PUTTING A PRICE ON

A YEAR AFTER JANET JACKSON'S wardrobe malfunction, all the excitement surrounding indecent content seems to be taking place in Washington, D.C.

Among recent developments:

- The House is considering indecency legislation that would authorize $500,000 fines for broadcast licensees and performers, as well as license revocation hearings for repeat violators. The bill easily passed the Energy and Commerce Committee Feb. 8 and now goes to the floor for almost certain approval.

- Phil Lombardo, joint board chairman of the National Assn. of Broadcasters, has thrown down the gauntlet, charging the Federal Communications Commission with inconsistent and discriminatory indecency enforcement. He predicts the contentious issue will wind up in court and says the NAB has a multimillion-dollar war chest to support an inevitable challenge by a broadcast company.

- Congressional talk of subjecting satellite and cable services to the same indecency rules broadcasters face has moved from the back rooms to the floor.

Mary Bono, R-Calif., a committee member and co-chair of the Recording Arts and Sciences Caucus.

Barton agreed to permit committee members sympathetic to performers' concerns about the one-size-fits-all, $500,000 fine to discuss why they believe the provision is draconian. "This will be done," the spokeswoman adds, "with the idea that the language will be studied further after the markup."

At the hearing, Bono asked Upton: "If an artist did not know that his or her material had become [indecent] broadcast programming, or did not have a reasonable opportunity to review such programming before it was broadcast on radio or television, the FCC would have to strongly take those factors into account in determining an artist's degree of culpability, correct?" Upton answered affirmatively.

However, an amendment that would warn performers before a first fine violation was defeated.

"We're trying to explain that a 'baby band,' with little ability to pay such a fine, could be subject to the same fine [as] a multimillion-dollar corporation," Recording Academy VP for Bowl halftime show, and, most absurdly, the commission is investigating NBC's airing of naked Greek statues during the opening ceremonies of the 2004 Olympics.

Lombardo, who also serves as CEO of TV broadcaster Citadel Communications, cited recent examples of the crackdown's chilling effect Feb. 3 during a Media Institute luncheon in Washington, D.C. He wondered aloud if federal policy makers are "on the verge of killing free over-the-air broadcasting" with rules that stifle its ability to compete in today's multichannel universe.

A BIBLE OF DIRTY WORDS?

Even with last year's government settlements and zero-tolerance indecency edicts, radio continues to struggle with the issue, according to NAB senior VP of corporate communications Dennis Wharton. "I think everybody's struggling," he says. "Radio stations have resorted to using the dump button." (See story, page 13.)

Exiting FCC Chairman Michael Powell "says he doesn't think radio would like the government to issue a red book. I'm

INDECENCY

BY BILL HOLLAND AND PAUL HEINE ILLUSTRATION BY BRAD HAMANN

• In the House, 33 members have written a letter to President Bush urging him to appoint a new FCC chairman who will keep the indecency heat on broadcasters.

Rep. Fred Upton, R Mich., on Jan. 25 reintroduced his Broadcast Decency Enforcement Act, H.R. 310. Many groups are warning lawmakers about a provision of the Upton bill that would set fines for "individuals" at the same level as broadcast companies—and in some cases higher.

In a rare situation, the NAB and the Recording Industry Assn. of America find themselves on the same side of an issue and are working to have the provision modified.

They are joined in their opposition by the major artist and performer groups—the Recording Academy, the Recording Artists' Coalition, the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists and the American Federation of Musicians. AFTRA represents not only radio and TV talent but recording artists as well.

Before the Upton bill's markup, insiders told Billboard Radio Monitor that Energy and Commerce Committee Chairman Rep. Joe Barton, R-Texas, had made it clear to members he did not want amendments attached that might encumber the bill's passage.

Nevertheless, opponents of the provision that would fine individuals made headway, according to a spokeswoman for Rep.

advocacy and government relations Daryl Friedman says. "They might not even know about the [offending] airplay. They would be driven into bankruptcy."

Opponents of the provision also worry that classic recordings by established or heritage artists might not meet the new indecency guidelines.

While there is little chance the House bill will be amended, the Senate version, authored by Sen. Sam Brownback, R-Kan., offers hope. It does not contain the provision that would subject performers to half-million-dollar fines. Opponents of the House provision hope the language will be modified if the two bills are reconciled.

A FIGHT ON THEIR HANDS

As legislation advances that would put another arrow in the FCC's quiver, Lombardo says a legal showdown over indecency is inevitable. Yet radio industry leaders Clear Channel, Infinity and Emmis have already paid the government millions of dollars to settle indecency infractions. So who will lead the charge? D.C. insiders believe the challenge will come from TV. Fox Broadcasting is most often mentioned. In October, all 169 Fox affiliates were fined for a "sexually suggestive" scene in the "Married by America" series. Additionally, CBS-TV has a fine pending for the 2004 Super not sure that is true," Wharton continues. "Stations just want to know what the rules are, and they will follow them. It's equally confusing in television."

The NAB says an unfair double standard exists, putting broadcasters at a competitive disadvantage to cable and satellite companies—whose programming is beyond the FCC's reach. Dumbing down programming to avoid fines or possible license revocation will push broadcast audiences and advertisers to unregulated pay media services, it claims.

As evidence of this double standard, Lombardo, during his emboldened Media Institute speech, pointed to a tsunami aid concert that aired in late January on a variety of NBC platforms. During the broadcast, the word "shit" was uttered, potentially subjecting broadcast affiliates of Pax TV and Telemundo to sizable fines while letting NBC cable properties CNBC, MSNBC, USA Network, Bravo, Trio and the Sci Fi Channel off the hook.

Because listeners elect to buy subscription services, legal experts say cable and satellite enjoy deeper First Amendment protections than free over-the-air broadcasting.

The Supreme Court's precedent-setting Pacifica indecency ruling was predicated on broadcasting's "pervasive" nature. The landmark decision was issued in 1978, before the arrival of the Internet and satellite broadcasting and the prevalence of cable. Wharton says the pervasiveness argument wouldn't hold up in today's media environment.

"It could be argued pretty strongly that broadcasting's unique pervasiveness that existed 25 years ago does not exist now," he says. "Certainly broadcasters are still pervasive, and they still serve tens of millions of households, but we're certainly not the only game in town. Why we should be subjected to special unfair treatment in terms of content regulation is something the courts ultimately will probably have to determine.”

During the markup session for Upton’s bill, about a half-dozen lawmakers brought up the issue of leveling the playing field. It was the first time in the 109th Congress that the idea of subjecting cable and satellite to the same indecency standards as broadcasters was publicly broached. While no one is predicting imminent legislation, the comments suggest that more congressional debate on the subject lies ahead.

A spokesman for Brownback says he will not call for making satellite and cable programming subject to the same indecency restrictions. “The senator has no interest nor intention to pursue that,” he says.

Communications attorneys and lobbyists polled by Billboard Radio Monitor did not agree on what the final outcome might be. Some predict such legislation would be signed by President Bush but struck down in court. The reason, as one communications attorney puts it: “We don’t know what obscenity is, and the courts won’t let that kind of law stand. I know when I can be indecent, because I know what the safe-harbor time span is. But I don’t know what I can or cannot say. That’s the problem.”

Other attorneys and lobbyists say the fundamental distinction of cable and satellite-radio services—that they are subscription-based, and therefore chosen by the consumer—is enough to protect them from indecency rules. “Look,” one lobbyist says, “Congress is not going to change the rules for cable. It’s just not going to happen.” Others agree, while noting that lawmakers will continue to use the issue as a way to endear themselves to their constituents.

Additional reporting by Tony Sanders in Washington, D.C.

WHO’S NEXT?

COMMISSIONER KEVIN MARTIN appears to be the front-runner to succeed Michael Powell as Federal Communications Commission chairman. On Jan. 21, Powell announced he would step down from his post in early March.

If Martin is appointed, broadcasters will face a chairman who would impose stiffer fines for indecency violations. Martin has consistently said he would issue fines on a “per utterance” basis, which would raise considerably the total dollar figure broadcasters might be liable for in many indecency fines imposed by the commission.

Martin also wants the FCC to place the same strictures on TV and radio broadcasters. When the commission found in October 2004 that a broadcast on WDBC-TV was not indecent, Martin said, “In the past, if similar references, in similar contexts, have been made on radio shows, the commission has fined the radio station. I believe the commission should apply the same standard to television and radio broadcasts.”

The other front-runner for Powell’s post is Rebecca A. Klein, a managing partner of the Austin law office of Loeffler Tuggey Pauerstein Rosenthal. Klein has ties to the Bush administration, having served as a policy director for then-Gov. George W. Bush. Klein’s focus was telecommunications, energy, housing, technology and banking.

Klein has 16 years of federal and state experience in public law, energy and telecommunications. She served as a commissioner and chairman of the Texas Public Utility Commission from 2001 until January 2004.

NO EXPERIENCE? NO PROBLEM!

PROGRAMMER LORRIN PALAGI DIVES IN THE DEEP END OF COUNTRY RADIO IN DALLAS

BY KEN TUCKER PHOTOGRAPH BY JIM OLVERA / RETNA LTD.

LAST YEAR WAS A TOUGH ONE for country KSCS Dallas.

In April, much-loved OM/PD Ted Stecker died after a long illness. While his health had been declining over time and his presence at the station became increasingly limited, that didn't make his loss any easier.

Stecker, who had been at the station for two years, was actually on his second tour of duty with the ABC outlet. His first was from 1987 to 1993.

On top of that, KSCS had beaten crosstown country competitor KPLX (the Wolf) 12-plus exactly once since spring 2000. That's a tough pill to swallow for a station that dominated the Dallas market for much of the '90s.

But to close out what KSCS APD/MD Chris Huff calls "a very long and difficult year" on a positive note, KSCS beat KPLX in the fall Arbitron ratings 12-plus and 25-54.

KSCS moved 3.3-4.2 12-plus while KPLX went 3.9-4.0. In the 25-54 demo, KSCS grew 3.6-4.1, good for fifth in that cell, while KPLX went 4.5-3.8, falling to sixth.

New KSCS OM/PD Lorrin Palagi came onboard in June 2004 after working as a consultant with Zapoleon Media Strategies. Prior to that, Palagi, who calls himself a "radio rug rat," programmed adult top 40s KHMX Houston, WPNT Chicago and WRQX Washington, D.C., among others. In Washington, he worked for his current employer, ABC.

Conspicuous is the fact that Palagi had never programmed a country station, let alone a country station in a battleground market like Dallas.

SPURRED ON

After Stecker's death, Palagi got a call from ABC VP of programming Tom Cuddy, with whom he had kept in touch over the years. "He said, 'We've got an opening in Dallas. I don't even know if you've got an interest in it because it's country, but why don't you call?'" Palagi recalls Cuddy saying.

Palagi says he was captivated by the opportunity for three reasons. "It was ABC, which I knew and loved, it was Dallas, which is a great market, and it was country, which is very interesting to me.

"After you've done [programming] a while you like to find ways to keep it really interesting," he says. "Diving head first into a highly competitive situation in a high-profile market like Dallas in country was extremely intriguing."

Although he was aware of the hardships

KSCS had been through, after visiting the market and listening to the radio stations, Palagi picked up on a positive spark at KSCS. "I don't think they ever lost their hope to get to the top again," he says.

"That was probably as important as anything else in my wanting to pursue this job," Palagi continues. "I learned many years ago that you don't get into a situation where you can't win. There were a lot of variables in this because it's a highly competitive situation, but I could hear that KSCS was not a defeated radio station."

Despite his analysis, there was at least one thing that surprised Palagi when he joined KSCS. "I expected it to be very solemn and sad here [because of Stecker's death] and I was pleasantly surprised to find that it wasn't," he says. "People had tremendous respect and love for Ted."

Huff explains, "To be able to hold it together and to come out of some very dark days even stronger, that's a very strong bond, and it goes a long way toward the intangibles" that contributed to the station's recent success.

Palagi says, "It speaks volumes to the strength and resolve of the staff how they held together after Ted died, holding the banner high and marching forward."

Though he has been with the station for only eight months, Palagi holds the staff in high regard. "On balance, it is the most professional staff I have ever worked for," he says.

When Palagi came onboard, he says he did "the typical PD musical adjustment things, a little tweaking here, a little tweaking there, nothing major." He also challenged the airstaff to become more visible, among other things. "Thank goodness they've risen to the occasion in every instance," he says.

Huff says it's difficult to pin down just one reason why KSCS succeeded in the fall book. "I don't know that you can ever look at Arbitron and find one specific thing that contributes to a station's rise or fall," he says. "It's always a combination of variables. We were in a position where a number of those variables came together in the right direction for us."

He says that first among those variables is consistency. "The station had been through some variations and some fluctuations," he says, "and we finally are at a point where we've been consistent long enough with the right product that it's really starting to come together."

Palagi agrees. "KSCS has had positive momentum for quite some time—certainly since before my arrival."

KSCS APD/MD Chris Huff, KTYS PD Crash Poteet and KSCS/KTYS OM Lorrin Palagi (from left) hope to step up the competition in Dallas.

ON THE WEB
For sample hours from KSCS and KPLX plus a look at KTYS, go to BillboardRadio-Monitor.com on Feb. 21.

While Huff cites the success of an on-air contest as a factor in the fall book, he also notes that "more than anything, the attitude and spirit of the staff has just been tremendous."

"It really is a factor of working hard and doing things right to the best of our ability and staying consistent and knowing that eventually it will be recognized, by our ultimate yardstick [Arbitron]," he adds. "It's very gratifying to see that."

Another factor in KSCS' rise in the fall book may have been the work of its country sister KTYS (the Twister), which takes aim at a younger demographic. But Palagi and Huff agree that it can be difficult to sort out how much influence the Twister had on the outcome.

"It may have helped us just by competing in an area that KSCS is not as strong in," Palagi says. "The Wolf tends to be slightly younger-skewing than KSCS. Therefore, if we can get a toehold in 18-34, hopefully [the Twister will] have slightly more effect on KPLX than it does [on] KSCS."

Wakeups on KSCS are handled by "The Dorsey Gang." Hosts Terry Dorsey and Mark "Hawkeye" Lewis have been together since 1988, when Dorsey joined from KPLX after a six-year stint there. Co-host Rebecca Carrell joined a few years ago.

"The chemistry [among] the three of them is really starting to coalesce," Huff says. "It has matured into something that we all knew it could be. Obviously it takes time if you're dealing with a morning show and the subtleties that are involved."

Consistency may be a theme at the station. Bill Kinder, who has been there since 1989, has handled afternoons for eight years. Midday host Dominica has been at KSCS for three years, and Chris House has handled nights for six. Alan Fremont has occupied overnights for the last two years.

Despite their veteran status, the jocks remain fresh, Palagi says. "These guys have energy and they sound like they're having fun on the air. They don't sound old and dated, which is tremendous for a heritage staff."

"The more fired up they get, the higher their ratings seem to go," Palagi adds. "It's just infectious."

FINDING THE 'EDGES'

Without any country programming in his background, Palagi says one of his challenges is "to find out where the edges are."

What he's referring to is the music mix, which is 60% current/recurrent and 40% gold. "How far do you push the envelope in any direction, as far as gold goes?" he asks. "If you play Big & Rich, what is the proportion for that type of music as opposed to traditional or mainstream country?"

Dallas' country heritage, lifestyle and sensibilities have been eye-opening for Palagi. "I'm coming to learn that country in Dallas is, in a sense, [what would be considered] mainstream in other markets," he says.

Among the older gold titles that the station plays are Conway Twitty's "That's My Job," Waylon Jennings' "Good Hearted Woman," the Charlie Daniels Band's "Devil Went Down to Georgia," the Bellamy Brothers' "When I'm Away From You" and Johnny Lee's "Lookin' for Love."

"KSCS has a history, being the heritage station," Palagi says. "You play to that strength by playing some of that flavor gold that people expect."

ON TO THE NEXT TREND

Despite the recent victory, Huff says the station has moved on. "It's nice," he says, "but it's just a book. We all know that it has already come and gone. Our eyes are already on the next trend and the next book."

"What people forget is that this is a battle that dates back to 1980 when KPLX first signed on," Huff says. "This is just the latest chapter in a very, very long book."

Huff should know since he worked on the other side of the street at KPLX from 1991 to 1995, first as morning show producer, then as MD.

Meanwhile, Palagi doesn't underestimate KPLX. "They will be back," he says. "They're a fine radio station, and it's going to be a battle. It's clearly not over. I've warned people here that KPLX will almost undoubtedly beat KSCS again."

"The Wolf is a very successful example of how to completely reposition a competitor and position your station as the hip, cool, market-leading country station," Palagi says.

The challenge for KPLX, or any station that completely reinvents itself, Palagi believes, is how the station will evolve. "Once you come on as a new radio station and then you start to gain some maturity, the question becomes, 'OK, now what?'" he says.

But Palagi recognizes the benefits of a good ol' country dust-up.

"The fact that we can stand toe-to-toe and battle it out is good for everybody," he says. "It's better for listeners, it's good for the format, it's good for the labels, and it's good for the radio stations, because a good, fierce, competitive battle is good for everybody."

Palagi also says a good battle generates more revenue for the stations involved because listeners and advertisers are drawn in, building more of a buzz.

"It just becomes a stronger radio market," he says. ●●●

TROY FIELDS / RETNA LTD.

WHEN WHFS WASHINGTON, D.C., flipped to Hispanic last month, fans in that metro area lamented the loss of the longtime modern rocker.

But while many were mourning, a regional rival, active WIYY (98 Rock) Baltimore, was doing a live celebratory broadcast from a local Mexican restaurant.

Although WHFS has now made a limited return to the airwaves courtesy of a Baltimore talk outlet, other reactions from the three markets where Hispanic has replaced rock have ranged from signing on another rock station to moving talent from the defunct station to another outlet within that station's cluster.

When Clear Channel announced its Hispanic programming initiative last September, the first rock station to flip to Spanish was longtime active signal KSJO San Jose, Calif., which made the change in October. While the shift brought protests—and even a “wake” featuring DJs, programmers and sales staff from the station's 36-year history—CC's reasoning makes a degree of sense, as it has a classic rocker, KUFX (KFOX) San Jose, and a modern, KCNL (Channel 104.9) San Francisco, in its cluster. In fact, two former KSJO jocks have found work within the cluster: Longtime afternoon DJ Tim Jeffries has found a home at KFOX, doing the same, and KCNL picked up middayer Sloppy Joe.

Some of the music has been absorbed by other stations in the cluster as well. “Their library stuff that we couldn't go to, because we didn't want to cannibalize what they were doing, are things we're touching upon now,” KUFX PD and 10-year KSJO vet Lori Roberts says. “KFOX is now playing artists it hadn't played until KSJO's demise, like AC/DC and Rush, and is playing more cuts by artists like Led Zeppelin and Van Halen.” Roberts adds that KUFX does well enough in the ratings that it didn't want to distract its audience by adding too much music from KSJO, but it couldn't ignore that material, either.

Roberts thinks that most former KSJO listeners are more likely to head to KCNL before switching to KUFX. “The older end seems to be checking us out and sharing us with [classic rock competitor] KSAN,” she says. “Some of them are coming to us, but I think we're a little soft for most of them. KSJO was very hard-edged. We were probably already the P2 station for a lot of them, and we'll probably stay that way.”

FROM SIX FEET UNDER TO 3 DOORS DOWN Heritage rock KLOL Houston was the next station of that format that CC flipped to Spanish. But Cumulus came to the aid of disenfranchised Houston rock fans in late January by flipping adult R&B KWRP to mainstream rock. Its strategy to replace KLOL as a rock destination was obvious by its choice of call letters for the new station—KIOI—and its choice for market manager, Pat Fant.

KIOI is Fant's third sign-on in Houston. The first was none other than KLOL, where he was also GM for 12 years. In addition, he signed on modern KTBZ before leaving the industry for a venture at White Light, a casket company that sold rock-themed coffins. (Really.)

“Cumulus was very insightful and realized the opportunity that existed in the Houston market very quickly, and moved on it without much prompting at all,” Fant says. “They realized this town is too big, too fast and too wonderful not to have a mainstream rock station. I'm happy I was their choice to lead the effort. I've had enough practice at rock startups here, and I'm going to get one of these right! I'm happy to have another opportunity to build a rock station in Houston, and I think this one's going to stick.”

Fant is building the station from the ground up, hiring everyone from airstaff and a PD to a production director. He wasn't ready to announce any hires at press time. When discussing the vision of KIOI, he says that it will be vital, though toned down a notch from the station he helmed for 12 years.

“Any station I've ever been involved with has been known for heavy personality, both with the on-air staff and the imaging,” Fant says. “The profile of the station will be high and will be highly visible. It will have great stationality and a curious bent to it, and will have memorable features and benchmarks and promotional activities that capture the imagination of the market.”

“I think how it's different is that it will not be quite as raw as KLOL had gotten in some of its more special times,” Fant adds with a laugh. “We were really out there in some of the more aggressive years, and it was fabulous radio, very visual and cinematic, but it wouldn't be appropriate for today's environment.”

That said, Fant isn't ruling out bringing on talent from KLOL. “There was some great talent left standing when the station disappeared,” he says. “There have also been others who have approached us that were highly developed personalities that didn't have an opportunity to grow and mature that are really ready for an opportunity like this. In the kind of environment that I create, some of them would be amazing radio personalities in Houston. This city really embraces radio personalities with something to say, especially those with a heart. I don't want to limit it to just the former KLOL personalities, because there are others out there that have to be considered.” Fant isn't done with Houston, either. He's currently working on signing on another station.

WHAT GOES AROUND COMES AROUND

WHFS was the first Spanish convert to return to the airwaves with its old format, albeit in a different position. It is now broadcasting nights and weekends on talk WXYV (Live 105.7) Baltimore, as well as running 24/7 on Radio@AOL. WIYY PD Dave Hill isn't concerned about the station's return.

“They're on for 80 hours a week doing this,” he says. “They had a hot talk station that had no ratings at night, and they were running infomercials on the weekends. I expected them to do some sort of rock format there, at least on the weekends. The good news for us is that they've turned it into more of a classic modern station, and it sounds like they're only playing about two currents an hour. They're playing New Order, Depeche Mode and deep Police tracks. I thought they were going to just mirror our playlist, which would have been a lot worse.”

Hill thinks WHFS will have difficulty gaining traction by being on the air only nights and weekends. “Those are the two smallest dayparts of our world,” he says. “Morning drive, afternoon drive and middays, they're doing syndicated talking. But in a way, I'm glad they're back, because it gives us something to do. It keeps us driving and keeps a little bit of a battle on the field.”

That battle is what led WIYY to that Mexican restaurant following news of WHFS' initial demise. “We had fun with it, that's what we do,” Hill says. Another local station, WWDC (DC101), “went on the air with this whole ‘We loved you, ‘HFS’ attitude, and secretly, they're turning off the mic and jumping around. It was time to grow a set, so we did. We went out there and rocked. And there's no doubt that us dancing on the grave of ‘HFS probably pissed some people off, but we're a fuckin' rock station.”

‘AND THERE'S NO DOUBT THAT US DANCING ON THE GRAVE OF 'HFS PROBABLY PISSED SOME PEOPLE OFF, BUT WE'RE A F' ROCK STATION. THAT'S WHAT WE DO. THIS ISN'T BRAIN SURGERY, IT'S RADIO.’

HOUSTON, D.C., SAN JOSE REACT TO SPANISH FLIPS

That's what we do. This isn't brain surgery, it's radio."

As Hill mentions, DC101 took a different tack, broadcasting a message that said: "At noon today, 'HFS was silenced after 35 years. They were a voice of new music in this market, and they put on a great festival, and we're sad to see them go. But we're your full-service station, and we're here for you." The station then had a weekend featuring music that WHFS championed in the '80s and early '90s. "I took a respectful approach," PD Joe Bevilacqua says. "No matter how low their ratings were, people loved that radio station."

Bevilacqua says the difference between DC101 and 98 Rock, other than the format, is the market. "WIYY is a great active rock station," he says. "I listen to them, and they have a great afternoon and morning show, but that's Baltimore, and saying that Baltimore is like D.C. is like saying Detroit and D.C. are the same. D.C. is a very tricky rock market. What I've picked up from two years of being here is that it's not an in-your-face rock market, it's a rock market that likes an eclectic mix of music. You need a balance of the crossover hits and the modern rock hits."

After that initial weekend, WWDC didn't acknowledge WHFS on the air, and hasn't adjusted its music mix, either. "They're gone," Bevilacqua says. "If you were in Manassas, Va., you couldn't get WHFS great, but you could get them. You can't get 'HFS there now, and they're only covering about 20% of the metro. And they're only on nights and weekends. If they were on 24 hours a day, I'd look at them like I do WIYY, as a radio station that some people in some parts of the metro can listen to, and it's an option, but they're less a competitor than an out-of-market entity."

Hispanic is one of the fastest-growing formats and nationalities, and CC and Infinity have proved in three short months that they do not have any concerns about the heritage of a station if it's not performing. So while the three stations mentioned in this article were the first high-profile outlets to have flipped, they are by no means the last.

In fact, after the interviews for this article were conducted, Clear Channel flipped active WZTA (Zeta) Miami to Hispanic. In response, Cox flipped dance WPYM (Party) to active rock three days later.

LOW POWER LOWDOWN:

LOW POWER FM BROADCASTERS from all over the country assembled Feb. 8 at the Federal Communications Commission headquarters in Washington, D.C., to participate in the Low Power Forum.

The LPFM service is now 5 years old. In the commercial world, any business that makes it to 5 tends to get considered seriously as a going concern.

That seems the case here, as more LPFMs establish a place in their community, attract both listener and local-government support and draw their management pool from former commercial-radio execs and station owners.

Although the National Assn. of Broadcasters offered a message of congratulation to the relatively new community of LPFM broadcasters, it also struck a cautionary note against relaxing current rules that protect full-power FM broadcasters.

Most of the day's events were a positive for the LPFM community, although there were some misconceptions voiced by panelists and audience members alike about so-called FM translator "encroachment"—seen as a potential hazard to LPFM's continued livelihood.

In his keynote address, outgoing FCC Chairman Michael Powell told a packed meeting room that LPFM supporter Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., was going to introduce a bill that would, if passed, create new opportunities for more LPFM stations to sign on.

That bill, the Local Community Radio Act, is co-sponsored by Sens. Maria Cantwell, D-Wash., and Patrick Leahy, D-Vt.

McCain introduced a similar bill in a previous Congress, but the proposed legislation never made it into law. In fact, instead of facilitating LPFM licenses, Congress directed the FCC to conduct extensive studies and to maintain rules that protect full-power FMs.

LPFM'S ONGOING SAGA

LPFM was created in 2000, but licensing wasn't authorized by the FCC until 2002. Most of the first LPFMs didn't get on the air until 2003.

LOW POWER FM GETS ITS DAY IN THE D.C. SUN

BY TONY SANDERS

The FCC now has 344 licensed LPFMs, with 609 construction permits or modifications of permits still pending.

The political and technical disagreements that delayed the licensing and launch of LPFMs centered on the issue of these 100-watt-maximum stations interfering with the signals of existing full-power FMs.

LPFM proponents say there's no reason to worry about interference to third-adjacent stations and that eliminating the protection requirement would allow many more LPFMs to be built, in some cases closer to urban centers.

The FCC agreed with the proponents and in its original rules for the service did not require third-adjacent protection. Congress thought otherwise and passed legislation that was incorporated into a spending bill for the 2001 Washington, D.C., budget that mandated protection of third-adjacent FMs. The legislation also required an outside firm to conduct field tests on LPFMs for the FCC.

In July 2001, the FCC selected Mitre Corp. to perform the field tests and experiments required by Congress. According to Jim Bradshaw, deputy chief of the Audio Division, which is part of the FCC's Media Bureau, Mitre delivered its report and test results to the commission two years later, in June 2003.

Bradshaw detailed some of the study's key findings during the Low Power Forum. He said the study found that "even in the worst case, no third-adjacent interference between low power stations and existing full-power stations would exist beyond a radius of 1.1 kilometers around the low power [station]. And the commission's technical studies also showed that low power stations do not pose a significant risk of interference to third-adjacent stations."

Some industry engineers queried by Billboard Radio Monitor describe the Mitre study as flawed and point to the 1.1 kilometer radius as a "little island of interference." One engineering expert, who spoke only on condition of anonymity, says, "From a technical standpoint, low powers, in my opinion, cause more interference than they're worth. They basically create a lot of interference in the secondary-service area of existing stations. And they really gunk up the band."

This source also says that if the FCC and Congress eliminate third-adjacent channel protection, "those [LPFMs] are going to plop right down into coverage areas of existing stations. And the end result is, every place where one of these goes in, it's going to create a little island of interference about two or three miles wide and it's going to preclude listeners, who can currently get full-power stations perfectly clearly, [and] it's going to cause interference. And it is real. It is not imagined."

The NAB on Feb. 7 sent a letter to members of Congress, urging them to "resist" eliminating third-adjacent channel protections. The NAB also offered an audio sample of "the real world effects" of third-adjacent channel interference, and directed the letter's recipients to a Web site. "The commission should move expeditiously to roll out pending LPFM applications that are third-adjacent channel compliant. Everyone agrees those applications can provide valuable niche service without risking interference to millions of full power FM listeners. However, Congress should resist any efforts to remove third-adjacent channel protections."

The Mitre study samples were recorded in Maryland and involved short-spaced, third-adjacent, full-power stations that were grandfathered before the FCC instituted its third-adjacent protection policy. The NAB's recordings were done using Walkman-type players. The interference was recorded within a desired station's protected service contour, also known as the 70 dBu contour.

Monitor's own hearing of the samples found an unbearable amount of static and signal interference.

The engineering expert says eliminating the third-adjacent protection and expecting to continue to get clean reception "is asking an average radio to do more than it's designed to do. Your average radio is not super-selective, and it does not have unbelievably good overload characteristics . . . If you do your tests on a Lexus, sure it's going to work. But most people aren't driving around in a Lexus." For the tests to be valid, the engineer says, "it has to work on cheap radios."

LPFM HAS ISSUES

Two panel sessions filled out the half-day's events.

The first panel, "Meeting Local Needs," was kicked off by brief, congratulatory speeches from FCC commissioners

BROADCASTER BECOMES NONPROFIT ENTREPRENEUR

JAMES WOLFE IS A FORMER commercial-radio broadcaster and past owner of three full-service stations in Jackson, Tenn.—one AM, WJAK, and two FM, WZDQ and WFKX. Wolfe told Billboard Radio Monitor that he attended the Low Power Forum in part to participate in the events and in part to lobby the Federal Communications Commission to move his LPFM application through the approval process.

Wolfe attended Lane College in Jackson and recently ran unsuccessfully for mayor of the city. Wolfe said his application has been at the FCC since 2001. He sold the last of his stations last year and has helped create a noncommercial entity, the West Tennessee Cultural Heritage Assn. Current broadcast licensees with interests in other media are not eligible to have an LPFM license.

Wolfe said the objective of the association is to construct a new LPFM in Jackson to support the arts and "to create a platform for individuals to become broadcasters, and to serve the special needs and the cultural awareness of Jackson." He also wants to coordinate with Lane College to give students an opportunity to work at a radio station. The college, he said, doesn't have the use of a broadcast facility.

Jackson is located in Madison County and ranks 285th as a radio market. It has a 12-plus population of 79,100, according to the most recent Arbitron tally.

Jonathan Adelstein and Kathleen Abernathy.

The panel members representing LPFMs described their programming objectives, outlined how they serve the local community and explained some of the hardships they faced in getting their stations up and running.

More controversial was the second panel, "Issues Affecting LPFM."

Commissioners Michael Cops and Kevin Martin offered remarks at the start of the second panel, which expanded on the recurring theme of gaining "primary status" for LPFMs over FM translators.

A few panelists suggested that the FCC consider allowing the service to include higher power levels—currently capped at 100 watts in order to protect full-power FMs from potential interference. One panelist, Chris Lash, of Godstock Ministries, the licensee of Christian LPFM WFSJ Indiana, Penn., asked the FCC to permit his station to accept commercial advertising. Commercial broadcasters are prohibited from obtaining an LPFM station.

THE REAL DEAL: TRANSLATORS VS. LPFM

A recurring theme sounded by LPFM broadcasters, both on the panels and in the audience, was that FM translators were encroaching on and cutting back the service areas for many LPFMs.

In fact, LPFMs have a status that is equal to that of an FM translator—and both LPFMs and translators must yield ground to the signal contours of a full-power FM station.

In that sense, translators do not encroach on LPFMs. But another concern LPFM broadcasters have is that they have been effectively shut out of new license opportunities by a system that is designed to accept as many translator applications as possible.

LPFM proponent and panelist Sakura Saunders of LPFM KDRT Davis, Calif., charged that half of the applications filed for FM translators were written up by two organizations based in Twin Falls, Idaho.

The FCC opened a window for FM translator applications and received an unexpectedly huge number of FM translator applications. The FCC puts the number at around 13,000.

Audio Division chief Peter Doyle spoke with Monitor after the Low Power Forum and explained the stormy relationship between FM translators and LPFMs.

"If you do a timeline, there hasn't been a translator window since, I believe, 1997," Doyle said. "We did a low-power window in 2000-2001. And so, to our way of thinking, translators were next in the queue."

But the FCC was not prepared for the barrage of applications. "When we opened the window, there were about 3,500 FM translator licenses out there," Doyle said. "In our wildest imagination, we never foresaw 13,000 applications being filed. You heard, today, some of the reasons why. There were some very large [individual] filers who filed literally thousands of applications. Does that mean we should rethink how we do this? Absolutely, but the applications are in, and now we have to decide what to do. It becomes a very critical issue for the low-power community to make the argument that they should, in the pecking order, move ahead of the translator stations."

Both types of facilities, Doyle said, have secondary status, when considered against the rights of a full-power FM station.

"Translators and LPFMs have certain rights between them. Translators are a secondary service, for almost all purposes, and are secondary to full-power stations. The commission, when it established these rules, came up with a hybrid for low power. A low power application that is filed a day before a translator application has protection against that translator facility. A translator cannot move in and interfere with a prior filed application by a low power station."

While an LPFM application that is filed prior to an FM translator application gets protection, the reverse is also true if a translator application is filed prior to an LPFM application.

Asked about the LPFM broadcasters' concerns about encroachment, Doyle said it cannot happen if a translator is signed on. Rather, encroachment that can actually restrict or eliminate the signal contour of an LPFM can happen only if a full-power station moves or changes its signal pattern.

"Essentially, if you plot the 70 dBu contour of a proposed full-power station, and there was an LPFM station within that 70 dBu contour, there would be predicted interference. And if the full-power station can prove that, the low power station has to resolve that interference, or find a new location or go off the air."

One solution that was suggested by several panel members is for the FCC to give LPFM "primary status" above that of an FM translator.

Doyle said, "The same way that a low power application gets what we call cutoff protection, if it is filed before a translator, now the low power community is looking at these 13,000—which is now 11,000—translator applications which have been filed." As such, the translator applications are ahead of any potentially new LPFM applications.

Doyle said LPFM broadcasters believe the FM translator applicants "have occupied all the nooks and crannies of [the] FM spectrum that is left. So, now the low power community is on the outside looking in."

He suggested that the request for primary status by LPFMs focuses on the notion of program origination. "In the same way that a full-power station can come in and bump any of these 11,000 translator applications, I believe [LPFMs] want the ability, as a program originator, to say, 'I have a higher value in terms of public service.' Therefore, in the same way that a full-power station has primary status, vis-à-vis the translator status, we as low power program originators should have primary status vis-à-vis translators."

He added, "I think that is an issue that is on the table for the full commission to consider," noting that he expects that question to appear as part of the proposed rulemaking.

Outgoing FCC Media Bureau chief W. Kenneth Ferree sought to encourage the forum's participants when he said, "We're sensitive to those concerns [about LPFM issues], and we appreciate the panelists having traveled here to share those with us." Ferree also signaled to the audience that the desires of the LPFM community must be balanced against those of other spectrum users: "We're also sensitive that other licensees will be impacted by any decisions the commission makes with respect to LPFM. The commission still has much to learn about maximizing the value of the LPFM service without impairing the services offered by other licensees." ●●●

BELLY UP TO THE BUFFET FOR ALL-YOU-CAN-EAT MUSIC

When Napster spent a couple million bucks during the Super Bowl to implore us to “Do the Math” when comparing its new Napster-to-Go service with iTunes’ 99 cent download model, I was struck by two thoughts: 1) The fact that a digital store licensed by “Big Music” is even addressing concern for the consumer experience is a giant leap toward finally engaging the

to the brink of oblivion.

Don’t start in on the silliness about 2004 being the Year of the Turnaround. The eroding CD price point and the extra sales week made 2004 essentially flat in comparison with the horrifying sales story known as 2003. There’s little question that the product of the music industry’s present and future will be digital, so let’s not expend too much energy on the idea that there will be a renaissance for CDs anymore than for 8-tracks. The able to think that a $400 piece of hardware (the beloved iPod) would require $10,000 to fill with songs purchased via the iTunes Music Store.

Most people put aside $10,000 for things like college funds and down payments on houses. But, in defense of Apple Computer—which is staffed by a bunch of smarties who do a pretty darn good job of knowing what the consumer wants—getting you to buy all your music at iTunes was never part peer-to-peer trading is moving more than 1 billion songs per month and growing, that would be a good place to start.

Some other ways to sate your iPod song-lust: ripping your favorite dusty CDs, e-mailing and instant-messaging songs with friends and sharing hard drives. In fact, there is such an amazing upward trend in sharing music among small, select groups that we’re going to examine some of those new products in an upcoming column. But suffice it to say, Napster’s right: Paying for music from the Internet 99 cents at a time is just plain silly. So, in one rather poorly perceived (a paltry 4.7 audience rating) but wildly expensive moment in advertising history, Napster crossed one of the last remaining music industry lines in the sand: all-you-can-eat music on portables. The slaughter of sacred music industry cows is happening so frequently, it seems like we should review:

1999: The music industry loses a pitched legal case against Diamond Rio, maker of the first commercial MP3 player. The industry that swore it would never allow such digital portability now loves the iPod. If the industry had won the case, there would be no iPod, no iTunes and, sadly, no love.

2000: Despite policies prohibiting downloads on the Internet and promising to hold the line on “streaming-only” services, the industry debuts its own attempt at digital download retail and fails spectacularly with the techno-splat known as Blu-Matter. Thanks to draconian digital-rights management and the poor choice of technology vendor, this download service may not have actually delivered a single song to anyone. One journalist noted that Blu-Matter was in a way the best-case scenario for the labels: The journalist paid his money, was thoroughly frustrated and never actually got any music. Nevertheless, this expensive bungle served as an effective cry for help, which Steve Jobs gracefully heeded a couple years later.

2002: The music industry agrees to sell albums in unbundled form for 99 cents, thereby reducing the addressable margin on the core album product by a factor of at least 10. Let’s be candid: Did anyone feel good about buying the whole Natalie Imbruglia CD for $15 just because “Torn” was such an amazingly great song? Now you don’t have to feel that morning-after regret; even though the album costs the same money to produce, you can buy just the song you want for 99 cents. Probably should have held the line on unbundling the album until the lost revenue could be replaced with a subscription event that made up for the prodigious shortfall the unbundling caused. The industry swore that if they unbundled, it would spell the end. They may be right.

2005: Napster debuts all-you-can-eat portable service.

For the consumer, all that’s left is removing the DRM that forces Napster into the realm of “rental” service (which we’ll get into next column) and giving music fans the MP3 format they clearly have always preferred. But you know what you would have then? Napster. The original one with more than 20 million users. Think of the money that would throw off. And the circle of life continues.

Next time: Just like they do in hockey, the Russians are kicking our asses in digital music. ●●● consumer; and 2) Asking anyone to do math during the Super Bowl (let alone after the customary alcohol consumption associated with the first half) is a pretty tall order.

That said, kudos to Napster for opening the Pandora’s box that is business analysis. It’s a place the major labels have studiously avoided throughout their history but one that they must now visit, since operating by force of personality and bluster has brought them real issue is, when are we going to give the consumer what they want and make a whole mess of money doing it? On that score, Napster should be congratulated for breaking down yet another barrier between control-crazy record labels and music-hungry fans.

Napster’s scathing indictment of the per-unit sales model that most 99 cent download stores employ (iTunes being pre-eminent) is correct: It is simply unreasonof their strategy. That is why there is so little fuss made about Apple’s own math—namely, that people have purchased more than 10 million iPods and more than 250 million songs in the product’s history.

So, returning to a little math, on average, iPod owners have purchased 25 songs each. Not so good if you’re a major label trying to get rich 99 cents at a time. And where did those people go to fill up their giant iPod hard drives? Well, since

IF IN DOUBT... DUMP

BY CHUCK TAYLOR ILLUSTRATION BY HARRY CAMPBELL

"ZERO TOLERANCE" is the kind of mandate one might expect from a law enforcement handbook or a haughty political policy. But then Janet Jackson bared her infamous right breast, and suddenly, the Federal Communications Commission sprouted fangs and began a mercilessly fervent campaign to reel in broadcasters it deemed loose-lipped and "indecent."

The FCC has never been able to exactly explain what qualifies as indecency on the airwaves, but with fines being handed out like parking tickets, radio corporations are taking no chances.

Viacom's CBS was charged $550,000 for the boob incident, which was cotton candy compared with the $1.75 million Infinity had to cough up for Howard Stern's alleged morning-show indiscretions. In all, fines for indecent programming exceeded $7.7 million last year, a huge increase from the $48,000 imposed the year before Michael Powell became FCC chairman.

In March 2004, the House of Representatives passed a bill increasing broadcaster fines to $500,000 per violation, up to a maximum of $3 million, from $27,500 per violation.

DELAY BUSINESS SPEEDS UP

So what can a radio station do? In a word: delay. Once designated only for talk stations that had to guard against mischievous or ill-willed on-air phone callers, obscenity-delay equipment has become standard for music outlets in today's watchdog environment.

"Radio stations just aren't taking any chances," says Chris Shute, VP of Broadcasters General Store, which sells pro audio equipment to said companies. "There was a grand awakening after the wardrobe malfunction. Anybody who was dealing with the federal government wanted to cover their assets."

Jim Latimer, director of sales for Symetrix, which manufactures the Airtools delay box, adds, "The FCC never mandated that stations use the technology, but broadcasters had to come up with some sort of scheme to prevent objectionable material from getting on the airwaves, and this was a natural choice for them."

Latimer says the company did a "small tidal wave" of business after the 2004 Super Bowl incident. Likewise at Eventide, which manufactures the BD500 and BD960 units for radio broadcasters.

"For the better part of last year, we increased our production to as high a level as we could to keep up with demand," says Ray Maxwell, Eventide VP of sales and marketing. "We saw an increase in sales that went multiples over years past."

Talk stations have been utilizing the delay gear since the late 1970s, when Eventide created its first digital box, the BD955. In more recent times, stations have employed the technology for potentially bawdy morning shows—particularly where listener call-ins are routine. Stern, not surprisingly, is consistently monitored at his base in New York, as well as by some of the local affiliates that air his morning show.

A NEW ERA

Now, it's the dawn of a new era as nearly all broadcasters are installing delay equipment.

On the TV side, awards shows have become standard targets for obscenity screening. Many sports events that include interviews with players and coaches are now delayed. Fox considered a delay on its vanilla-flavored "American Idol," and Nickelodeon even applied a delay to its "U-Pick-Live," a live weekday show that features children selecting skits and games—even though cable TV programming isn't subject to FCC scrutiny.

RADIO REACTS

Radio is on the same page, for sure.

No. 2 radio group owner Infinity now employs delay gear at every station that airs live programming within the company, following a terse memo that circulated in February 2004 that said, "Any station airing programming that has any sexual or excretory content needs to take whatever steps are necessary to make sure that the programming is not even arguably indecent. When in doubt, leave it out."

sentiment that powerful media had gone too far."

CC's delay equipment accommodates a 20-second delay, "which is most useful for programs that will be monitored in-studio, on the fly," CC engineer Steve Davis says.

Elvis Duran, morning host at mainstream top 40 WHTZ (Z100) New York, stands by CC using the equipment in a delicate regulatory environment.

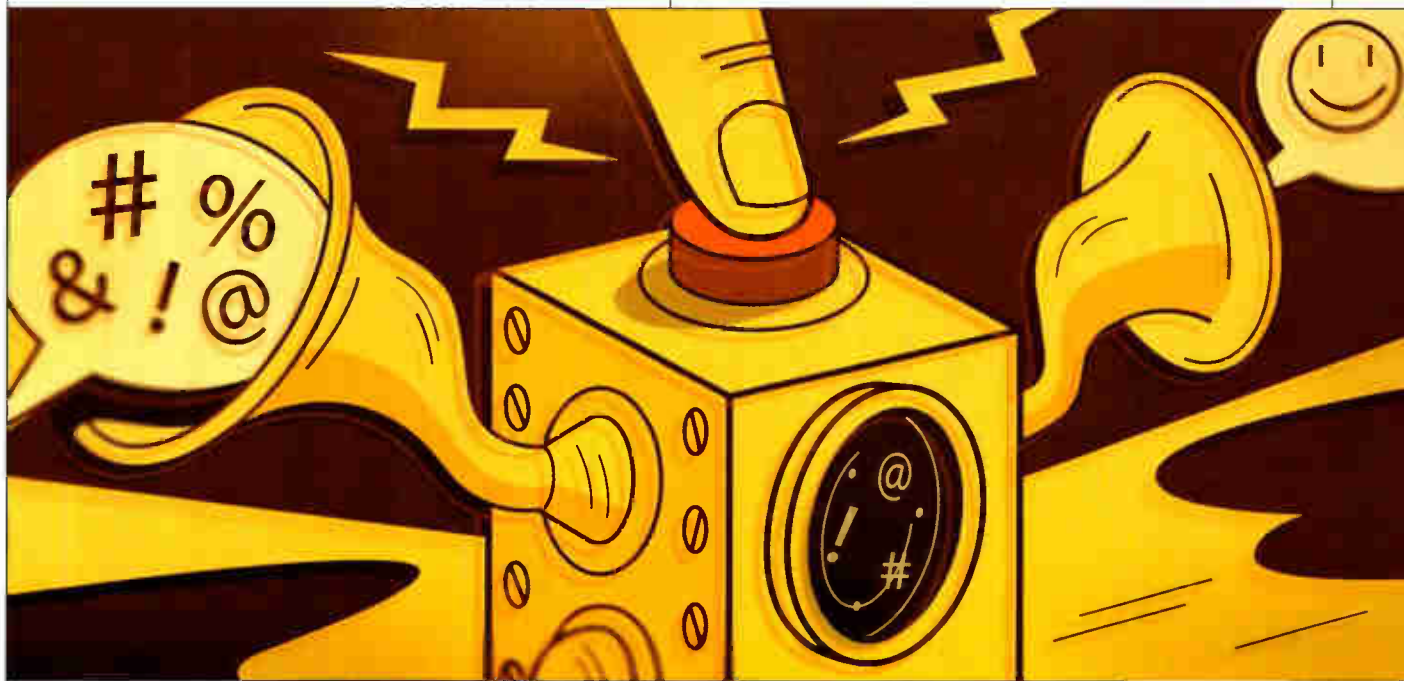

"I rely heavily on our Z100 delay system," Duran says. "My show sometimes airs over 50 calls per hour—all live. The only time we dump is when a relaxed caller lets an obscenity fly. Even though no harm is intended, Clear Channel holds us responsible for the slip. Do I leave it on for the whole show? Hell, yes... I mean, heck, yes."

Following the lead of the major group owners, a year after the Super Bowl incident, Maxwell says his dealers report that "a lot of secondary and tertiary groups are now making purchases. At first, it was the larger groups, but everybody is taking this quite seriously."

HOW IT WORKS

Digital-delay equipment—which can cost a station between $2,000 and $3,400—is capable of buffering on-air content for up to 40 seconds. Maxwell explains, "It starts from the main stereo feed. A guy in the control room monitors the direct feed. If someone on the air launches into a coughing fit or lets go of a string of obscenities, the operator hits the dump button and deletes that segment."

The cool thing about delay technology—and what makes it revolutionary—is that while the segment is chopped from the broadcast, what actually goes out over the air is normally seam-

The memo ordered all stations to install programming-delay units for on-the-fly censoring "immediately."

No. 1 station owner Clear Channel invested more than $500,000 in delay gear in the shadow of the Jackson incident for any station that airs live callers or broadcasts that are deemed "potentially sensitive."

"We want our program directors and on-air talent to have all the tools they need to comply with the law," says Andrew Levin, CC executive VP for law and government affairs.

CC Radio president John Hogan told The New York Times that the company took action because it perceived "much less tolerance in the public for anything provocative or racy. Something has been building for some time in the American public that coalesced at the Super Bowl. It is a widespread less. There are no bleeps. The system is designed to automatically rebuild the delay period.

For example, a station with a 10-second delay that "dumps" 10 seconds of obscene material would suddenly find itself live. But the system would quickly resurrect the delay by using a "time squeeze" algorithm that chops the tiny bits of silence between words.

"That's the magic—the rebuilding part of it," Maxwell says. "Listeners are completely unaware that anything has happened."

CC has vowed to develop a full five-minute delay as part of its self-imposed Responsible Broadcasting Initiative, which may be taking things to an extreme. But again, these are delicate times for radio and the FCC.

"There's no doubt, stations are feeling the heat," Latimer says.

"American Idol" season three winner Fantasia has already turned her debut album, "Free Yourself," into platinum, thanks to launch hit "Truth Is." TOOT TWEET

HAPPY TIME

Las Vegas Mayor Oscar Goodman works one of his city's street corners with "Mr. Happiness," a local celebrity noted for his outdoor air-guitar performances. Goodman was paying off his Super Bowl bet with KMXB's "Mark and Mercedes in the Morning" for the third straight year. Goodman took the New England Patriots, who won the game but didn't cover the seven-point spread. The deal: Whoever lost had to stand on the busiest street corner in Las Vegas and "work it" with Mr. Happiness. The Goodman/Happiness duo danced together on the corner of Sahara and Fort Apache for about an hour raising money for the Make a Wish Foundation. Pictured, from left, are Mr. Happiness, morning show producer Chad and Goodman. (Photo: KMXB)

THE CHARTS

THIS WEEK IN DATA. For complete charts, there's always more at www.BillboardRadioMonitor.com

LEGEND TO CHARTS

Charts are ranked by detections except for Latin, Christian and Country charts which are based on audience impressions, computed by cross-referencing exact times of airplay with Arbitron listener data.

● Songs showing an increase in detections (audience for Latin, Christian and Country) over the previous week, regardless of chart movement. A song will also receive a bullet if its percentage loss in detections (audience for Latin, Christian and Country) does not exceed the percentage of monitored station downtime for the format. Exempting the Country chart, a song that has been on the chart for more than 20 weeks will generally not receive a bullet, even if it registers an increase in detections (audience for Latin, Christian and Country). Country titles which decline in audience but increase in detections will also receive a bullet if the total audience erosion for the week does not exceed 3%.

◎ AIRPOWER: awarded to songs appearing in the top 20 on both the Airplay and Audience charts for the first time with increases in both detections and audience. Airpower awards do not appear on the Latin and Christian charts.

↑ GREATEST GAINER: awarded to the song with the largest increase in detections (audience for Latin, Christian and Country).

+ MOST AIRPLAY ADDS: awarded to the song registering six or more detections at the most stations for the first time this week.

TIES: A song with a gain in detections (audience for Latin, Christian and Country) over the previous week is placed first if tied with a song with a decline over the same period. When tied songs are each gaining detections (audience for Latin, Christian and Country) or each losing detections (audience for Latin, Christian and Country), the song being played on more stations is placed first.

RECURRENT RULE: Songs below the top 20 (top 15 for adult top 40, AC, modern AC, adult R&B, heritage rock and dance) become recurrenents and are removed from the chart after 26 weeks. Country titles move to recurrent after 20 weeks if they rank below No. 15 and are losing audience.

Ⓝ Nielsen BDS certification (for airplay of 100,000 detections on all monitored stations, including satellite and national networks, across the U.S. and Canada. Numeral following symbol indicates multiple level of 100,000 detections.

★ Indicates title earned Hit Predictor status in research data provided by Promosquad.

Playlists are listed in order of TSA weekly cume, beginning with the highest-cuming station. Cumes are updated twice yearly following the release of the spring and fall Arbitron surveys.

A+ AIRPLAY ADDS denotes songs with 6 or more detections at station for first time this week.

IMPACT! Songs at Airpower level and below with a gain in detections or with a percentage loss in detections equal to or better than the monitored downtime in the format.

★ INITIAL IMPACT: Indicates song's first appearance on the Impact! page.

THE SPIN

Tie Suits Lil Jon And TVT Well

"Lovers and Friends" by Lil Jon & the East Side Boyz Featuring Usher & Ludacris (TVT) takes over the top spot of the rhythmic top 40 chart as it wins the first No. 1 tiebreaker in the history of the list.

"Lovers" and last week's No. 1, "Disco Inferno" by 50 Cent, ended the week with 4,350 detections. With both titles declining in spins, the first tiebreaker would normally be the total number of stations playing each track. However, since 60 stations are on each song, we are forced to move to the second tiebreaker, which is week-to-week spin differential. Since the 119-detection loss of "Lovers" is better than the 274-spin drop of "Disco," it gets to celebrate its first week at No. 1.

With its climb to No. 1, TVT becomes the first indie label to top the chart since Relativity spent five weeks at No. 1 in summer 1996 with "Tha Crossroads" by Bone Thugs-N-Harmony.

The action is also tight atop the mainstream top 40 chart. Just six spins stand between Ciara's "1, 2 Step" (Zomba) at No. 1 and runner-up "Let Me Love You" by Mario (RMG). The last time the top two singles were so close in detections was the week of Dec. 20, 2002, when only three spins separated the No. 1 track, "Lose Yourself" by Eminem, from the No. 2 song, "Jenny From the Block" by Jennifer Lopez.

'ROAD' RULES FOR A THIRD WEEK

Rascal Flatts ties its longest No. 1 streak as "Bless the Broken Road" (Lyric Street) spends a third week atop the country chart. The group previously led with "These Days," which started a three-week run at No. 1 in the Nov. 22, 2002, issue.

Flatts also posts two other bulleted entries on the chart from its "Feels Like Today" album: "Skin" (No. 51) and "Oklahoma-Texas Line" (No. 57). According to label sources, neither of those tracks will be serviced to country stations as a follow-up to "Broken Road," but "Skin" has logged a seventh week on the chart and "Oklahoma" appears for a fourth week. The label did, however, circulate copies of "Skin" at the annual country radio seminar at St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis last month. The somber ballad about terminal illness is garnering some spins during local St. Jude radio fund-raising telethons at country stations.

Billy Dean returns to country's top 10 for the first time in almost 10 years with "Let Them Be Little" (Curb), which steps 11-10. Dean most recently held court in that area of the chart with "That Girl's Been Spyn' on Me," which peaked at No. 4 in September 1996. His only appearance at No. 1 was when he and Alison Krauss joined Kenny Rogers on "Buy Me a Rose" in spring 2000. Dean has achieved 11 top 10 songs as a solo performer, including eight top five titles.

MCKNIGHT MAKES IT A DOZEN TOP 10s

With the 12-7 move of "Everytime You Go Away" (UMRG), Brian McKnight earns his 12th top 10 single on the adult R&B chart. McKnight is now tied for third place with Boyz II Men, R. Kelly and Toni Braxton among acts with the most top 10 singles at the format. Gerald LeVert and Luther Vandross occupy the top two slots on the all-time list, with 18 and 16, respectively.

Also moving into the top 10 is Kem's "I Can't Stop Loving You" (UMRG), which advances 14-10 in its sixth week on the chart. That is a marked improvement over the 15-week climb Kem's only other top 10, "Love Calls," needed to reach that part of the chart in May 2003. However, Kem's latest has a long way to go to match the record-setting 97 weeks "Calls" had on the adult R&B list.

Long Time Coming For Muse

Muse earns its second top 10 on the modern rock chart as "Hysteria (I Want It All)" (Warner Bros.) rises 11-9 in its 25th week on the list. With that extended climb, the trio sets a new mark for longest journey to the top 10 in the chart's history, eclipsing the 20 weeks it took Incubus' "Pardon Me" to reach that region in March 2000.

With another upward move, Muse will surpass the peak of its "Time Is Running Out," which topped out at No. 9 this past June and spent a total of 21 weeks on the chart.

MARIAH PADS HER TOP 10 TOTAL

Mariah Carey's "It's Like That" (IDJMG) jumps 12-10 on the rhythmic top 40 chart and becomes her 15th top 10 at the format. That ties her for second place with Janet Jackson and Ludacris for the artist with the most top 10s in the chart's history. Only R. Kelly has more, with 16.

BDS CERTIFICATIONS JANUARY 2005

The following are singles Nielsen Broadcast Data Systems recently recognized for certified airplay of 100,000 or more spins. The detection totals account for all spins on Nielsen BDS' monitored panel of more than 1,200 radio stations in 128 markets across the United States and Canada, as well as airplay on monitored satellite stations and radio networks. The totals cover the period from a title's release through Jan. 31.

HitPREDICTOR column

JENNIFER LOPEZ rules the HitPredictor charts this week, as second single "Hold You Down" debuts in three formats. The collaboration with Fat Joe earns HitPredictor status at mainstream top 40, rhythmic top 40 and R&B/hip-hop. Joining Lopez at mainstream top 40 is Lifehouse with its latest single, "You and Me." This is the group's first HitPredictor at the format and its first in more than a year. The act's previous HitPredictor titles were limited to adult top 40.

Mario scores at rhythmic top 40 with "How Could You," as does Jesse McCartney with "Beautiful Soul." The latter artist's song is now a three-time HitPredictor title, as it also debuts at adult contemporary this week and has previously scored at adult top 40. R. Kelly debuts at R&B/hip-hop with his "Sex in the Kitchen." It is his fourth HitPredictor title in two years in this format.

The AC chart gets an influx of rock and pop songs this week. In addition to McCartney's "Beautiful Soul," Grammy Award winner Green Day adds its "Boulevard of Broken Dreams" to the mix, as do Rob Thomas' "Lonely No More," Five for Fighting's "If God Made You" and Howie Day's multifaceted hit "Collide." Day's track has now appeared on three HitPredictor charts, including mainstream top 40 and adult top 40. Additionally, this is the first time any of these acts have earned HitPredictor status at AC.
