are James E. Sullivan, Albert Hart, Harry Fairleigh, Ella Snyder, Claudine Sharp, Katie Seymour and Emilie Hervey. Manager Lederer promises London "Way Down East" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

The New York Theater, under the management of the Sre Brothers, continues to er, is credited with an admirable performance. The other roles were played by Beaton Radford, Sherman Bowles, Charles Malles, G. D. Cunningham, Thomas Carlton, Willard Hobbs, Harry F. Cogges, William G. Savage, Joe Williams, Henry Marion, Robert J. Riddell, William Crawford, Jack Ryan, Teresa Maxwell, Edith Totten, Clara Rawlins, Iva Merlyn, Julia Romaine, Nellie Maskell, Helen Williams, Louise Harkins, Bertha Livingston and Marle Stone.

PERSONAL NOTES.

Zelma Rawlins is one of the headliners on the Proctor circuit just now. She made much of her part in "The Burgomaster" when it was at the Manhattan Theater.

Henry W. Savage, who gave New Yorkers such delightful returns for their money at the American Theater, and demonstrated that opera in English would pay, is casting about for a winter home for a like venture next season. He is to star Raymond Hitchcock in "Prince Poppo," a tuneful opera by the authors of "The Burgomaster."

American players who promise to storm English favor this summer are Mr. Soriano, Mandie Adams, Julia Marlowe and Blanche Bates.

Immunity Dicott is back at the Fourteenth Street Theater and is playing in "The Romance of Athbone," the popularity of which has not fallen off one jot. Speculators are nightly hovering about the entrance, being a good portent.

"Nathan Hale," with Howard Kyle in the title role, and the original production of the play, is this week in Kansas City, where the spring tour of this company begins, which will embrace all the leading ner by a cast of important players. It has caught the fancy of lovers of melodrama, and enthusiastic audiences are slightly thrilled by the hairbreadth situations.

Lovers of light opera divide honors between "Florodora" at the Casino and "Sun Toy" at Daly's Theater, and lovers of laughter are in no wise left in the lurch when they consult Weber and Field's tuneful nonsense embodied in "Fiddle-dee-dee." The latter have in preparation "Captain Jinks," a burlesque of the Gurrie success,

"Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," with Ethel Barrymore as the charming opera singer, enters upon its third month at the Garrick Theater, where the audience, both evenings and matinees, are as large as the theater will hold. Charles Frohman has decided not only to continue "Captain Jinks" at the Garrick for the remainder of the present season, but also to reopen the next season of this theater with it in September.

The engagement of "To Have and to Hold" at the Knickerbocker lasts until April 13, after which it will be taken to Chicago for an all-summer's run. Mary Johnston's famous novel has made a good impression upon local theater-goers. All the love interest of the novel and most of its interesting characters have been successfully transposed to the stage.

BRIEFLY TOLD.

"Mrs. Dane's Defense" is closing to make place at the Empire for "Brother Others," which will run a revivifying period of a fortnight. Then comes Charles Frohman's big venture in which he will signalize William Faversham's stellar debut by putting on Sardou's "Diplomacy" with new scenery and a so-called star cast.

It is now settled that W. A. Brady will have the time at the Republic following Viola Allen, who leaves April 27. He will give what the New York public is satisfied to regard as a "$2 show" for 50 cents. The house is filled to overflowing every night. Sydney Rosenfeld's new burlesque, "The King's Carnival," will be produced in the latter part of April. The cast includes Marie Dressler, Amelia Summerville, Emma Carus, Adele Richele, Laura Bair, Mamie Gilroy, George Kelley, Edmund Ang, Nina Farrington, Florence Blanford, Mayme Gehring, Louis Harrison, Harry Ridger, J. Sheeler Mathews, Daniel McAvoy, Frank Boone and Patrick Rooney.

NOTES.

George W. Lederer will star Elsie De Wolfe next season in a drama dealing with American society. And, of course, this means that Miss De Wolfe will fit away earlier than usual to Paris in order to obtain the many new "creations" in gowns necessary.

The directors of the Empire Music Hall, London, have declared a nominal dividend of 56.23 per cent. In 1895, when a crusade was aimed at the music halls, the dividend dropped to 26.23 per cent. It has been as high as 70 per cent.

Manager John Arthur Fraser, of Chicago, announces among his other forthcoming productions "The Question of the Hour, or The Saloon and the Nation."

Andrew Mack expects big things of his new play, "Tom Moore," which he will produce next season.

Cromwell literature is just now receiving the closest kind of perusal by playwrights and adapters.

Thomas W. Broadhurst's "Justice" is a strong melodrama. A blind mill owner unwillingly is cruel to his help. In a dream Justice compels him to see the misery he occasions by his misuse of power. Horace Lewis as Geoffrey Hillyard, the mill own-

Western cities as far west as Portland, Ore. Manager W. M. Wilkinson expects to continue the tour well into June.

Fred C. Whitney, the Impressario, has just closed a contract with LuLu Glaser, and will star her next season, the organization to be known as the LuLu Glaser Opera Company. In her repertoire she will be seen in this country, Australia and England. She has been of late regarded as the coming prima donna. Costumers and scenic painters are already at work, as the season will begin in August.

Those having bad delegations here recently consulting with architects are to home theaters are: Harrisburg, Pa.; Louisville, Ky.; Marion, Iowa; Cincinnati, Ohio, to reconstruct the Grand Opera House; Chattanooga, Tenn.; Houghton, Mich.; Rock Island, Ill., and Logansport, Ind.

Fourteen plays were copyrighted at the office of the Librarian of Congress last week. A copyright protects a play for fourteen years. It may be renewed for another like period.

Lawrence Barrett died ten years ago, March 20, last. Not a function, so far as known, was arranged to lend impressment to the date by the player folk in this city.

May Irwin will close her season on the Pacific coast, and will then visit China, the Philippines and India, returning by way of Europe. She has under consideration two new plays for next season.

Caenlin Marshall's clever skit, "The Shades of Night," now tacked on to "The Lash of a Whip," at the Lyceum Theater, has materially increased business at this cosy playhouse. Elsie De Wolfe, who has designs on the starling business next season, and E. M. Holland acquitted themselves favorably as ghosts in an old English house. The playwright has made his ghosts most acceptable to the Lyceum audiences.

Reed, Dead; Barrymore, Insane.

Two incidents in the theatrical world last week cast a gloom over the entire profession. Roland Reed, the comedian died and Maurice Barrymore, the talented actor, became a ravaging maniac, and had to be sent to Bellevue Hospital, New York. Roland Reed was born in 1852. His first appearance as a star was in 1882 in "Cheek." From that time on he was one of the most popular light comedians in vaudeville. The cause of his death was cancer of the stomach, from which he was a sufferer for the past three years. He pluckily fought against death and rallied once or twice suddenly to go back on the stage, but finally had to succumb to an enemy who has never been conquered. His funeral took place under the direction of the Actor's Society, and in the list of pallbearers were such eminent stage lights as Frank W. Sanger, Mpton Niles, Louis Aldrich, Gus Piton, Jim Drew, W. A. Brady and others. The remains were placed temporarily in a vault in Woodlawn Cemetery.

The other pathetic event is the loss of mind of Maurice Barrymore, who had not been himself for several months. His ravings take the form of quotations from well known plays and an egotistical comparison of himself with other actors.

There was a large audience present at the Lion Palace Music Hall in Harlem on Thursday night when Barrymore went insane. They were drawn there chiefly by the now yet departed vogue of the once great actor and in part by the stories of his ardent advocacy of the cause of the White Rats, the organization of vaudeville artists that is warring upon the theatrical trust.

Barrymore looked strange in spite of his makeup. His eyes were large and staring. He looked unkempt and his hands twitched nervously. He stepped to the front of the stage and, instead of speaking the lines, his monologue, began a wild harangue against the Theatrical Trust. He talked so fast and so indistinctly that only those in the front rows heard the words.

"Down with the trust! Death to the syndicate!" Charles Frohman is doomed!

The stage manager ordered him off the stage, but he either did not hear or would not obey. He went on haranguing, tossing his arms above his head and striding from one side of the stage to the other.

At first the audience stared; then it uttered. At last a woman screamed, and the curtain was rung down.

The actor raved狂怒) about the White Rats and George Fuller, Golden and Charlie Frohman, but seemed to know nothing of the fiasco of his act. He hurried from the theater, and almost ran to the Ft. Lee Ferry, at the foot of One Hundred and Thirtieth street, followed by his son John.

Buffalo Mirror.

Court Street Theater—Gus Wegeforth, manager. The Parisian Widows is a title well chosen to represent vaudeville in a catchy manner, as the crowded houses attested March 25 to 30. Company large, scene effects excellent and an attractive cast, with Johnstone Brothers, Charles Patke, Williams and Aleene, Barrett and Gallagher, Snyder and Mackley and others, with "The Pinupet at Fogarty's" closing. Irwin's Big Show comes April 1 to 3.

The show at Shen's Garden Theater had a good calling March 25 to 30. Corinne, a great Buffalo favorite; Lockhart's trick elephant, Johnnie Carroll and others made several hits, and the offlo was a fair to good one. Underlaed, Mrs. Louis Gay.

Clay Clement kept things from being rusty at the Star March 25 to 30 in "The New Bonhilon," followed by Sarah Hardard, April 1 and 2; N. C. Goodwin, April 4 to 6. "Superba" was attractive at the Teek Theater, March 25 to 27, with Henrietta Crossman a good second in "Mistress Nell," March 28 to 30. Dickson & Mustard's "Humpty Dumpty" April 1 to 3.

The sun could not shine much hotter than did the rays at the Lyceum Theater March 25 to 30 to packed houses. "In the Stroke of Twelve" April 1 to 6.

Sons and his band gave concerts at Convention Hall March 25 and 26. His band will be heard at the Pan-American.

Tivoli Fountain Theater had Emma Burt and Amelia Vernon heading a pleasing bill March 25 to 30.

Lafayette Theater and the Academy Theater work in progressing at each place to an early opening.

The Devil Daughter's Hotel will be a new one here. Won't that burn you?

JOHN S. BUDHARISON.

Denver Theatricals.

The theaters are doing their usual amount of business. The Opera House open to standing room Sunday night. People were turned away from "Evil Eye."

The Broadway Theater was packed Monday night, and is doing so all the week, with Mrs. Elsie.

Beverly Theater is playing to a big house this week with Carter's attraction, "The Eighteen Hour."

Week of March 31 the Tabor Opera House will open with the Grand Opera Company for one week.

Week of April 1, Broadway Theater, Eugene Blair.

Denver Theater opens week of March 21, with "Breezy Time," with Flitz & Webster.

Yours respectfully,

Denver, Colo. JAS. A. CARRAN.

Theatrical Gossip.

Balossy Kiralfy, the great ballet master, has arrived in this country from Europe. He will make the production of "Constantinople," which is to be one of the features of the Buffalo Exposition.

Frank Daniels claims an unique distinction. He is the first star to appear in an opera house controlled by a President of the United States. The Daniels company gave the first performance in the Canton Theater recently purchased by President McKinley.

Miss Mary Norton, after an absence from the stage of two years on account of illness, has resumed her career in her monologue, "Society Caricatures and American Girl Stories." She made her re-appearance with success at the Orpheum Theater, Kansas City, March 17.

There is a merry row on in the Professional Woman's League. Miss Amelia Blingham and Mrs. Edward Arden were rival candidates for president. Some one accused Miss Blingham of trying to "buy the presidency," and so she resigned in a huff. No other opposition to Mrs. Arden has been sprung.

The latest reports from Florida, where Sol Smith Russell is a guest of Joseph Jefferson, are that he is recuperating rapidly. It is stated that he will be able to go back on the stage next fall, and that his relative and manager, Fred Berger, has a number of players under contract, and has accepted a play by Martha Morton.

John Hare closed his Chicago and American seasons at one and the same time Saturday night, and will return direct to London. Mr. Hare is reported to be dissatisfied with his tour this season, and will not return to America, but, Joseph Jefferson like, will play brief seasons in London hereafter, and take it easy the rest of the time.

John Arkwright, a New York jeweler, has brought suit against E. J. Gilmore, the New York manager, for $2,000 damages. The plaintiff avers that he was hurt to that amount by Gilmore, who struck him in the eye the other night. The row was over ticket speculators, and Gilmore accused Arkwright of being their financial backer.

Minstrels.

Rumor has it that Harry Ward's bushness is rotten.

Dan Quillan has joined his show after a week's visit to New York.

Bench & Bowers have ordered a new 28' sheet stand of their parade.

The L. W. Washburn Minstrels, name, paper and title, are for sale.

John W. Vogel's Minstrels are spending Holy Week in Altoona, "tied off."

The Allen Minstrels (under canvas) have been reorganized. The firm is now Allen & Quillan.

Items for this department are solicited from minstrel companies, managers, agents and performers.

This is Holy Week, the longest of the year. The week before Christmas is nothing compared to it.

Archie Sands, agent of the No. 2 Field's

Show, was a "Billboard" caller April 1. He is much improved in health.

The Great Barlow Shows laid off in Cincinnati during the week of March 25, and were fitted for new uniforms, etc.

Basil McHenry has made a reputation as a minstrel agent this year. Harrison Bros. speak in the highest terms of his ability.

Jack F. Case, formerly treasurer of the Walter L. Mai Shows, has accepted a position in the same capacity with Harrison Bros. Shows.

Hugh Harrison returned to the show at Conyers, Ga., with a very swell lot of wardrobe purchased in New Orleans. The show had rain the whole day long at Greensboro, N. C., March 25.

Dan Quillan had intended to put out the Dan Quillan Minstrels next season, but he has received a very tempting offer from Al G. Field, and he is hesitating over which course to adopt. He will announce his decision in a week or ten days.

Will J. Donnelly and J. A. Coburn bought the M. E. Rice car "Olga" last week. The rig is 55 feet long and just out of the shops at Jeffersonville, Ind. She is combined sleeper and diner, of Pullman make, with steel wheels and six-wheel trucks.

Stan Plee is to have a muster benefit in Chicago. He is broken in health and spirit. His friends have taken hold of the matter with great energy. The proceeds will be carefully administered, and it is hoped that enough will be realized to keep him in comfort the rest of his days.

A correspondent, writing under date of March 28, says: "The latest rumor about the Allen Minstrels has it that Quillan & Dakes now own the show and Allen is working on a salary. They had forty attachments for salary at Montgomery. Dakes walked away from the show, but reconsidered, went to Higville, came back and put the show out. They reopened at Atlanta."

Vaudeville.

Joe Weis, Jules and Ella Garrison and Anna and Hartley are among those who recently resigned from the Society of White Rates.

Pete Bailey lost his grip in St. Louis the other day. It was lifted by a thief, and Mr. Bailey is minus toilet articles and trinkets worth $270.

Pilar Morin will replace Valerie Bergere in the part of Madame Puttler in the Peacock play at Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theater next week.

Panta Edwards, who made such a hit in "A Runaway Girl" when it was first brought out in this country, has gone into vaudeville, and is doing a monologue.

The closing of the Hyde Show in Cleveland last week narrows the list of traveling vaudeville combinations down to the smallest I'm known in this country in years.

Robert Gran, the vaudeville agent, denies that he will look after any part of the bookings for the White Rats. He says all acts booked through him will be handled independently of any organization.

The season at Weber and Fields Music Hall will end April 20. The following Monday the entire stock company will start on its annual tour, opening in Brooklyn at the Moutain Theater, after which the company will start on a Western tour.

Following on the heels of Lee Harrison's engagement for Weber and Fields next season, it is said that Lillian Russell, Fay Templeton, Bessie Clayton, Dave Wartell and Leo Wolf Hoppe are all phasing their last season in the company.

Inez Rae, of Weber and Fields, has a fractured nose as a result of a collision with a Broadway cable car. She tried to board the car, which lurched forward while one of her feet rested on the platform. Her jewel bag, containing her most treasured ornaments and some money, was lost during the accident.

The White Rats are still operating the old Arch Street Theater, in Philadelphia, as an independent house. Business has been improving right along, but some remarkably strong bills have been offered. On last week's program the three headliners were Henry E. Dixey, the Russell Bros. and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew. At least seven other good acts are offered. The question is, can the management keep up the pace?

A Review of Other Reviews.

How the Street Fair Articles Appealed to a Writer who had not Written. ■ ■ ■

Representing the combined interests of Mr. Frank C. Bostock, "The Animal King," the Messrs. Ferarl and the Levitt and Seaman enterprises, all of which are established standard attractions in the street fair realm, the writer naturally had great interest in the success of "The Billboard's" special street fair edition, and that it did surpass all previous efforts typographically, artistically and in having a surplus of interesting matter upon this particular subject is a source of congratulation among the entire profession. After reading column after column, and digesting the same thoroughly, it would appear to an outsider and one not interested that all contributors were unanimous in the desire for success, while the major portion was impressed with the idea that only through them could anything successful be accomplished. The capital "I" stood forth prominently in all the signed articles. After sixteen years of experience in the amusement line, of which three years have been devoted to street fairs and open-air amusements, an acquaintance either personally or professionally has been acquired by the writer with most of the gentlemen who kindly lent their efforts and pushed their pencils to assist, if possible, in making this particular number of your publication a valuable addition to their office files of information. I can state truthfully, and know in the same time, that every amusement manager acquainted with this line of work will verify the fact that those who submitted the lengthiest arguments, personal views and dreamland theories are today the least interested financially of the many who are hustling day and night to make the street fair a prominent American pastime. The fact that one has a close relative in the street fair business does not make the absent brother a promoter of experience, and the argument that in England, Ireland, Siberia or South Africa a concession to use public streets could not be secured, and is, therefore, all out of order in this country, is about the weakest argument against the very popular and growing carnival period that has yet been advanced. Monarchs rule the old world, the people control America. The streets, the walks, the parks and all places where citizens assemble represent in taxes an amount personally invested by every one, and are not the private property of public servants who are elected by the people to carry out the duty of their offices, and when any reputable body, organization or society who are qualified residents of a city desire to provide a festive time for the entire population, it would be hard to find in free and equal America an official invested with brief authority that would be an obstruction to their merrymaking plans. None but Aunt Nancy would attempt in their untiring efforts to bring about an era of prosperity and neighborly good fellowship among their own population and that of their surrounding sister cities. The prolator of a knife-board, lemonade stand or the manager of a merry-go-round will ever be jealous of the wealthier amusement manager. This is only human nature, and is excusable on that ground.

The fact will always remain that the greatest friends of the street fair idea are those who have invested their thousands. The spiteful bickerlings of the small fry will never deter the reputable manager in his policy of enlargement and extending the sphere of his operations. The company that controls a score or more of well-established and legitimate amusement enterprises invests an enormous sum to place these amusements on favorable locations in a city where a carnival has been promoted. They, to be financially successful, must have a successful fair. Their interests are, therefore, identical with the local body under whose auspices the fair is given, and instead of dissension, harmony is the prevailing issue.

Formerly the exhibition of goods, wares and products were the features of street festivals, the events being made annual and attracting great concourses of people, the invading of the amusement field to find diversion for the visitors was only a logical result. If the people had not demanded various and diversified exhibitions none would have been given, and today the amusement feature of the carnival is the one attraction that brings the assembled thousands.

Since the field was opened, it was only natural that caterers of public amusement would go to the very limit of their resources to excel their various competitors. "All is fair in love and war," and the show business, therefore, a company or corporation, that can provide the best at the same cost to carnival associations that would be competitors strive to furnish, are entitled to and receive the consideration of brazen men and mischievous citizens.

The above mentioned companies, in which the writer has been continually interested for the last fourteen months, are more than willing to stand by the reputation they have established to back their argument that only perfected and organized Midways with combined exhibitions are the true source of success for either paid, enclosed or free street fairs. The idea advanced that local citizens who are engaged in the higher walks of the business world confin-nally could, at a moment's notice, withdraw from their mercantile cares and plunge into the show business for a period of one week successfully, is almost too weak for contradiction. Firstly, thousands would have to be expended for temporary clumsy structures, enclosures and canvases that would soon fill the junk shops at the end of a rainy week. The harvest time for the rag pickers, instead of the merchants, would begin. The gentleman of managerial abilities who had kindly lent his services for the purpose of managing this amalgamation of misfits from Baxter street, the Bowery and the New Orleans levee would retire with his princely salary bulging from his pockets and no obligations to restrain him from taking the first train out of town, while the poor, deluded merchant, who has been impressed with the idea that he could be a successful manager on short notice, would be behind the counter once more, tearing it off by the yard, trying to recuperate his losses and paying constant visits to the nearby wet goods establishment to get rid of the bitter taste that still submerges his palate. Where the so much criticized "Midway Carnival Company," regardless of the management under which it exists, takes all the chances for gain or loss and incurs a loss after caring of beautiful exhibitions, any one of which has an exterior that costs more than the entire industrial street, the local committee would do well to remember the old adage, "Follow your calling and stick to your trade." Mr. Frank C. Bostock and his immediate associates have no desire to dictate the policy of any body of citizens regarding the holding of a street fair. Local conditions are best governed by those who understand them, and the same policy holds good in the amusement way. They do claim, however, and justly so, that they have more actual cash invested in any one of their Midway outfits than all other alleged amusement institutions combined. Those who are so free with their advice about running a street fair would profit more by practically putting to use their energies for the purpose of criticizing a burlesque show or writing political editorials for a country weekly, or they might obtain a lucrative position as press censor to the Chinese Emperor. When the self-styled "Carnival Kings," "Past Masters" and "You can't be successful without Me," and the great "I's" of the street fair business whose practical experience is gained from observation, invests a few thousand dollars, and not dreams in this particular line, their statements will have some weight with the business world, as well as with those who are professionally engaged. Beautiful, attractive amusement enterprises that add materially to the appearance of the city are as much to be desired as rag-shop hunting and Chinese lanterns. Reputable exhibitions of good managers with the proper amusement menu will never lack for good cities in which to place their various entertainments. It will be a "survival of the fittest," and proper investigations will quickly and thoroughly demonstrate where such is to be found, and the enlarged, combined Midways will continue to last and find equal favor with the public as long as street fairs or carnivals are given in America. It simply, when all is said and done, resolves itself into a business proposition, and any man or body of men would naturally prefer placing their contracts for amusement in the hands of a manager who has them and money to back them, than into those of one who has to get them. A school child will buy its supplies at one trading point rather than exhaust its energies in running from one establishment to another, buying a penitentiary here and a penitentiary there.

Mr. Frank C. Bostock and the Messrs. Joseph and Francis Ferarl, together with Levitt and Seaman, count their friends by the thousand over the entire United States. They have been made in every city where they have visited by fulfilling every promise made, just and upright dealings with the local committees, and by always presenting nothing but what the very best could visit with impunity. This season will far surpass all previous efforts, and our competitors, whom we respect for their worth, will be given further cause to criticize and condemn the grasping Midway manager, all of which falls as lightly as the soft snow on a muddy street; it vanishes with the world-beat critics' pipe dreams and their "thousand dollars in nickels and dimes are again counted over a thousand times."

Indianapolis Zoo.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 30.—(Special)—There were two deaths at the Zoo here the past week. Leo, the big sea lion, gave up the ghost suddenly. Dr. Pritchard, the well-known veterinary surgeon, held an autopsy, which revealed the fact that Leo came to his death from poisoned candy, evidently thrown to him by some evil-minded person. Leo's mate, Beatrice, refused to give up her dead. The scene was pathetic. The other animal to die was Doc, the large Hamadryas or bonobonying bulboon of Prof. Blake's troupe of performing dogs and monkeys. Dr. Stern, of this city, and Mr. Ricketts, of Cincinnati, worked with the animal through two days and two nights I had pneumonia. The oxygen treatment was used, and ten gallons of oxygen was required. Doc was worth $300. His body was prepared for burial, placed in a nice casket and shipped to Indianapolis, Mich., for interment. The skin was turned over to Fletcher Noe of this city, who will mount it. The skin of the sea lion was presented to Mr. Beck (not Louis J., nor any relation) of this city, by Director Bostock. Prof. Blake, who understands the monkey language, says that the big Hamadryas, just fifteen minutes before his death, inquired: "Is my life insured?" His last words were: "I hate to leave you. I would like to read this week's 'Billboard' before leaving the earth. Good-bye."

New animals at the Zoo and in three other buildings here are made up of two consignments, as follows: First consignment: Two elephants, two zebras, six lions, five jaguars, six hyenas, five brown bears, five polar bears, two sloths from the Himalaya Mountains, two cassowaries, two Australian ostriches, a pair of ovidads, a bull yak. Second consignment: Five full-grown elephants, six Sumbar deer, five tigers, sixty lions, two llamas, three sacred bulls, two hippopotamuses, one white rhinoceros, two giraffes, twelve camels, two sacred donkeys and an elephant called the "Leopard elephant" because it is spotted and marked like the leopard or jaguar.

The trainers now preparing the animals for the Pan-American Exposition are Captain, Madame Morell, Captain Honayta, Budholo Canoz, Herr M. Weisenthal, Young Hermine, Joseph Kanosta, Herr Bresdich, Albert Stadler, Mons. Boyker, Lorenzo, Prof. Charles Miller, Captain de Lameter, Bobby Mack, Prof. J. Briggs and J. Apleton.

Charles Vaughan has left the Zoo and returned to Chicago. He probably will go out with the Nickel Plate Show.

Director Bostock left Saturday night for Buffalo to make the final arrangements for the gorgeous decorations of the interior of his wild animal arena. He has engaged Prof. Tony Gazzano, the noted Italian artist, to superintend the work.

It is a well-known fact that the animals of Director General Bostock, of the Zoo, especially the camels, are always in better condition and live longer than those of any other manager or animal owner. There is a reason for this, and the news, after careful investigation, has discovered it. In making the discovery it was also ascertained that an Indianapolis boy figures conspicuously in the system that brings good health and longevity to Mr. Bostock's animals. Twice a week the animals are allowed to breathe an air that is the exact counterpart of the air over the desert of Sahara, the home of the camel. A sack is placed over the camel's head, as shown in the accompanying picture. To this a rubber tube is attached, which connects with a pump. A small tube runs from the pump to the small retort or reservoir that is on the table. This retort, or reservoir, contains the peculiar desert air, which is pumped into the air-tight sack or case for the camel to breathe.

The gentleman who discovered and makes this air is Prof. De Lotell, his right name is Burt Wendorf, whose parents reside at 904 Woodlawn avenue. The ingredients that go to make up the air are known to no one but the professor. It is his secret, and of course he will not divulge it. Mr. Bostock employs him at a good round figure, and, as stated, twice a week the camels are allowed to breathe this air, which permeates the entire system, giving them strength of body and tone of action.

Prof. De Lotell is now at work getting up an air for tigers and lions and such animals that are trained and can be handled. The camel in the picture is taking the invigorating air tonic to "Holy Moses," the lineage of which can be traced to the historic camels that in the good old days carried Abraham, Jacob and Isaac over their native soil.

DOE WADDELL.

Chiquita Opens with a Flattering Reception.

Saturday, March 23, was a red-letter day in the history of Mr. Bostock's Milwaukee enterprise. The famous tiny mite of womanhood, Chiquita, caused the entire city to turn out en masse, and the delightful expressions of congratulations bestowed upon the local management proved conclusively that the Zoo in its closing days was more popular than ever with the Milwaukee public. Mr. Frank C. Bostock was upon the scene and personally directed the opening of this, the world's greatest attraction. A cargo of newly imported animals arrived at the same time and materially increased the interest in this popular resort. Rajah, the famous man-eating tiger from the Indianapolis Zoo, created a vast amount of interest among the visitors. Colonel Francis Ferarl has about completed the finishing touches in his magnificent exhibition for the coming season. A score of gilders, carpenters and painters are kept busy almost each entire day and night getting in readiness this, the grandest trained wild animal show that will be en route this summer. More animals, more people and several new performing groups have already been added, and active training scenes are the order of the day. Princess Delaware, with her magnificent performing group of Nubian and African lions, will be the feature of the steel arena performances on the road. More than twenty lions will be featured in the menagerie collection. The magnificent gold carved exterior will be lengthened forty feet, inland with over 100 French plate mirrors and six life-size figures, representing the nations of the world, carved by the world's greatest sculptors, covered with gold and bearing the emblems of their respective countries, will adorn the grand projecting front and principal entrances. A $10,000 Parishion orchestra, twenty feet long, ten feet high and profusely lighted with colored incandescents, will adorn the center arch. This colossal musical importation equals in volume and tone forty performers. The fiercest lion today in the world, Paul Kruger, recently imported direct from the forests of Africa, will be the bright paricular star of the wild animal demonstrations. The lion hunt, by Trainer Lawrence, will furnish the spectacular portion. Madam Pauline De Vere, with her highly educated primus and panthers, will demonstrate her superiority as a lady trainer. Big Frank, the boxing kangaroo, remains one of the novel attractions, as well as Fatima, the Vonchice-Couchie dancing bear. The entire equipment will be elaborate in the extreme, and Colonel Ferarl will, as usual, be found heading the front rank of American amusement managers, making a specialty of street fair and carnival entertainment. The recent additions and reconstructing will aggregate close on to $10,000. Several minor attractions will be transported in conjunction with the Colonel's exhibition. Captain Jos. Ferarl, general manager of Company No. 2, has left for an extended visit to Indianapolis, in order to put in readiness his wild animal exhibitions. These have already been greatly enlarged and many new acts added for the summer campaign. Contracts have already been closed with several of the largest cities for the No. 2 Company, to be the exclusive feature at their street fairs and carnivals. The exhibition will be second to none in the country, and the popularity that it has obtained through the management of Joseph Ferarl will be materially increased during the coming season. Some of the finest lions today in the world, best trainers and the only original man-eating "Walrus" will be featured as never before. Taken all in all, the Messrs. Ferarl have every cause for congratulation upon the excellent showing they are prepared to make.

Small Gossip.

Stick to percentage games if you allow gambling.

Western Manitoba's Big Fair offers $10,000 in prizes this year.

The greatest event in Georgia, the Chautauqua, will be held May 21 to 28. At least 50,000 visitors are expected.

F. C. Huffman, the well-known street fair promoter, joined the Sturgis Carnival Company at Asheville, N. C., last week.

The summer concert season at the Cincinnati Zoological Garden will begin on May 26 with Liberati's Band as the attraction.

The "attraction fairs," as they are styled, enjoy the largest attendance. There is nothing like a special attraction for pulling power.

Two notable events in Georgia in the late fall will be the Southwestern Georgia Fair, Nov. 14 to 25, and the Carnival, Nov. 19, 20 and 21, at Albany.

Colonel William F. Cody Buffalo Bill has an admirable article on the Range Horse in the current issue of the Rider and Driver. Horsemen will find it very interesting.

Elsewhere in this issue of "The Billboard" is a picture of the Putnam County (Ohio) Fair Grounds, which is one of the best and most successful fairs in the State of Ohio.

Lindlow Allen, manager of the Elks' Free Festival and Carnival at Anniston, Ala., May 6 to 11, writes to say that the fair is not an enclosed one, but an absolutely free carnival.

The famous Blekett Family have been signed for the big Bradford (Penn.) fair, Sept. 18, 19 and 20. Harry Cushman, secretary of the fair, congratulates "The Billboard" on its special street fair edition.

Remember that "going to the fair" is a holiday. Do not think that bare exhibits are sufficient diversion for the farmers' holiday. He wants attractions—acrobats and otherwise. If you do provide them, rest assured that the fair will not thrive.

Ned Ziegler, who managed the Fall Festival at Cincinnati last year, writes from Newbern, N. C., where he has been spending the winter with a sick brother, that he has organized a new Fair Association at that point. It is capitalized at $1,000. There are 100 shares at $25 each, and it is all paid in.

Montgomery, Ala., has just entertained a big Democratic State convention, there being about 700 or more delegates in attendance. The sessions were held in the new Auditorium there, which will amply accommodate three thousand people. Alabama is getting ready for its immense constitutional convention, which will probably convene about May 21.

Although the ownership of Sans Souci Park, Chillicothe, has been transferred to a corporation known as the Metropolitan Amusement Association, Alfred Russell, who has so successfully handled the resort in the past, will continue to be manager. Extensive improvements are being made, and Mr. Russell is booking some of the biggest and best acts in the country.

St. Louis Preparing for Big Fair.

Plans for the greatest World's Fair in history are rapidly crystallizing. President McKinley has named an array of prominent men to represent the nation in the enterprise. Legislatures in every State are passing appropriations for suitable displays. Already the hum of a great city preparing for the reception of all countries at the great show has begun.

Within the next four years at least $100,000,000 will be spent in connection with the World's Fair. Unbound wealth, directed by the energetic and inventive spirit of the twentieth century, will create a miniature world which will mirror all nations, all the great achievements of the mind, and many of the dawning dreams of the unfolding future.

Although the permanent organization has not been completed, nor the site selected, St. Louis is already assured to be spent on the exposition district. Since the nation has set its stamp of approval on the event there has been a big boom in stock subscriptions, many persons in other cities taking shares. The required $8,000,000 has been oversubscribed by nearly $300,000, and it is now a matter for serious consideration with the temporary organization whether it shall increase the capital stock of the local corporation to $10,000,000. Sanguine St. Louisans are confident that it would be all subscribed, in which case the total amount to be devoted directly to the enterprise would be $21,000,000. Considering the advantages which the city will have in profiting by Chicago's experience, it is confidently anticipated that a grander exposition than the White City can be completed for 75 per cent of the cost of that undertaking.

In addition to the large sum of money to be devoted directly to the World's Fair, St. Louis will spend $10,000,000 making the city one of the most wholesome and attractive on the globe. It will be entirely renovated and so improved that visitors will carry away with them a memory of a model in city building.

The question of location is proving the most interesting topic just now, and the city is divided in favor of half dozen beautiful and available sites. By a wise provision of the World's Fair bill, the competition which ensued over the selection of a location in Chicago will be avoided. Should the local corporation and the United States Commissioners disagree, a board of arbitration will be appointed, two from each and a fifth to be selected by the Secretary of the Treasury.

It is the consensus of opinion that former Governor and Secretary of the Interior David B. Francis will be the Director General of the great exposition. He has been the prime mover in the enterprise, and it was mainly through his energetic and able effort that the World's Fair bill weathered the many storms which beset it in the halls of Congress and was finally passed. He is the idol of all St. Louisans for the successful and strenuous efforts which he has put forward nobly in the city's behalf, and his management of the gigantic undertaking is considered a guarantee that it will be complete in every particular.

Associated with Mr. Francis in the work of bringing the national appropriation to an issue were U. H. Spangler and Seth W. Cobb, both men of prominence in the financial circles of the country. W. H. Thompson accomplished equally as effective work in St. Louis.

A grand demonstration in honor of these three and in honor of the many other important workers is under way.

From all parts of the United States, and even from Europe and South America, suggestions have been pouring in for attractive features.

Among the novelties proposed is a colossal globe. It is designed to be to the St. Louis World's Fair what the Eiffel Tower was to Paris and the Ferris Wheel to the White City.

The aerial globe will cost $1,000,000. Its initial feature will be an immense circular hall or rotunda measuring 350 feet in diameter, 325 feet from the ground. The entire structure, from base to top, will be 555 feet, the same as the Washington Monument.

Surmounting the globe will be an observatory tower fifty-five feet high, divided into three stories, the top one intended for the United States Weather Bureau, with a gigantic searchlight in constant motion.

Elevators and promenades about the globe will accommodate the public. An other novel suggestion is a telescope tower to be raised, section after section, until the observatory on the top attains an altitude of 1,500 feet, which is 513 feet higher than the Eiffel tower and 955 feet higher than the Washington monument. The tower is the invention of a native of Louisiana.

A unique scheme proposed is a mammoth cave designed somewhat after the famous Kentucky grotto. It would be brilliantly illuminated by varicolored electric lights. It would be suitable for restaurants, refreshment purposes and underground ice palaces.

A huge iron and glass structure will be built exactly to represent the pyramids and the sphinx.

Villages composed of natives of the new American possessions, with copies of their houses and streets, will be grouped in a quarter by themselves.

The first board of directors, which will be elected in a few days, will consist of 100 members, chosen by the stockholders.

It is confidently expected that the exposition will be ready for opening in 1903, the centennial of the Louisiana purchase.

Increased Popularity of the Trotter.

The confidence of the many associations that have so far advertised their meetings is nowhere shown more clearly than in the fact that nearly all have guaranteed stakes richer than ever before. Few are the associations of importance that have no $5,000 stake, and what was once a sensational prize is now taken as a matter of course. The earning capacity of the trotter and pacer is necessarily governed by the amount of money to be raced for, and this season leads all previous years. Not only are all of the older associations in line, but two new and most important ones that have never been known as trotting associations came into prominence through their announcements. The trotter has invaded the field of the thoroughbred at Memphis and Brighton Beach, and each is bound to play an important part in trotting.

Today a trotter becomes, by virtue of his opportunities, a business proposition. He can not only earn his own, but a fortune for his owner, and this is as it should be, for while the ideal sport is one that is followed for sport's sake, racing is such an expensive luxury that unless there is some opportunity of winning expenses, none but very rich men can indulge in it as a pastime, and as many of the best sportsmen in America are men of moderate means, the fact that a stable of trotters can be made self-sustaining leads many men into the sport that would otherwise be deprived of that pleasure.

The more money that the associations of America offer, the more good horses will be seen, and consequently racing the light-harness horse will improve, and the public will attend in greater numbers. Great states draw great crowds, not by reason of the money at stake alone, but because the great horses are to be seen, and racing can not thrive when playing to empty benches. The prosperity of the trotting turf will result in many new reforms that are greatly needed. Not the least in importance is the improvement over the present entrance fee. Ten or every five per cent, while it may be a necessity to the associations that do not cater to the public, are a drag net to trotting, and one great reason why futurities and other colt stakes have grown in popularity is that the entrance fee is so small in comparison with the prize. Horsemen have been trotting for their own money, a condition of affairs made necessary because associations were not able to add much to their stakes, due entirely to the fact that the gate receipts were not sufficient to reimburse the treasury. For this the associations are themselves responsible. It is not that trotting is not popular, for no form of sport appeals more strongly to the American people than this, but it is because the public is not attracted by the management of trotting meetings. The actual contests themselves enthrall the spectators, but the many inconveniences, annoying delays and cheerless surroundings do much to mar the sport. Trotting meetings should be made so attractive that the layman is pleased as well as the regular. Kentucky Stock Farm.

He Started the Buffaloes.

Sol Bloom, the prominent Chicago music publisher, was in Indianapolis, Ind., recently. Bloom claims to be the originator of the "Order of Buffaloes," which are spreading over the country. He says it was formed in San Francisco by the theatrical men, who called themselves the "Buffaloes," but had no more definite organization. The five began taking in others, and gradually the mock ritualistic ceremony turned itself. He says the order is about to enter New York, where it is expected that a big harvest of eleven cents will be reaped. A principal of the organization is not to return change when an initiation fee is paid. Vice-President Roosevelt paid $10 for his, Mr. Bloom said, the money being spent in entertaining the crowd which happened to be present when he took the degree.

The Automobile Knocked Out.

Chicago streets have knocked out the automobile. The directors of the Illinois Electric Vehicle Transportation Company have recommended that the company go out of business as soon as possible. This company conducted an electric car service in that city and owns over 100 vehicles says the Bremer's Gazette. The directors thus go on record: "Owing to the local conditions and the consequent high cost of maintenance, the vehicles now owned by the company can not be operated in the city of Chicago on a profitable basis." It is added that the condition of the city streets makes it impossible to operate these horseless carriages successfully on account of the great cost of repairs. If there has been any prospect of success in the automobile line it has been when applied to cab service, and now it seems that with all the inventions of the past decade the things are so frail that ordinary street wear knocks them out. It is an uncommon sight to see a cab or delivery wagon towing along on the streets a disabled automobile, but the public did not understand that the thing was so near on its last legs—or last wheels. Evidently invention has yet much to accomplish in the way of perfecting a machine that will run on the paved streets of a city. When it comes to country roads, the problem is vastly more serious. The day of the auto is not here by a lot.
