STATION CDs TRANSLATE INTO BRAND POWER AND REVENUE

BY CHUCK TAYLOR

IN THE WONDERFUL WORLD OF broadcast marketing, hundreds of radio stations put their money where their music is: on CDs.

The station-sponsored compilation—most often containing hit songs from artists playing live in-studio and a station's signature hits or even best-of morning show bits—is as universal a promotion as you will find in the industry. It spans numerous formats and markets large and small.

Its appeal presents a reliable opportunity to flash a station's call letters in front of listeners' eyes, potentially making a more lasting impression than the average logo-embossed trinket. In many cases, the discs are also utilized to raise money for community charities, fostering awareness and good will.

As a marketing tool, CDs have in many cases become less expensive—and more effective—than yesteryear's ubiquitous T-shirts and other popular freebies like bumper stickers and Frisbees.

"The CD is valuable to people, and it's something that will remind them of why they go back to your radio station," says Tom Cuddy, VP of programming for ABC/New York and adult top 40 WPLJ. "And it works anywhere. As long as you have reasonable expectations, there's no reason the promotion won't work as well in Tallahassee [Fla.] as in New York."

WPLJ has released six compilation comedy CDs rounding up the best phone scams from the long-lived Scott Shannon & Todd Pettengill morning show. The discs have been sold in stores in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, with pressings as plentiful as 160,000. Profits go to such charities as the T.J. Martell Foundation and LIFEbeat.

On the other side of the fence, Clear Channel mainstream top 40 KDWB Minneapolis released one best-of CD containing bits from its "Dave Ryan in the Morning" show. The station used the CD as a branding tool for Ryan, distributing 10,000 units.

"At some point, you can be dealing with diminishing returns on radio station CDs," KDWB PD Rob Morris cautions. "You've got to have the right content and licensing issues can be dicey, so we stopped."

SOLID OLD

For oldies stations, whose core artists seldom shift, the promotion is a clear-cut calling card for P1 fans' favorite music. The late oldies WCBS-FM New York—recently flipped by owner Infinity to the Jack format—established a franchise with highly successful CD series including "The History of Rock: The 60s," "The Ultimate Christmas Album," "Great Ladies of Rock'n'Roll," "For Lovers Only" and "Motown, Soul and Rock'n'Roll."

In the past decade, WCBS' more than three dozen releases, often issued during the fourth quarter, have sold well enough to occasionally chart on The Billboard 200. The brand, on the Collectables label, extended to sister stations in other markets, including former oldies WJMK Chicago—which on June 3 also flipped to Jack. That likely put a cap on the durable series, which was one of the most successful in the country.

Radio Disney also has funneled its broadcast outlet into a profitable CD franchise, with 20-plus titles including the successful "Kid Jams" and "Holiday Jams" series. The discs compile popular kid hits and songs exclusive to the network. They have collectively sold more than 2.8 million copies and regularly excel on the national album chart.

Another major player is noncommercial triple-A WXPB Philadelphia, whose daily live performance and interview show "World Cafe," hosted by David Dye, is syndicated on 180 public radio stations and Sirius Satellite Radio. Twice a year, the station releases "Live at the World Cafe," which is on its 20th volume.

WXPB sells the acoustic performance-filled discs as a form of self-preservation: to reward donors during public radio fund-raising drives.

"It is used first and foremost as a membership thank-you,"

WXPB marketing director Kim Winnick says. "Typically, CDs are issued to coincide with a fund drive. They are available exclusively to members, with additional copies sent to station affiliates to assist in their own fund-raising efforts. Then, about nine months later, we relaunch them at local retailers."

The station usually presses 20,000-25,000 copies of each release. Winnick says the compilations "are a great premium, because they represent something that is uniquely about the station and the show. We're able to give something back to members while giving new members an incentive."

Likewise, NPR triple-A KCRW Los Angeles' "Morning Becomes Eclectic" was spun off into a two-hour weekly show, syndicated by Public Radio International. Its popularity has extended the brand to a seven-volume CD series that collects live performances from the likes of Norah Jones, Dido, R.E.M. and Franz Ferdinand.

ON THE LOCAL LEVEL

But more widespread are compilations from local radio stations like Susquehanna triple-A KFOG San Francisco, whose CDs are an institution in the Bay Area.

The station's 11 sold-out volumes have raised $3 million in the past decade to aid the Bay Area Food Banks. "Sometimes, the checks we write to the organizations are the single largest donation they get every year," KFOG "marketeer" Jude Heller says.

Following the tsunami in South Asia last year, the station auctioned three sets, each containing all 11 CDs, and raised $15,000 in one pop.

Compilations typically are released the day after Thanksgiving, with a total run of 35,000 (which is the ceiling to avoid paying a higher percentage of royalties). KFOG has also issued seven promotional new-music samplers.

The station goes about promoting its "Live From the Archives" series in a novel way: Each year, it sponsors a contest for listeners

'It's really the gift that keeps on giving. When you plant one of these things in people's hands, they embrace it and want it in their home collection.'

-TOM CUDDY, WPLJ

to design the CD cover. The winner receives $500, an album credit, 10 copies of the CD and an Adobe software package.

"We get about 250 pieces of art every year," Heller says. "We had a research doctor win, along with amateur and professional designers. It's a lot of fun."

It also furthers a kinship between the station and listeners. PD Dave Benson notes, "KFOG's 'Live From the Archives' highlights the best aspects of the relationship between a local radio station, its music and its listeners. KFOG artists contribute their unique performances, and Fogheads, with their purchase of the CDs, contribute to our community. It's not just a contest or a promotion, it's a local radio station raising millions of dollars for a vital community agency by putting unique, high-quality live recordings in the hands of its listeners. It's a win-win-win situation all the way around."

Another prominent station-branded CD series belongs to Clear Channel triple-A KTCZ (Cities 97.1) Minneapolis, which has made its annual "Cities 97 Sampler" a primary marketing tool. Each edition sells out its 35,000 copies. In the past 15 years, the station has raised more than $500,000 for a number of charities, including Camp Heartland, University Pediatrics Foundation, Make-a-Wish Foundation of Minnesota and the Humane Society. The mission of each charity is spelled out in detail on the station's Web site.

"This past year," PD Lauren MacLeash says, "we also put some of the CDs up for auction through our Web site to compete with the people who only buy the CD to turn around and put it on eBay. All proceeds go to our charities, not for profit." The station also produced a limited-edition "Cities 97 Sampler" boxed set for charity auctions and the occasional giveaway.

Susquehanna mainstream top 40 KRBE Houston released "The Best of Studio 104 Live," which compiles live performances from Train, Maroon5, Matchbox Twenty and Avril Lavigne.

"It reinforces our image with the artists and makes a nice keepsake for listeners that makes a definite impression," PD Tracy Austin says. All 2,500 copies were giveaways "as a gift to listeners. We promoted a weekend around it and played cuts on the air, then went to different locations and handed them out," she says.

Austin admits, however, that getting permission to use the performances on CD was enough of a hassle to likely keep her from putting out a second edition. "I don't know if it's the most representative way of putting us out there," she says. "A lot of stuff that we wanted didn't make it because we couldn't get them cleared. There are also a lot of core artists, like Kelly Clarkson and Beyoncé, that don't perform acoustically, so it's never completely representative."

KFOG's Heller also suffers through the aggravation of licensing. "We beg. We do. The artists are so forthcoming and generous in allowing us to use their performances on our CDs, but you end up talking to some cigar-chewing lawyer in New York who is disconnected from the artist and has never heard of the project. It's really hard."

UP CLOSE AND PERSONAL

WPLJ's Cuddy has also dealt with the occasional tug of war in obtaining permission from publishers and labels. He is working on adding to the station's morning-team compilations with a collection of original performances from its Up Close and Personal concerts.

"It's certainly a challenge. It would have been great to have clearance releases prepared in advance," Cuddy says. "It's a lot of work, but so far we're finding that it's not so much people being difficult as the artist wanting to make sure they gave a good performance that day."

WPLJ intends to make a big deal of its upcoming first artist release, with an initial pressing of 150,000 copies. Cuddy says, "We will promote around the clock, send e-mail blasts to our database and come up with some promotions with retail chains. We'll also do a cross-promotional tie-in with one of the daily newspapers."

The disc will be sold, with profits going to the Blythedale Children's Hospital in Westchester, N.Y.

"It's really the gift that keeps on giving," Cuddy says. "When you plant one of these things in people's hands, they embrace it and want it in their home collection. And we're helping children in need."

Greater Media triple-A WBOS Boston has issued two editions of its "WBOS Live From the Archive," the most recent in February. The 16-track album includes contributions from such acts as Jack Johnson, Jason Mraz, the Wallflowers and Pete Dinklage.

These compilations also benefit charity, in this case the Genesis Fund, a nonprofit organization that raises money for New England-area children with disabilities and birth defects.

DANCE TO THE MUSIC

Beasley rhythmic top 40 WPOW Miami sponsored a series of dance-oriented compilations, including "Freestyle Flashback" and "Dancehall Nice Again." The latter, released in 2004, was actually a few steps ahead of the national breakout of dancehall, soca and reggaeton.

In a similar vein, Clear Channel R&B/hip-hop WWPR (Power 105.1) New York has issued several volumes of "Power Mix CD," which feature mixes of the station's signature hits as well as upcoming songs from artists the station is just introducing, with turntable work courtesy of DJ Spinbad.

"The CDs are used to drive traffic to our Web site and build up the station's database," Power 105.1 director of promotions Darren Pfeffer says. "The Power 105.1 database is called the Flip the Switch Club. At the end of the CD, listeners are told to log on to Power 105.1 for their chance to win $1,000. They can do so after they register as a club member."

The station manufactures 35,000 of each title and hands them out free to listeners on the streets. Power 105.1 director of marketing Don MacLeod says, "It's all about where you put your resources. For these kinds of CDs, there is a cost, but we see it as a premium item that is the right fit for the station and listeners."

WGN STEPS UP COMMUNITY INVOLVEMENT

Len Weiner

WHEN YOU'RE A TALK RADIO PROGRAMMER, the world is your oyster. Continually keeping tabs on what's going on in your listening area, you cherry-pick the events, causes and stories that matter most to your audience. And when you come across one with singular resonance, you say, "You know what? We should be there."

This is the spoken-word marketing gospel, according to Len Weiner. Weiner's oyster recently became supersized, however, and he was still formulating his vision for shucking it when Billboard Radio Monitor caught up with him just three hours into his first day as PD at legendary Tribune news/talk WGN Chicago.

While the blueprint is far from complete, one of Weiner's marching orders from VP/GM Tom Langmyer is to step up the station's community involvement.

"Getting out in the community can mean anything from doing a live broadcast from some location, based on a news/talk angle, to a celebration of some kind" to raising money for victims of a Midwest tornado, Weiner says. "It's finding causes that people care about, it's reaching out into towns, like Skokie or Neighborville or any of the surrounding suburbs."

While its ratings bread is buttered in Chicagoland, WGN reaches far beyond it. By day, its signal covers Illinois, Wisconsin and parts of Michigan, Indiana and Iowa. After dark, its footprint at 720 on the AM dial reaches 38 states.

Far more impressive is the station's rich history. The hallways are adorned with old photos of WGN announcers talking with the likes of John F. Kennedy and musicians performing live in WGN's studios during radio's golden era.

Today, the station's stepped-up outreach involves "letting people in different towns know that WGN radio is here and it's as much a part of the community as they are," Weiner says. "I'm a big believer in reaching out and touching, because that's how you get to know your community."

One way the station plans to become more visible is by broadcasting live from big events like the annual Taste of Chicago during the July 4 weekend and during important local elections.

Marketing and promoting this 81-year-old Midwest beacon, which thrives on live, local programming, is not all that different from marketing and promoting a rock station, Weiner says. "Rock stations broadcast live from a Coldplay concert because their listeners love Coldplay. The people who listen to WGN like what we might do. There's really no difference. It's knowing who your listeners are and what resonates in the community."

MIXING IT UP WITH LISTENERS

Weiner has been a sports radio guy since 1993. That was when he became director of programming/assistant GM of ESPN Radio Network, based in Bristol, Conn. Keeping his ESPN affiliation, he arrived in the Windy City in March 2003 as PD of ABC Radio sports WMVP (ESPN1000).

His exclusively spoken-word radio career also includes stints as a news writer at Infinity KYW Philadelphia and as a news producer for NBC Radio Network. When the United States bombed Libya in 1986, NBC Radio aired wall-to-wall coverage

Finding causes that people care about:
Tom Langmyer, Len Weiner and Lori Brayer

'You need to promote the hell out of the radio station in the Cubs games and you need to promote the Cubs games like mad in the rest of the radio station.'

—LEN WEINER

and Weiner directed and co-produced the broadcast. "It was something I'll never forget," he says. He also served as executive producer for sports/talk WFAN New York and programmed sports/talk KMPC Los Angeles.

Whether it is broadcasting live from a neighborhood sports bar or tailgating with fans at the big game, sports radio is known for mixing it up with listeners. How does Weiner intend to adapt that mentality to an institution like WGN?

"Radio is radio," he says. "Ultimately, it's a one-on-one experience. You believe that voice coming out of the radio is talking to you and nobody else. It's a matter of figuring out what works for the particular radio station. I don't see WGN hanging out at sports bars on a Thursday night before a big college football game. But there can be similarities. People like to meet you. At the end of the day, it's still showbiz."

From March through October, WGN enjoys a huge come infusion from airing Major League Baseball's Chicago Cubs, an advantage Weiner would like to better utilize. "Being the Cubs station in this town is pretty huge," he says. "Very huge. The branding, imaging and ratings potential can't be overestimated"—especially when the team is on a tear, as it is at this writing. "I don't think you can ever take for granted that listeners know you are the Cubs station." (WGN and the Cubs are both owned by Tribune Co.)

The trick is recycling the Cubs come into other dayparts. "You need to promote the hell out of the radio station in the Cubs games," Weiner says, "and you need to promote the Cubs games like mad in the rest of the radio station. It's an amazing vehicle to have. As much as it's a place for people to listen to their favorite team play baseball, it's also a place where we should be promoting the heck out of our personalities and what WGN can bring.

"In summertime, it's a must-listen for most of Chicago," he adds. "We need to take better advantage of that in order to promote everybody else on this radio station. If Spike O'Dell has some great interview planned for tomorrow morning at 7:20, you better believe you're going to hear about it during the Cubs game."

BRANDED AS 'COMMUNITY STATION'

Weiner's fresh perspective, along with that of Langmyer—who arrived in March after 13 years at Infinity N/T KMOX St. Louis—could not have come at a better time. Critics say there is a disconnect between WGN's lofty image and its marketplace reality. The station's "WGN is Chicago" motto has rung hollow of late, they say, and it is not spending enough time out in the community, pressing the flesh, shaking hands and kissing babies. This has allowed competitors to wrest its home-grown image, particularly ABC Radio talk WLS-AM.

Langmyer built a strong reputation in St. Louis as a community-minded programmer and manager and defends WGN's track record in that area. "This group of people—[marketing director] Lori [Brayer] included—has done a tremendous job already [of] being involved in the community. The station is already very deeply rooted, involved and visible in the community. It has done that well before my arrival. Since we are a community station—that is our brand—we are always looking for new ways to grow and enhance that, through whatever means it takes to be even more visible than we already are."

Langmyer plans to review all of the station's community initiatives, seeking additional opportunities to reach out and touch its 818,000-person come. "Because WGN is Chicago and is the station of record for this region, it's important for us to always look to find new opportunities and new ways to connect," he says. "I'm a big fan of grass-roots marketing. WGN has a tradition of building signature events that match the radio station and the radio station's listeners and touch all of the great communities that make up Chicagoland in various ways."

AGING AUDIENCE

Few stations in America have the longevity of WGN. Yet like other, far younger old-line AMs, WGN faces a demographic challenge: More than half of its audience is over 65. What's more, for the first time since fall 2002, the station fell from first place in the winter 2005 Arbitron book. Demonstrating the ratings power of the Cubs, WGN's five-book trend 12-plus is 5.8 (winter 2004) to 6.2 (spring 2004) to 6.9 (summer 2004) to 5.9 (fall 2004) to 5.3 (winter 2005).

Increasing those numbers will be a challenge. "You don't want to tick off the people who have been buying your product for 20-25 years, while at the same time you want to introduce people to a new kind of car," Weiner says. "It's a fine line."

Despite WGN's aging audience, Langmyer insists he is not trying to "young up" the station. He says WGN "has always looked to introduce new listeners that grow into a need for a station such as this." That introduction generally occurs when listeners enter their 30s or 40s and have a family, a mortgage and a need to be informed. (According to Arbitron, 42% of WGN's audience is 35-64.)

"It's important for us to always be relevant," Langmyer says, "and welcoming them to the station when they grow into an age when they need it."

LEARNING

TO ARGUE WITH YOURSELF —MULTITASKING TO THE MAX

BY PHYLLIS STARK PHOTOGRAPH BY ERIKA GOLDRING / RETNA LTD.

In major markets, radio stations normally have the luxury of a full-time marketing and promotions director. But at most small-market stations, the person you will find running the promotions department and manning the prize closet is often the same person occupying the PD chair, and sometimes donning the headphones to fill an on-air role as well.

For the radio pros in smaller markets, multitasking is an art form.

The upside is that they never have to worry about the PD and promotions director being at odds when they are one and the same. The downside is that, when asked to describe their workloads, the word “overwhelming” comes up a lot.

In the race to see who can handle the most jobs, our hands-down champion is Boomer Kingston, OM of Encore Broadcasting’s five stations—country KGKL-AM-FM, AC KELI-FM, country KKCX-FM and modern rock KNRX-FM—in San Angelo, Texas. He’s also PD, MD, promotions director and afternoon driver for KGKL.

How does he do it? Kingston offers two words of advice: “Schedule flexibility.”

“Having a hard and fast schedule doesn’t work in this multitasking environment,” he says, noting that his workload “can be overwhelming if you let it. Getting into the office early to take care of daily tasks can make it much easier to deal with the unexpected ‘fun’ things that come up. The most difficult part is to make sure that each station gets an equal amount of attention for growth and improvement.”

Myla Thomas says she balances her triple role as PD, promotions director and morning co-host at country WBVR (96.7 the Beaver) Bowling Green, Ky., “very carefully. It’s a full plate, and it takes a lot of planning and time management.”

“Time management is the key to balancing the two jobs,” says Ryan Dokke, PD/promotions director for country KXXX (Kix 95.3) Aberdeen, Wash. “I make sure that so much time during the day is spent on promotions, while also being productive with programming duties. At times this can be difficult and overwhelming, but the end result—if I have done things right—is so rewarding.”

At the Regent Communications cluster in Lafayette, La., all of the PDs handle promotions duties, and they all pull an air shift as well. This includes country KMDL PD Brian Landrum.

The good news for Landrum is that while this triple threat may sometimes be overwhelming, at the same time, “there’s not much time to dwell on it. You take each task one step at a time and focus on it. You can’t worry about things you can’t control.”

Kelly Green says his roles as PD, morning man and promotional idea guy at country WFGE (Froggy 103) Murray, Ky., can be “very overwhelming, especially when a salesperson comes to me and says they have a client ready to buy but he wants a great promotion and he needs it tomorrow. Yikes! That makes it impossible to come up with something original, and then you resort to swiping [an idea].”

Shane Finch, the PD and promotions director at country WTRS and oldies WMFQ Ocala, Fla., puts a positive spin on his double duty. “I haven’t found many conflicts with the mul-iple roles,” he says. “As PD, my role is to protect the integrity of our programming and that includes any promotion. Client-driven promotions are such a vital part of our business that, for our operation, it makes sense for the PD to be deeply involved.”

NO ‘FAILURE TO COMMUNICATE’

Kingston is among those who think having one person handling multiple roles at a station has its advantages. First and foremost, he says, is that “there is no ‘failure to communicate.’ Plus, it’s easier to keep things rolling in the same direction when you know what must be accomplished today and in the long term across the platform.”

Landrum says having one person handle several important roles “can eliminate communication problems. I am the direct contact with sales rather than something getting lost in translation.”

Another advantage of overseeing the promotions department, Kingston says, is that because he assigns the remotes every weekend, he is assured “the job will be done right with a happy client at the conclusion, which means a lot less stress for me.”

Asked about the advantages of her triple duty, Thomas says, “You know exactly who to get it from, and who to give it to. You also know who is to blame if it falls through the cracks.”

And the dual or triple role can have its perks for broadcasters as well. Among them: “Getting first dibs on remotes” and “weekends off when you want them,” according to Green.

EJ “Hoppy” Gilmore sees several advantages to his roles as PD, promotions director and morning co-host at country KVOX (Froggy 99.9) Fargo, N.D.

“I like the setup because I can work with the sales team on developing a promotion and making sure it will benefit the station as well,” he says. “And since I’m also in charge of daily upkeep for our Web site, I can move a potential on-air promotion to the site if it looks like it will cause too much clutter on the air.”

For Gilmore, “wearing all of these hats cuts down on all the red tape. There are fewer steps in getting an idea into a full-blown promotion. Things can happen faster.”

Landrum is glad of the opportunity to pull an air shift because it "keeps me aware of what's happening on the air and what my staff is feeling. Plus, I love to multitask, so I thrive on having my hands on so many projects at one time." But he's also grateful his shift is just two hours a day.

'WEARING ALL OF THESE HATS CUTS DOWN ON ALL THE RED TAPE. THERE ARE FEWER STEPS IN GETTING AN IDEA INTO A FULL-BLOWN PROMOTION. THINGS CAN HAPPEN FASTER.'

—EJ "HOPPY" GILMORE, KVOX

Finch says one big advantage of "one person handling these [multiple] duties is avoiding the 'he said, she said' game. Another is keeping everyone focused on the basic rule of promotions, namely, there are always three parties involved [the station, the client and the listeners] and it's only good if it benefits all three parties.

"Occasionally, people get blinded in the rush and sell one of the parties into a losing agreement," he says. "As the gate-keeper, one can generally avoid this in advance.

"Protecting the interests of our current client list, sales department and programming is a nice advantage," Finch adds. "At this level, I'm allowed to monitor the gate closely."

For Dokke, the main advantage of being PD and promotions director is that "the program director always knows what the promotions director is doing and thinking."

And Dokke feels the added responsibilities will help at any future jobs in bigger markets. "Whether [I'm] a promotions director or a program director, I will know the heartaches and headaches from the other's point of view."

NEVER ENOUGH TIME

Whatever the advantages, broadcasters who serve in multiple capacities at their stations do sometimes worry that things are falling through the cracks.

For Landrum, "the biggest fear is that you are going to miss something big [like] a concert announcement, [or] be late for an event."

He thinks one disadvantage of having multiple roles is "the worry that something else will suffer. You can only try to be great at all things, but sometimes the lack of time will cause something to suffer. You do your best."

Green agrees. "When you're wearing three hats, it's tough to give all three departments equal time. One will usually suffer and, unfortunately, it's often the promotional department."

Right now, however, he's so busy with an upcoming listener-appreciation contest and an on-air cash contest that it is his morning show that's "suffering a little bit from lack of prep."

The biggest hardship for Gilmore is having to do late-night promotions, then be up and ready for a morning show.

"I don't believe in forcing my staff to do anything. So when there's a late-night event that nobody can attend, the PD in me makes me go out to the event," he says. "It has to get done, so I'm the guy who does it. It's tough to get up and do a morning show on only three hours of sleep."

Gilmore's morning co-host at KVOX is also the station's OM. "Between the two of us, we don't have much time outside of the morning show to focus on it," he says. "That's why we have a full-time producer. If our producer needs our help, he knows we're available for about an hour after the show. Then we switch gears."

For Kingston, the hardest part of juggling multiple jobs is that "there aren't 28 hours a day, which would allow a couple of extra hours at home with the family."

OF TWO MINDS

It is also hard to be discriminating when you handle multiple roles. The promotions director is not likely to turn down an idea from the PD—or vice versa—if they are the same person.

"It is hard for my program director mind-set to tell my promotions director mind-set 'No' on a really good idea because we may not have the budget or some other reason," Dokke says.

For Finch, "the major disadvantage is in getting caught up in your own nonsense excluding other ideas and views ... Accountability is crucial in our business."

Illustrating his point is Green, who quips: "Since most of the promotional ideas are mine, I like them all." ●●●

PROMOTIONS NOTEBOOK

THE NEXT BIG IDEA CAN'T WAIT

COMMENTARY BY ED SHANE

E-MAIL: eshane@shanemedia.com

It was June 2, and I was looking at a client station's promotional calendar—a big dry-erase board spread across the wall of the PD's office.

"What are we doing for Halloween?" I asked the PD.

"Halloween!" he said with that exasperated sound programmers give consultants who ask questions. "That's months away. They're still working on June."

By "they," he meant the sales department, well-meaning but frantic people who were throwing value-added promotion ideas at him left and right, most of them for the coming weekend or a weekend or two away. The barrage distracted him from basic planning of the bigger promotional and marketing thrust for his radio station.

He is the typical medium-market PD: He is in charge of the on-air product. He leads and motivates a staff of air talents. He does an air shift every day and adds voice-tracking for time-shifting. And he's the promotions director, also a typical assignment for a medium market.

Today's multitasking PDs and promotions directors seldom have the time to consider the value and impact of the gazillion ideas that come from salespeople, the record industry, e-mail solicitations, trade magazines, other PDs and friends in the business.

When Billboard Radio Monitor's Phyllis Stark told me she was writing an article in this issue about PDs who are also promotions directors, I told her I would be interested to read how many of the people she talks to are the source of marketing ideas and how many simply implement advertiser-directed free exposure.

I'm constantly amazed at how many stations allow their brands to be diluted and their strategies diverted while calling it "promotion and marketing."

Don't get me wrong. I'm a capitalist, and I know our stations have to make their dollar goals. I also know that the brand experience with a radio station is something the public understands very well. When listeners find that experience is not in alignment with what the station means to them, we hurt ourselves badly.

My first question about any promotion is, What are we trying to achieve? Reduced to the simplest terms, there are three goals for any promotion: cume, TSL or image. If the station is not trying to achieve at least one of those goals, the promotion has no value.

The next question is, Who's the target? A client e-mailed recently to ask what I thought of a tattoo promotion for the country station in his cluster. My response was that it fit better on the active rock station down the hall. Not that country listeners do not wear tattoos, but the image of the station had to be taken into account.

The bottom line of any promotion is that it should be in sync with the needs and expectations of the station's audience.

Question three: What is the desired consumer response? Do we want them to listen? (I hope so. So many promotions fail in this aspect.) Do we want them to show up somewhere? If so, can they find the place? Is the location suitable for the crowds we might draw? What will they do when they get there?

Question four: Will we ask our listeners to spend money? And, if so, will they get their money's worth?

I can't tell you how annoyed I get when I hear stations giving "free" coupons for $10 off a purchase. That's not free, that's a sinister enticement to spend money. "Free" means come in and get something with no strings attached, with no need to pay up, with no need to buy more. If the free offer is a good one, the listener might come in and buy more stuff. If they do not, that's OK.

These questions apply to the individual requests for value-added promotion, yet they should be part of the planning process that gets Halloween on the calendar before June. The planning process starts with the events that are always locked in—the St. Jude Radiothon, the local festivals, the calendar holidays.

True planning sets out the year quarter by quarter (or book by book). A good promotional plan puts the weekly requests for instant promotions into perspective. The big events need priority or they will not get the audience impact the station needs. If there's no overall plan, the little events fill the void and the station gets cluttered.

That's why, on June 2, we stepped back from the day-to-day pressures, looked at the white board in the PD's office and started to brainstorm. By the end of the day, the PD and I had crafted "12 Guitars of Christmas" as the final promotion of the year.

With Christmas planned, June felt complete. ●●●

THE MANY HATS OF MARKETING AND PROMOTIONS

BY KEN TUCKER PHOTOGRAPH BY PATSY LYNCH / RETNA LTD.

MARKETING AND PROMOTIONS, promotions and marketing. The two have been so closely linked through the years that they are difficult to separate.

But there is a difference.

While the word "promotions" paints pictures of remotes, contests and station events, "marketing" brings to mind billboards, TV spots and direct mail. Promotions generally means serving an already participating audience, while marketing is aimed at the larger community: potential audience and prospective advertisers.

Billboard Radio Monitor talked to industry pros about how marketing and promotions mix and match.

"Some stations have separate marketing and promotions people, but I've been fortunate to handle both," says Annie Sandor, promotions director at Clear Channel country WPOC Baltimore. "It's important that the same message be driven into the minds of our listeners. I think the jobs have always been there, but with consolidation and downsizing, it's just more apparent now.

"It's always been a promotions director's job to market their station," she continues, "but maybe it just hasn't been spelled out until now."

Sandor is very involved with external marketing for the station and works with WPOC PD Ken Boesen. "Our outdoor campaign, Big Country Stars, was Ken's idea," she says. "I worked with him to identify our five Big Country Stars, we worked with our graphics guy for layout, and then we chose the placement of the boards."

Sandor, who says roughly half of her workload is tied to marketing, is also involved in station imaging. "That's a big part of my job," she says. "I need to make sure that everything I'm doing matches Ken's vision for the station. If he's going in one direction with station imaging, I need to make sure promotions look, feel and breathe that image."

CC/Baltimore VP/market manager Jim Dolan is part of the team. "Dolan is really supportive of Ken and me," she says. "That helps to make things smooth and easy when planning the marketing."

Five hundred miles to the northeast, Portland (Maine) Radio Group's Chris Mac is in a unique position. He is OM/marketing director for the Saga-owned cluster. In addition, Mac calls himself "a guide and resource" for the promotion department (see story, page TK).

While the state of Maine does not allow billboards, Mac is involved in print, TV and direct mail marketing for the stations. "I am also involved in creating and placing radio ad campaigns for our news station, WGAN, to air on the music stations in our cluster," he says.

Mac works in a team environment. "Portland Radio Group president/GM Cary Pahigian consults, Saga executive VP Steve Goldstein consults, and each PD is involved in their station," he says. "We discuss needs, goals and creative. My job is to execute."

When even more brain power is needed, Mac says he can count on support staff, plus other PDs and promotion and marketing people at various Saga stations. He says that Scott Allen from sister stations adult top 40 KSTZ/oldies KIOA Des Moines, Iowa, was instrumental in helping with the creative for the TV campaign for adult top 40 WMGX.

Since Portland is rated twice per year, Mac says the busiest times for him are mid-February through April and mid-August to October, when marketing "can easily take up 50% or more of each day." And he has become more busy marketing each station in the cluster, which has grown from four to seven stations in the last few years.

A MATTER OF SCALE

Jefferson Pilot country KYGO/classic country KCKK Denver director of promotions Paul Heling says he is involved in all outside marketing, but "the degree of responsibility varies as to the scale of the project." He sees his workload as 80% promotions, 20% marketing.

"We have a group marketing director who works with each PD on major campaigns," Heling says. "My role there is support. For instance, with our current TV campaign promoting a cash giveaway, I dealt with side projects like getting clearance to shoot at various landmarks around Denver and scouting and lining up listeners to audition to be in the spots."

Heling says his marketing duties have increased through the years with the advent of Web sites, e-mail database marketing and loyalty programs, though it varies by station. "I've been in some situations where 100% of the marketing fell to the promotions director, some where the PD was held responsible for major campaigns and currently, where the marketing director was responsible," he says.

THE PUBLICITY HAT

Like many of her compatriots, Sandor, who joined WPOC from CC country sister WWYZ Hartford, Conn., last August, counts "publicist" among her job descriptions.

"I have media contacts on speed dial, and I'm always e-mailing," she says. "You have to constantly work the other media outlets to make sure that your station is top of mind [with them]. I'm a big believer that great partnerships with other media help solidify your image in the market.

"One of my closest friends in Hartford was my counterpart at the CBS-TV affiliate," Sandor continues. "We'd talk all the time about how to keep our stations aligned with the best shows and events."

While Sandor says she writes WPOC's press releases, e-mail allows her to be less formal. "I'm a who-what-where-when-and-why girl," she says. "Give them the details, not a story. It's their job to make the story compelling for their audience, and it's my job to make sure they have all the info they need."

When it comes to press release distribution, Sandor knows that not everyone should receive every release. "I have three lists," she says. "One for the good stuff, one for local and one for all. Most of the releases will go out to the all list. It's important to reinforce WPOC's position in the industry as well as our market.

"The local list gets the day-to-day items," she continues. "The good stuff is all the inside things that make WPOC such an awesome station, but not necessarily front-page news."

Lindsay Warren, business development coordinator for Greater Media AC WMGC Detroit, has a growing number of responsibilities, including writing and sending press releases.

"We strive to illustrate what WMGC does for our local community," Warren says. "We also try to highlight the technologies our stations and parent company are embracing, such as [high-definition] radio and online digital music stores."

Warren says accuracy is key to any release she sends out. "My biggest concern is making sure facts, grammar and spelling are absolutely perfect," she says.

"We try to feed the local media with hooks that may be interesting to them as much as we can," Heling says of his philosophy. "We also try to keep the trades up to date on what's happening at KYGO."

Even though the press releases come from his department, Heling says he is happy to stay in the background. "While the release comes from the promotions department, an air talent or PD may be listed as the contact," he says. "It doesn't pay to get publicity for the promotions director, but it does for the air talent."

Like Sandor, Heling cherry-picks his recipients. "We have an overall local and national list," he says. "We pick and choose from there who might be the best fit for that particular information."

While he does not write press releases—promotions director Lara Seaver handles that—Mac does see himself as a media contact, depending on the story. "If it is a station promotion, then [I am involved]," he says. "If it is a story regarding the local radio market, or industry news, it is best for the [group] president . . . to address the media."

EARN WHILE YOU LEARN

Our experts agree that much of what promotions directors do is learned on the job.

"Ten years in radio will make you way better at your job," Sandor says. Though she has a bachelor's and master's degree, she says, "I continue to learn every day. It's about making your station stand out in the crowd, and there's not a classroom around that can teach you that."

Like Sandor, Heling has the appropriate college background but also learned on the job. "I was a communications major with an advertising emphasis, so while I played radio at the student station, I was taking marketing and PR classes," he says. "But the specifics of radio came from living through it. I had the most fun in my first gig when we just jumped in and did stuff without much strategic thought behind it."

"It was a small market, and we were all young and energetic. We learned from each other," he continues, "and soaked up information from the trades, conventions and consultants."

Warren says she has also learned from experience. "Greater Media has been a wonderful training ground," she says, noting that her only previous experience came while working at a college station.

She says her responsibilities have grown along with those of her boss, Greater Media director of corporate communications/WMGC marketing director Heidi Raphael. "As her duties increase, so do mine," she says. "My experience increases too."

Being the face or voice for a station or cluster means dealing with the media in difficult situations.

While working as a programmer in West Palm Beach, Fla., Mac recalls a good promotion gone bad that caught national attention. "We had a well-thought-out promotion to help the Palm Beach County Fair," Mac says. "To kick off the fair, [NBC's] Willard Scott was going to do his 'Today' show weather from the county fairgrounds live at 7:05 a.m."

The plot thickens. "Our well-thought-out promotion went a little awry, causing Willard Scott to be knocked over, into a live cow, which took off running, on national TV," Mac recalls. "The 'Today' show abruptly cut the live shot and quickly went back to the studio in New York."

"When I arrived at work, all the local TV stations and newspapers were waiting," Mac says. "Each one came at me like Mike Wallace, wanting to know why my radio station caused the Palm Beach County Fair to look foolish in front of a national audience."

Sandor says she is lucky to not have had any tragedies occur at station events. But explaining air personality turnover is no picnic. "The most awkward would have to be talking about replacement of staff," she says. "I went through five morning shows in my time in Hartford, and each time the press calls got weirder. I had to keep the station in the best possible light, while making sure to stay within guidelines of legalities and etiquette."

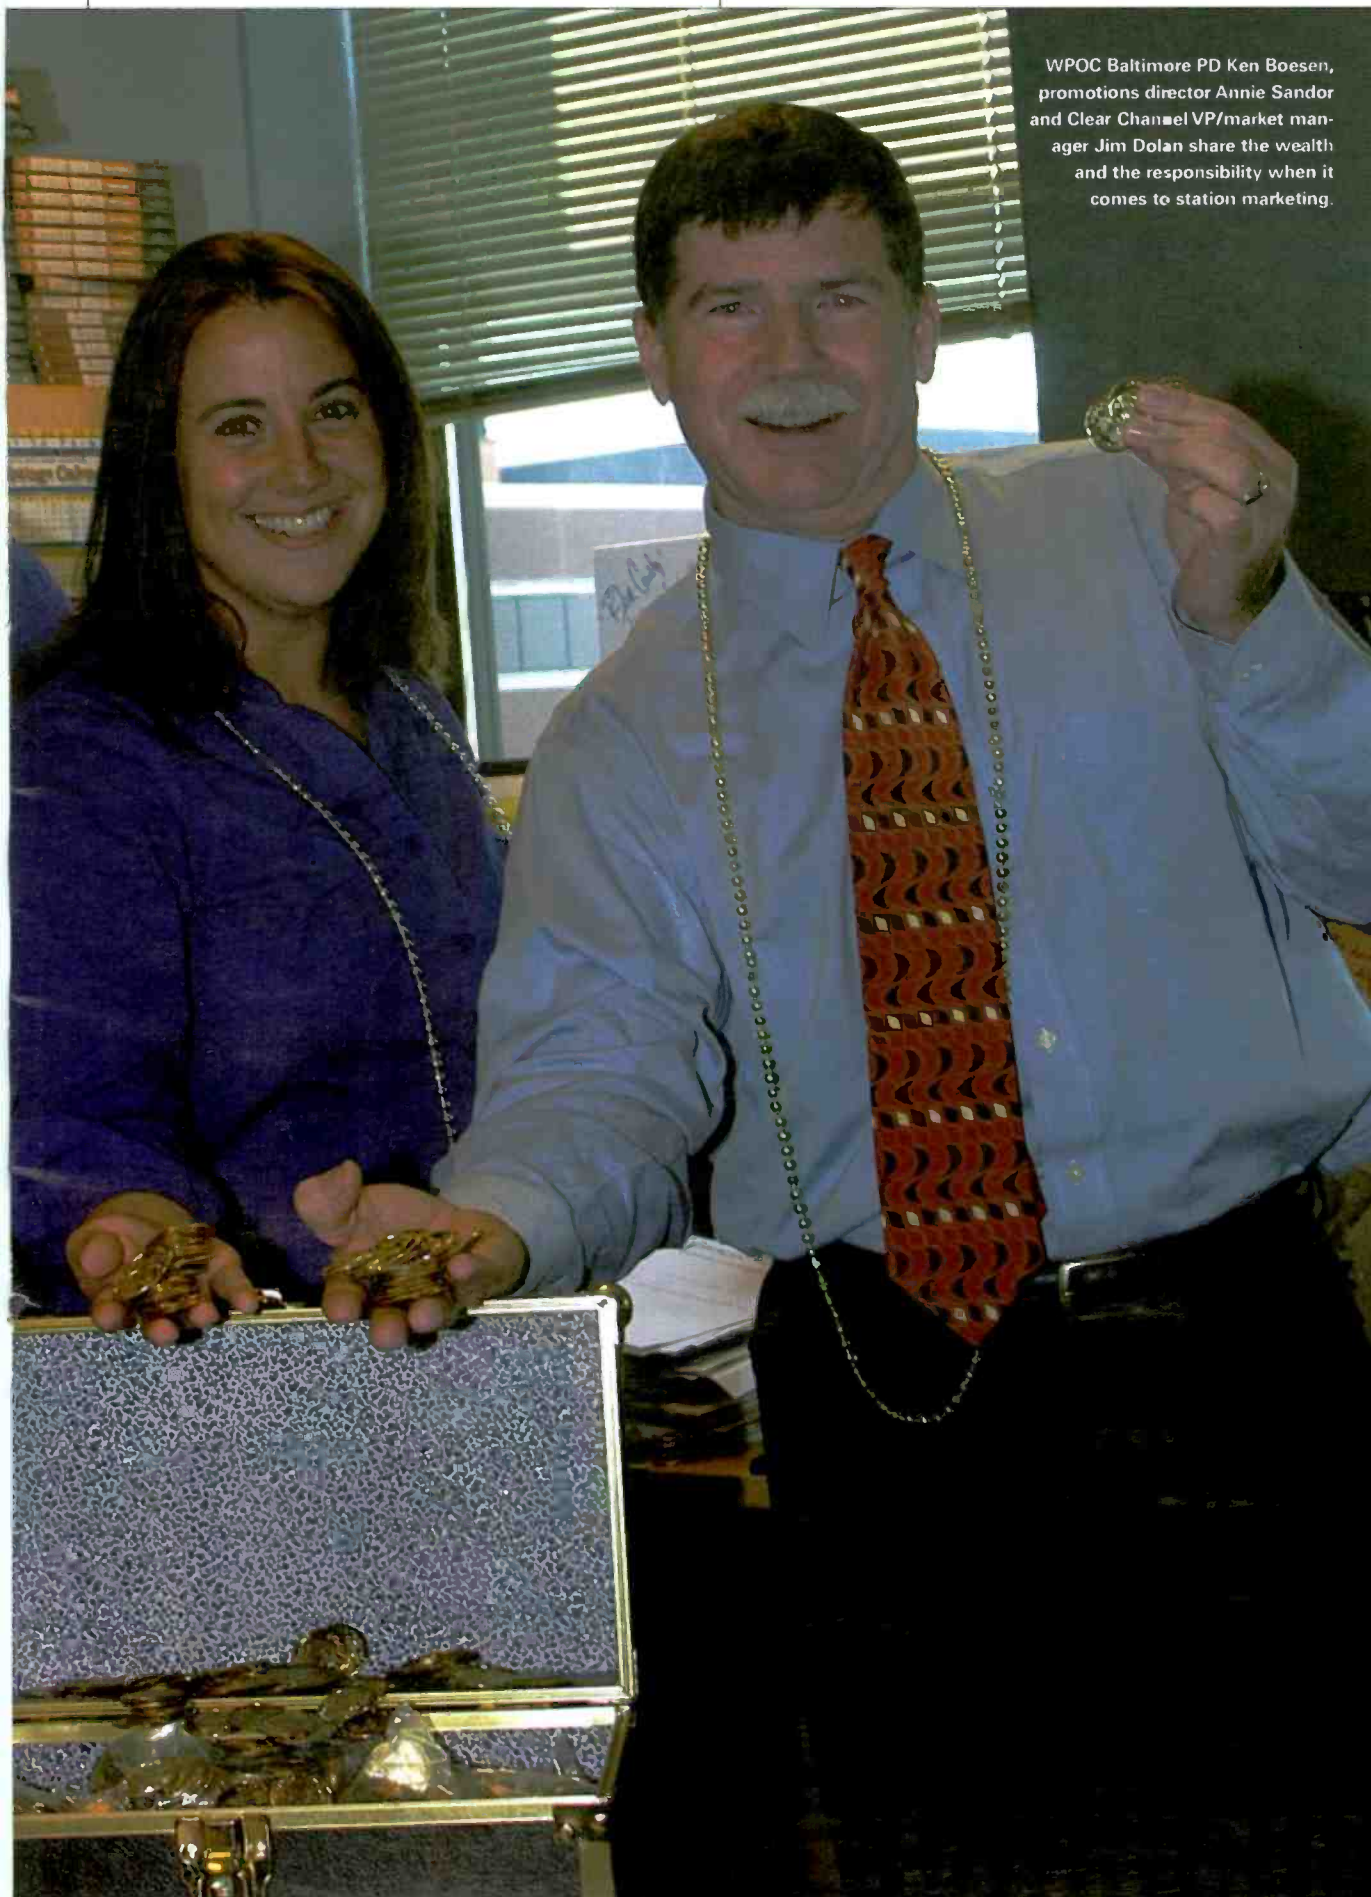

"'No comment' is just not a good response anymore," Sandor believes. "It automatically presumes guilt or fault."

Heling has also faced tough questions, though they were not from the media. "I think the most difficult time for me was the week that we were about to drop bombs on Iraq and the Dixie Chicks had their 'PR problem,'" Heling says. "I was the promotions director for a country station and the promotions manager for the cluster."

"On the good side, we had a cluster-wide campaign ready to go to raise money for families of service people, and the station I was promotions director for had a great overall portfolio of public service."

"On the bad side . . . hate e-mails to the [country] station became fierce," Heling says. "The station continued to play the Dixie Chicks, which the PD should be applauded for."

"The tough part there wasn't dealing with the media, but [dealing] directly with the listeners," he says. "We tried to get to as many of their calls and e-mails as we could at a time when emotions were high."

WPOC Baltimore PD Ken Boesen, promotions director Annie Sandor and Clear Channel VP/market manager Jim Dolan share the wealth and the responsibility when it comes to station marketing.

THE STATE OF TCHOTCHKES

BY BRAM TEITELMAN

MARKETING & PROMOTIONS SPECIAL ISSUE

T-SHIRT? YAWN. Bumper sticker? Been there, done that. Yet as pedestrian and trite as those items seem, they remain the most popular items for radio station giveaways.

"Radio stations like to keep the costs down, so they're always doing bumper stickers, T-shirts and key chains and things of that nature," says Aaron Schimmel, owner of merchandise company Rock Star Promotions.

But while those items continue to rate high for promotion departments and listeners, there is a lot more swag out there.

"When you are dealing with a mass audience and a limited budget, I keep to what our audience wants," says Brian Billick, marketing/promotions director for Infinity active KSRX (102.7 K-Rock) and news/talk KTSA San Antonio. "For K-Rock, I do a one-color black shirt and I can get many at a low cost. To placate our female audience, we recently purchased K-Rock black baby-doll shirts and tanks."

On the KTSA side, Billick has ordered travel mugs, pens, mini-footballs and can cozies to promote the station's coverage of the Dallas Cowboys.

Bumper stickers aren't going away anytime soon, either. "Stickers are standard issue—very cheap and easy to produce, plus you get some long-term benefit from them if people stick them on things," says Gary Clapp, promotions director at Clear Channel modern XETRA-FM (91X) San Diego.

"We're always looking for things that go above and beyond T-shirts and stickers," says Tom Lisack, promotions director for Infinity triple-A WXRT Chicago. "We want to give something to people that first of all, they can use, and secondly, isn't too much of a pain to carry around all day outside. It's been something as simple as a deck of cards. That's been the hot thing to do lately, with the way poker has taken off on TV."

Playing cards capitalize on radio's latest trend as well. "I've started seeing a handful of orders from Jack-FM stations around the country for playing cards," says James Winter, owner of North East Promotions, which counts all of Infinity's stations among its clients. "If you look at some of their logos, they look like a playing card, so they're capitalizing on that."

SEASONAL SWAG

Summer brings its own crop of swag, with the hand fan being a popular giveaway. "It gets hot in San Diego in the summer," Clapp says. "[They're a] very cheesy item, but they are cheap and people use them like mad at street fairs and festival shows."

Michael Oliviero, director of marketing and promotions for Clear Channel/Tampa Bay, Fla., says its active WXTB (98 Rock) has been giving listeners lanyards. "They show up to a show with them, we spot them and put a backstage pass on them to go meet the band."

This past winter, ice scrapers were an in-demand item for mainstream top 40 WHYZ (Z100) New York, says Josefa Paganuzzi, promotions director for Clear Channel's New York cluster, which includes classic rock WAXQ (Q104).

One of the more unconventional items comes from KSRX, which recently got station urinal-screens printed up. "Target where they're looking, I say!" Billick comments. "The urinal screens are scented and in multiple colors."

There are upscale promotional items, but most are too cost-prohibitive for stations to give away.

"We have these little FM radios that can be tuned directly to their stations that come with earphones," Rock Star Promotions' Schimmel says. He also mentions that even USB flash drives can be customized with logos.

While most budgets do not allow for customized USB drives, there are ways stations can get involved with new-media listening. Oliviero says mainstream top 40 WFLZ Tampa gave away custom-designed iPod covers.

TIME IS MONEY

Sometimes it's not cost, but time, that is a problem. "The negative for radio is that a lot of the great, new, innovative stuff is being done overseas in China, and radio just doesn't have the production time," Winter says. "They don't have 75-90 days to wait. If anything, radio has a handful of days, so it's almost all domestic stuff we're doing."

It is also essential to stay ahead of fast-changing trends. "Four years ago, the trucker hat was the hottest thing across the country," Winter says. "It's finally starting to fizzle out. If you take it back to eight years ago, mousepads were huge. That was the hottest item with a radio station, and now that's kind of died out as well."

CO-BRANDING

One way to offset promotion and marketing costs is to partner with a sponsor. "Many years ago," Winter says, "it was voodoo for most stations to even consider using any kind of sponsorship—even putting a sponsor on the back of a bumper sticker or a T-shirt. Stations wouldn't do that. Now it's a way to offset costs and is commonplace."

"We've got the money for the T-shirts and the stickers in our budget, but the other stuff beyond that, we typically have to work with someone, and it's a matter of just making it fit," WXRT's Lisack says. "LaSalle Bank here in Chicago is heavily involved with both Chicago baseball teams, so we've created T-shirts specifically designed for the Cubs and the White Sox that have the LaSalle logo on the sleeve."

Some would rather not have promotional partners. "We want our logo only, front and center," Oliviero says.

KSRX doesn't partner with sponsors, either. "It would be nice, but at this point, no," Billick says. "We buy them ourselves. I like having full creative control over our items."

T-SHIRTS STILL RULE

Winter says he often finds demand for a new spin on an old item. "T-shirts are always the No. 1 item that stations want," he says. "Just this year, the retro look has come in. It used to be a mistake if you were printing a multicolor image on a black shirt and you didn't put a white base underneath. This year, I got sent shirt ideas from stations where it looks like a vintage shirt. It's a soft material that's laundered, and it's not printed with any base, so the shirt shows through. Years ago, that would be a mistake, but it looks like something you pull out of your drawer 10 years later. I wouldn't call it all the rage, but it's definitely a trend."

That assertion is backed by Oliviero, who says WXTB has gone to the retro look for its T-shirts.

MEAT AND GREET

If many of the aforementioned items seem a little too, well, normal, then consider AAA Entertainment active rock WIHN Normal, Ill.'s unconventional promotion for Father's Day: Since May 31, the station has been taking qualifiers to win their dad's weight in meat.

"We've teamed up with the College Hills Meat Shop and we are going to be doing a huge barbecue on Saturday the 18th where all of our qualifiers will check in for the draw down," promotions director Adam Chandler says. "The winning individual will have their dad weighed, and whatever he weighs, he will receive that much in meat from the meat shop... In addition, the winner will receive a brand-new grill of their choice—up to a $400 value—a new recliner chair and a cigar gift-package from a local tobacco shop."

Another item guaranteed to cause a reaction, especially among male-leaning stations, is the tried and true: pictures of girls in bikinis. Gina DiGregorio, promotions director for Morey Organization rhythmic top 40 WDRE (Party 105.3) Long Island, N.Y., says the station's most popular promotional item is a calendar featuring its listeners. "We do a contest in the summer where we have girls compete and listeners vote for them on the Web site," she says. "The top 12 girls win a vacation to Hedonism [resort] in Jamaica, and that's where the photo shoot is done."

BACK TO THE MUSIC

91X just came out with a two-disc compilation of local music, which Clapp says brings its promotion back to what the station's about: music. "We will be using the compilation on the streets for the next couple of months. [We'd] like to do more of this in the future, we just need to see how this program goes for the station. The big advantage to a CD is that they cost considerably less than a T-shirt and are directed to what people come to us for: music. The negative is that the CD, for the most part, will sit in a person's hands and not advertise the station to those around them like a T-shirt or sticker."

HOW RACE RELATES TO RADIO REVENUE

BY IVORY M. JONES

Fockers.' We really wanted the 'Batman' premiere [for a promotion], but it went to [Infinity modern rock rival] KROQ and they are a rock station that's primarily white. Kudos to them for getting it, but our listeners would've liked it too."

Jason, who is white, feels that a lot of times the stereotyping is due to the decision-makers' inability to relate to urban radio listeners.

"Although Los Angeles is a very multicultural city, this is a major entertainment center and a lot of the decision-makers for the major studios in marketing and promotions live on the west side of L.A. and are out of our 18- to 34-year-old demographic. They like to partner with the stations that they listen to, which unfortunately aren't stations like us that often. But I think that would probably be applicable to a lot of different markets, formats and products."

But adult R&B and R&B/hip-hop stations and their listeners are not the only parties that can be hurt by these troubling practices. The very marketing and ad agencies that are putting such dis-

Kizart echoes Jason's "try harder" mantra.

"Urban radio has to continue to be vigilant in providing good information to national marketers and advertisers. Providing good quality data that helps to educate is key and Interep is working hard in that area. On June 10, we released a comprehensive lifestyle presentation on the African-American consumer and then we'll be actively meeting with the advertising agencies and key national marketers across the country to make sure that they understand the opportunities in targeting the urban marketplace."

Jason adds that time can improve things as well.

"I foresee that the people that have held those jobs and decision-making positions for a long time will either have to change and learn more about this new powerful group of consumers or they'll outdate themselves in marketing. I think that there is goodness out there, but you just have to do it one victory at a time," she says.

There are some major corporations that have already developed a reputation for working closely with urban radio stations.

In 1998, syndicated morning radio personality Tom Joyner called attention to a memo that had been circulated by Amcast, a once-prominent advertising agency that was a division of Katz Media Group.

The memo specified that advertisers should not advertise on R&B/hip-hop and adult R&B radio stations because advertisers should want "prospects, not suspects."

After an angry outcry from the African-American community, Katz's president issued a public apology.

Fast-forward one year later to 1999. The Federal Communications Commission released a report titled "When Being Number 1 Is Not Enough." The report discussed the results of a study that examined the impact that unfair advertising practices had on minority-owned and minority-formatted broadcast stations.

'URBAN RADIO HAS TO CONTINUE TO BE VIGILANT IN PROVIDING GOOD INFORMATION TO NATIONAL MARKETERS AND ADVERTISERS.' -SHERMAN KIZART

The report, written by Kofi Asiedu Ofori, the director of research for the FCC Civil Rights Forum, determined that many urban stations that targeted predominantly African-American audiences—mainly adult R&B and R&B/hip-hop formats—were often denied the big-bucks deals that their general-market associates received because of ad agencies' "no urban dictates" (NUDs) clause.

Though several years have passed since these events, how much have things changed in the world of marketing and advertising on "urban" radio stations? According to Sherman Kizart, senior VP/director of urban radio with Interep, the results have been a mixed bag.

"NUDs aren't as widespread as they once were, about five or 10 years ago," Kizart says. "Some marketers are a little bit smarter about how they will mask their desire to not include urban radio, but certainly these discriminatory advertising practices have not gone away and frankly, they continue to cost urban radio stations millions of dollars in lost revenue."

On the plus side, Kizart notes that the changes, albeit slight, have translated into some revenue increase. "If you look at the amount of revenue that formats other than urban were generating, there were disparities between the monies the general-market stations were getting and what the urban stations were getting. Over the past 20 years, that gap has closed. Urban radio has historically been generating 0.7% in market revenue. Today, that number is closer to a 1:1 ratio."

SIDE EFFECTS

Dianna Jason, senior director of marketing and promotions for Emmis/Los Angeles, which owns R&B/hip-hop KPWR (Power 106), says the side effects are felt in other areas besides revenue. It affects the product that urban stations deliver to their listeners.

"With movie promotions, when [ad agencies] think of urban stations, they always think of your stereotypical hip-hop-focused film releases like 'Next Friday' [a comedy starring Ice Cube]. But our listeners want to go see 'Batman,' 'Star Wars' or 'Meet the criminary practices to use can also impede their revenue as well.

According to the 2004 "Buying Power of Black America" report published by Target Market News, African-American households have more than $650 billion in earned income, which is increasing faster than any other group.

"Some advertisers are taking advantage of it, but some aren't. There's still a lot of opportunity," says Julian Davis, director of Urban Radio Marketing Services at Arbitron. "While the black community as a whole does not produce very many things—meaning they're on the consuming end and not on the manufacturing end—there's a great opportunity for people who want to bring their brands to the table."

But even powered with this information, marketers and their ad agencies continue to ignore the spending power of urban radio listeners.

"Right now, there is a hot button for the Hispanic market," Davis says. "Even though the black community overall has about $100 million more in spending power, Hispanics still seem to be the current hot button. It's almost as if they just discovered that there are Hispanic people here in the United States."

The refusal to acknowledge the power that lies within the community of urban listeners can become very frustrating, Jason says.

"General-market station people sometimes say, 'Hey, let's do a promotion and send people to Vegas for sweeps.' But then we call and they tell us that they're full or that they don't think our listeners are their target demographic."

However, if handled properly, the frustration can translate into success.

"We handle the frustration by continually selling. We've been No. 1 in this market, but this format keeps you humble. You always tend to fight as if you're not No. 1, which can make you try harder. None of this is new news. This has been going on for years . . . but you can't let it defeat you. You just have to continually do it," Jason says.

So is there anything that urban radio can do to change the circumstances?

Davis cites McDonald's as an example.

"When you think about companies like McDonald's, they have been a major supporter of radio as a whole and black radio in particular. They brand early and they brand often," he explains.

Until other major corporations and their ad agencies follow suit, Jason says that her team will simply continue to work hard and appreciate each victory, no matter how small.

"We recently had a victory with a board of tourism. We did a flyaway promotion and initially, they did not want to work with our station. They didn't think that our listeners were within their target demographic. We finally convinced them to work with us and they ended up selling additional trip packages to their location," she says.

"There's always going to be challenges, but we'll keep going forward with it until somebody gets it in their mind-set that whether they're marketing a BMW or a Mercedes or even a travel package to only a certain type of consumer, then they're really limiting the people who can and will purchase them." ●●●

COUSIN BRUCIE

BY CHUCK TAYLOR

SKY HIGH

BRUCE "COUSIN BRUCIE" MORROW IS SPEAKING

even faster than usual. His voice is a cyclone of emotions: sadness, perhaps anger, but also exhilaration and optimism.

"I feel like I've been riding on a rocket ship," Morrow says. "In all of my career, never in my life have I experienced anything like the past three or four days."

Considering that he has been a beloved companion to New York radio audiences for more than 40 years, that's a pretty forceful statement.

Less than a week ago, Morrow, who has worked at WCBS-FM for two decades, found himself a man without a radio home, as the heritage Infinity oldies station and its Chicago sister, WJMK, were flipped to the trendy Jack format June 3.

Morrow barely had time to make sense of the news before Sirius Satellite Radio CEO Mel Karmazin came calling with an offer for him to join the big bird in the sky. On June 8, the news broke that our favorite cousin was indeed moving to a new neighborhood.

"All my life, it has been a dream of mine to be able to talk with a national audience, to make new friends," he says. "There are so many people transplanted from New York and New Jersey all over the country; now I can connect with all of them."

Morrow is scheduled to start at Sirius during the July 4 weekend with a broadcast from the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in Cleveland—an institution that has previously honored him—then he will settle in at Sirius' New York studios with three shows: two music-intensive and one all-talk.

"One of the most amazing things is that all of a sudden, I have full control of this huge library of songs," he says. "I'm not chained to a chair with a playlist of 200 songs anymore. I'm like a kid in a candy store. It's just unbelievable."

Morrow intends to pepper his shows by bringing in the personalities and luminaries he knows from his hallowed days at New York's famed WINS, WABC-AM and WCBS-FM. He is excited that his music shows, like most of the Sirius music channels, will be commercial-free. "I can't even compute that yet," he says. "How wonderful to be able to communicate more." His talk show will give him the chance to discuss whatever comes to mind: "People will have their Cousin Brucie to talk to about whatever they want. People like to reach out to me—it's like talking to a relative. I am thrilled."

Of course, Morrow has strong feelings about the demise of WCBS-FM, which had been spinning the oldies for 33 years. The flip was a closely held secret—so much so that many station personalities gathered the morning of June 3 at B.B. King's in Manhattan to celebrate former Monkee and morning man Micky Dolenz's 100th show.

"Everybody was happy and kissy and huggy," Morrow recalls. "I went home and then got a call [from GM/VP Chad Brown], who said, 'As of 4:30 this afternoon, CBS-FM will cease to exist.' I lost my breath. I rarely stutter and stammer since I talk for a living, but I said, 'What did you say?' When I was told they were taking the format to Jack, I reacted very violently.

"There are other Jack stations within the Infinity organization, and I wasn't impressed with the concept. It seemed like they had laughable numbers to cause all this fuss," he says.

Adding to Morrow's dismay, "WCBS-FM was doing very well. It was a top 10 station. Its revenues were in the double-digit millions. A week-and-a-half ago, if anyone had told me WCBS-FM was going to close shop, I'd have said they were crazy."

Other on-air staffers were told to phone in for a conference call later in the afternoon. Then the bomb was dropped. Among the casualties: PD Dave Logan, Dolenz, Bill Brown, Randy Davis, Harry Harrison and Don K. Reed.

"We all had a feeling that something was in the air," Reed tells Billboard Radio Monitor. "I talked to Harry Harrison before the call, and I said, 'I don't think they're calling us to ask what color we want the studio painted.'"

Reed adds, "The station started changing a few years ago when they did away with my doo-wop show and took away the '50s. To me, the older demo has their kids married off, they're out of the house, they can buy a car or take the cruise. Madison Avenue just didn't respect a station that was attracting older people."

At 5 p.m. June 3, the Beastie Boys blasted over 101.1, making the flip more than obvious.

A letter from Brown on the WCBS-FM Web site promises visitors that the music and personalities of the radio station will return to the new CBS-FM Web site, which will stream the oldies format.

"The heritage CBS-FM you know and love now lives here online," it says. "Our goal is to have many of the on-air personalities you have enjoyed and loved over the years stream their shows live. We will continue to incorporate many of the features and special theme weekends you have come to expect from this great station."

Morrow, for one, wasn't buying it. "It was a sad moment in my life and for millions of people who rely on this cultural icon," he says. "You can't just take away a franchise like that and not expect a reaction. I don't think they realized that the backlash was going to bite them in the tush. It was more immediate than I even expected."

"People in New York are proud of their own culture," he adds. "There are things they count on that are uniquely New York. They want New York pizza and New York bagels. This switch is a tremendous breach of trust."

Morrow says that once the switch was announced, his wife came home and he told her there was alarming news: "She thought a relative had died. I told her that, well, a relative did die—WCBS-FM."

While Morrow has respect and fondness for those he worked with and for, he admonishes the corporate culture in broadcasting that led to CBS-FM's demise.

"It's very sad that business and broadcasting cannot really mix," he says. "The bean counters worry about demographics. Well, I don't know what demographics means. I know people."

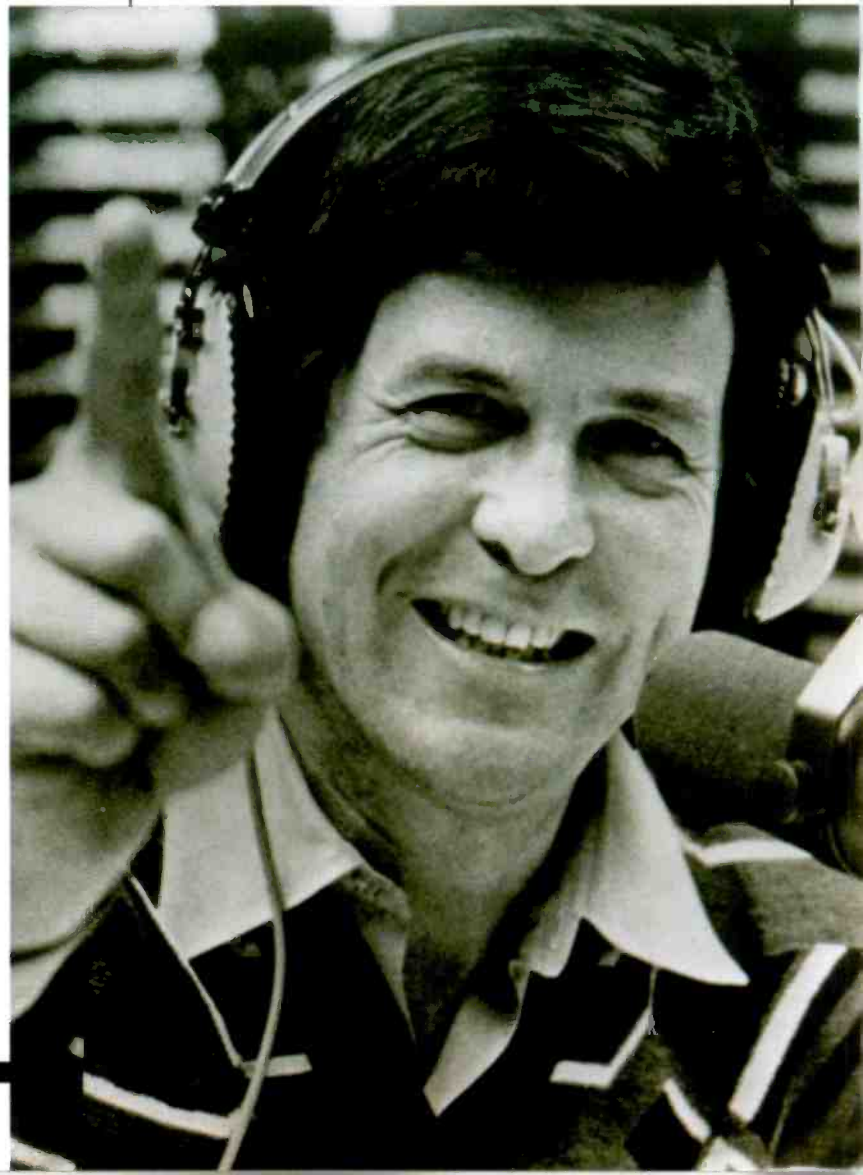

Like Reed, Morrow believes that the perception of an older audience being less than appealing to advertisers is absurd. "When you're in your 40s and 50s, you are not ready to be buried. These people have huge incomes. Is the youth market buying a Lexus or flying to Paris first-class?"

Reed thinks that Jack's fatal flaw is its lack of on-air personalities. "I can't crawl in the head of a younger person, but the person on the air is very important. You've got to have something between the records to make a station sound different. I think personality radio has got to come back."

Reed is not sure of his next step, saying that he's past knocking on doors for work: "People know where to find me." Also, he laments never having the chance to say goodbye to his listeners. "They were great for 33 years," he says.

Morrow is excited for the chance to not only keep doing what he loves, but to do it with more personal freedom than perhaps ever before. Still, the cloak over CBS-FM is not something he will forget.

"I think I'll have to call my next book 'The Day the Music Died... Again.'"

THIS WEEK IN DATA. For complete charts, there's always more at www.BillboardRadioMonitor.com

THE SPIN

BY ANTHONY COLOMBO, RAPHAEL GEORGE, WADE JESSEN AND PATRICK MCGOWAN

LEGEND TO CHARTS

Charts are ranked by detections, except for Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country charts which are based on audience impressions, computed by cross-referencing exact times of airplay with Arbitron listener data.

● Songs showing an increase in detections (audience for Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country) over the previous week, regardless of chart movement. A song will also receive a bullet if its percentage loss in detections (audience for Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country) does not exceed the percentage of monitored station downtime for the format. Exempting the Country chart, a song that has been on the chart for more than 20 weeks will generally not receive a bullet, even if it registers an increase in detections (audience for Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country). Country titles which decline in audience but increase in detections will also receive a bullet if the total audience erosion for the week does not exceed 3%.

AUDIENCE TOTALS on the charts are derived, in part, using certain Arbitron Inc. copyrighted Persons 12+ audience estimates, under license.

◎ AIRPOWER: awarded to songs appearing in the top 20 on both the Airplay and Audience charts for the first time with increases in both detections and audience. Airpower awards do not appear on the Latin and Christian charts.

↑ GREATEST GAINER: awarded to the song with the largest increase in detections (audience for Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country).

+ MOST AIRPLAY ADDS: awarded to the song registering six or more detections at the most stations for the first time this week.

TIES: A song with a gain in detections (audience for Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country) over the previous week is placed first if tied with a song with a decline over the same period. When tied songs are each gaining detections (audience for Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country) or each losing detections (audience for Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country), the song being played on more stations is placed first.

RECURRENT RULE: Songs below the top 20 (top 15 for adult top 40, AC, modern AC, adult R&B, heritage rock and dance) become recurrences and are removed from the chart after 26 weeks. Country titles move to recurrent after 20 weeks if they rank below No. 15 and are losing audience.

⊕ Nielsen BDS certification for airplay of 100,000 detections or all monitored stations, including satellite and national networks, across the U.S. and Canada. Numeral following symbol indicates multiple level of 100,000 detections.

☆ Indicates title earned "Hit-Predictor" status in research data provided by Promosquad.

Playlists are listed in order of TSA weekly cumes, beginning with the highest-cuming station. Cumes are updated twice yearly following the release of the spring and fall Arbitron surveys.

A+ AIRPLAY ADDS denotes songs with 6 or more detections at station for first time this week.

IMPACT! Songs at Airpower level and below with a gain in detections or with a percentage loss in detections equal to or better than the monitored downtime in the format.

★ INITIAL IMPACT: Indicates song's first appearance on the Impact! page.

CAREY CARRIES RHYTHMIC TOP 40 DETECTION RECORD

In her fourth week at No. 1 at Rhythmic Top 40, Mariah Carey's "We Belong Together" (IDJMG) sets the format record for most one-week detections, with 5,567. The total bests the mark set recently by 50 Cent, who hit 5,520 spins with "Candy Shop" two months ago.

Carey's success comes one week after she set the all-time audience total on The Billboard Hot 100 with 192.3 million listener impressions. Carey also sets the bar at Rhythmic Top 40 with her current total of 47.4 million impressions.

At R&B/Hip-Hop, Carey remains at No. 1 for a third week and closes in on that format's top spin total by a female artist. With 5,420 detections, "Together" ranks second only to "Goodies" by Ciara Featuring Petey Pablo among female-led titles. "Goodies" had 5,695 plays in the Sept. 17, 2004, issue. Snoop Dogg's "Drop It Like It's Hot" set the mark with 3,315 detections in November.

'MEMORIES' MARKS FIFTH WEEK AT NO. 1 IN TIGHT COUNTRY BATTLE

In the closest race for weekly audience dominance on the Country chart since Billboard Radio Monitor began maintaining an audience-based list in the Sept. 19, 1997, issue, Keith Urban's "Making Memories of Us" (Capitol) ekes out a fifth week atop the chart with 34.954 million impressions, holding Rascal Flatts' "Fast Cars and Freedom" at No. 2 for a second week. The trio's track finishes the week 9,000 impressions behind Urban's song with a total audience tally of 34.945 million.

Since the audience chart was launched, the quest for a No. 1 on that list has been determined by fewer than 50,000 impressions on only two occasions. Prior to this week's race, the closest margin was a 45,000-impression gap that separated Gary Allan's "Nothing on but the Radio" from Kenny Chesney's "The Woman With You" on the chart dated Nov. 26, 2004. A difference of 48,200 impressions put Toby Keith's "Beer for My Horses" (with Willie Nelson) ahead of Randy Travis' "Three Wooden Crosses" in the May 30, 2003, issue.

Further down the Country list, Brooks & Dunn's "Play Something Country" (Arista Nashville) takes double chart honors with Most Airplay Adds and Airpower stripes as it jumps 23-7.

The duo has the youngest title in the upper half of the chart at four weeks. Moving down the list, the next freshest title does not arrive until No. 35, where Trace Adkins logs a third chart week with "Arlington."

Nine Inch Nails hangs on to the top rung of the Modern Rock chart for a fifth week as "The Hand That Feeds" (Interscope) edges Weezer's "Beverly Hills" (Geffen) by two spins. That is the closest race for the No. 1 spot at Modern Rock since the July 18, 2003, issue, when the White Stripes' "Seven Nation Army" held off Jane's Addiction's "Just Because" by one detection.

Elsewhere, 10 Years makes its first chart appearance at Active Rock as "Wasteland" (UMRG) debuts at No. 31 and earns Greatest Gainer and Most Airplay Adds honors. It is the first time since Alter Bridge's "Open Your Eyes" picked up the Greatest Gainer trophy in the July 9, 2004, issue that an artist has claimed either award with its first chart track. No new artist has earned Greatest Gainer and Most Airplay Adds simultaneously since Zwan did so with "Honestly" in the Dec. 13, 2002, issue.

'TRUE' TRAVELS LONG ROAD TO AC TOP 10

After peaking at No. 4 on the Mainstream Top 40 chart in January and at No. 13 at Adult Top 40 one month later, Ryan Cabrera's "True" (Atlantic) cracks the top 10 (11-10) at Adult Contemporary in its 22nd chart week. It is the longest path to that portion of the chart by a male artist.

Though the AC format is renowned for its deliberate pace, only two other songs have spent more time making their way into the top 10: Norah Jones' "Don't Know Why" (31 weeks in March 2003) and Train's "Drops of Jupiter (Tell Me)" (49 weeks in June 2002). Cabrera is also the first male artist to earn his inaugural top 10 at AC since Clay Aiken scored with "Invisible" in December 2003.

At Adult Top 40, Cabrera's labelmate Rob Thomas spends his seventh week at No. 1 with "Lonely No More" (Atlantic). This marks the longest-running chart-topper for a male solo artist at the format since Shawn Mullins' "Lullaby" spent eight weeks at the top in late 1998 and early 1999.

BDS CERTIFICATIONS MAY 2005

The following are singles Nielsen Broadcast Data Systems recently recognized for certified airplay of 100,000 or more spins. The detection totals account for all spins on Nielsen Broadcast Data Systems' monitored panel of more than 1,200 radio stations in 128 markets across the United States and Canada, as well as airplay on monitored satellite stations and radio networks. The totals cover the period from a title's release through May 31.

BDS CERTIFICATIONS MAY 2005

The following are singles Nielsen Broadcast Data Systems recently recognized for certified airplay of 100,000 or more spins. The detection totals account for all spins on Nielsen Broadcast Data Systems' monitored panel of more than 1,200 radio stations in 128 markets across the United States and Canada, as well as airplay on monitored satellite stations and radio networks. The totals cover the period from a title's release through May 31.

BDS CERTIFICATIONS MAY 2005

The following are singles Nielsen Broadcast Data Systems recently recognized for certified airplay of 100,000 or more spins. The detection totals account for all spins on Nielsen Broadcast Data Systems' monitored panel of more than 1,200 radio stations in 128 markets across the United States and Canada, as well as airplay on monitored satellite stations and radio networks. The totals cover the period from a title's release through May 31.

Songs are blind tested online by PromoSquad using multiple listens and a nationwide sample of carefully profiled music consumers. Songs are rated on a 1-5 scale; final results are based on weighted positives. Songs with a score of 65 or more are judged to have Hit Potential, although that benchmark number can fluctuate per format based on the strength of available music. HitPREDICTOR column

IT IS ALL about rhythmic top 40 and R&B/hip-hop this week.

There are new adds in both formats, and some with scores through the roof.

Tony Yayo does it again. First single "So Seductive" from his upcoming debut album, "Thoughts of a Predicate Felon," scored last week at R&B/hip-hop. This time he adds the track to the rhythmic top 40 column, and with a strong score of 80.6. Not a bad start for a newcomer to the HitPredictor charts.

Destiny's Child is not a newcomer to the HP charts. The trio's addition of "Cater 2 U" to the rhythmic top 40 chart is the second entry for the song. The track has already appeared on the R&B/hip-hop chart, and it is climbing the Billboard Radio Monitor R&B/Hip-Hop list. The group has earned numerous HitPredictor picks in the past, including at least one for every single from its latest album, "Destiny Fulfilled."

Bobby Valentino earns two spots on the HitPredictor charts this week. "Tell Me" lands in the rhythmic top 40 and R&B/hip-hop columns. In addition to being his first HitPredictor pick, "Tell Me" is the highest-scoring track this week. The song earns a phenomenal 82.6

on the R&B/hip-hop chart.

But rhythmic top 40 and R&B/hip-hop cannot take all of the spotlight. Kimberley Locke's "I Could" bows on the adult contemporary chart with a healthy score of 73.8. It is the first HitPredictor pick for the "American Idol" alumna.

RATINGS TODAY. RELEVANCE TOMORROW.

Eagle Marketing provides innovative start-to-finish programs that make today's promotions easy and effective. We also navigate you through the sea of change facing broadcast radio so your station stays meaningful in the lives of your listeners.

At Eagle Marketing, we're tuned in. We know how listeners think, where to find them and how they are changing the way they consume media. We understand the issues you face every day – especially with ratings season fast approaching. And we're backed by a full in-house production facility, so you save time and money.

No matter what your challenge, we're here to help.

Challenge:

I need a killer promotion to boost ratings.

We go beyond the obvious to help you put together the right promotion to drive the most response – and the highest ratings. Eagle Marketing makes sweeps a breeze by developing engaging themes, helping you find sponsors, and executing everything you need to grab listeners' attention, from mailings to CD's to billboards. After all, the best promotions are ones that a trusted expert does for you – and with over 20 years of success in the business, we're the experts you can trust!

Challenge:

I need to promote a new format.

We help your new audience find you on the dial. Our sophisticated data mining homes in on exactly the right listeners for your new format. And with a full suite of direct marketing initiatives, we get them excited about their new favorite station.

Challenge:

I need new advertisers to grow revenue.

We identify the highest potential advertisers – then provide all the sales tools your reps need to close the deal. Our proprietary analysis helps your advertisers be more successful – and you reap the benefits!

Challenge:

I need to stop a new (or familiar!) competitor!

Sometimes it's just as hard to keep your existing audience as it is to attract new listeners. With a variety of relationship building tools and direct marketing programs that get to your audience first, we keep your listeners tuned in to you and away from the competition.

Challenge:

I need a plan for the future.

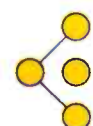

We can solve your problems today and help you strategize for tomorrow. Don't go through another season of worry and stress.
