HOW AIR CIRCULATION IS ACHIEVED

Air circulation is important for living a healthy life. Air conditioning does not ensure proper air circulation since air exhaled from the lungs travels but thirteen inches.

In ordinary fans the air movement is direct and violent and becomes ineffective after a short distance. In the Air Circulator, the ingenious blades revolving at very high speeds produces an ingenious effect which circulates the rest of the air in the room by a 'secondary' action.

Cooling is essential in summer, Air circulation at all times. "Fresh Air" circulator cools, cleans and circulates air.

Citizens of Tomorrow

TN thinking of the future, it is normal to visualise the men and women who will belong to those coming days but who are still in childhood today in our midst. What will these be like, in their new surroundings, and in their relations with one another? Will they find themselves in a rational world, free from the discords of today? For it must be acknowledged that the world order to come will primarily be the concern of the children of today. It is they who are going to be the builders of Tomorrow—a Tomorrow which may be quite different from Today. So much, therefore, depends on their preparedness to take charge of the world which their elders have perhaps shockingly muddled. It will be the task of these young persons—twenty years hence to plan and achieve where the present generaon has failed. They may have to sweep way old customs and ideals, and work out better ones. These children are today growing up in a very strange world indeed. It is all strains and crackings and crumblings.

TINY TOTS who participate in the Children's Half Hour conducted by "Auntie Betty" at A I R Bombay.

Perhaps never have so many children been so much affected by so much uncertainty.

NEW INFLUENCES

THE growth and training of these children must, therefore, be considered as of special importance. In fact, the present circumstances are already providing influences which, judged by the old standards, are unique. Radio is one of these. For the first time, children are being brought up in the midst of a new educative influence in the home and it will be interesting to watch the full effect of this new social factor when the present young generation attains manhood. For the influence of the radio in the home has not yet been fully analysed; it is still in an experimental stage. In moulding the character of the present-day child, it is also building up the character of the future man. The extent and intensity of this influence should, therefore, contribute largely to the making of the new world.

THE RADIO WAY

THE present generation, brought up with out the same cultural aid which is available for the children of today, seems to have missed something which is finding expression in various discords. Let us hope we are now making full amends by pre-paring the citizens of future in the correct way. In bringing to young lively imaginal tions, craving to know every new thing possible to know, nothing has so far achieved the success of the radio. Talks, stories, music and dialogue—all specially modelled to suit young tastes—are being sent out every day to groups of little listeners in homely surroundings. They have the easy, free atmosphere of the kindergarten where knowledge comes wafted over in music and story, and the whole thing is big fun. It comes in voices similar to their own, without any inflection of command or patronage, and gives a feeling of growing up in the midst of playmates.

EDUCATIVE FACTOR

RUT it is difficult to feed lively imaginations continuously like this, and the task becomes more arduous when the educative factor is to be kept in view. In preparing children's programmes, therefore, the question of proper entertainment appeal has to be considered; for no indifference is so devastating as the child's. Here it is not a question that something ought to appeal, but it simply must. It has been observed that every conceivable subject, from shoes to sealing wax, attracts their attention; in fact, the range of their interest sometimes surpasses those of many adults. Make-believe, also, is easy for the child. In varying degrees imitation seems to be part of their race heritage and they revel in opportunities to indulge in it. Those among elders who may be inclined to doubt, should switch on to any of the A I R's children's broadcasts. Speeches delivered at the "Chunnu Chouncil", for instance, are amazingly realistic, and a brilliant parody of similar gatherings of elders. Indeed the casual child guest before the microphone sometimes shows more confidence and gets into the spirit of it more readily than many grown-ups in similar circumstances.

BUILDING BRAVE NEW WORLD

RADIO may well prove to be a factor to reckon with in the lives of young listeners and broadcasters of today. The cultural influence that is seeping into their mind and building their character may bear fruit at a distant date. But no one can deny that this very influence will contribute to material advantage in the making of the brave new world we all expect to come. "Is the world all grown up? Is childhood dead?" -moaned Charles Lamb, disgusted with the devious ways of a selfish world. The children of today, brought up under the new beneficial influence of radio, may well supply the answer one day.

Governor Visits Trichy Studios

HIS Excellency Sir Arthur Hope, Governor of Madras, paid a visit on November 30, to the Trichinopoly Studios of All India Radio. His Excellency was received on arrival by Mr. G. T. Sastri, Station Director, who introduced to him the staff on duty. His Excellency then went round the studios and evinced keen interest in the arrangements then going on for broadcast of the Sunday afternoon variety, as well as the women's and children's programmes. At the Control Room, Mr. V. Balasubramaniam, the Station Engineer, explained to His Excellency the working of the equipment. The Studio Orchestra played a piece specially composed for the occasion. His Excellency was impressed by the growth of radio-mindedness among the public revealed by the increase of licence figures, and expressed his pleasure at having been able to pay a visit to the Station.

Liberty Through The Ages

Little of a new series of Hindustani talks to be inaugurated in the new year by A I R Delhi. The underlying idea is to bring out the organic relationship between liberty and civilisation as displayed through successive periods of history. In the first talk, to be broadcast on January 5, Dr. Y. Prasad, Head of the History Department, Agra College, Agra, will discuss how the domination of society over the individual made primitive society stagnant and unprogressive.

Hindustani Dramas

A WOMAN'S caprice is the theme of the Hindustani play "Talluwwan", to be broadcast from Delhi on January 3. Nilam has two admirers. One is a poet, the other is not. Nilam does not like the poet because of his bohemian ways and erratic temperament, but likes Jamil, who behaves like a normal, sensible man of the world. But one day the poet does something very strange which puts Nilam into a capricious mood. The play is packed with developments of much psychological interest.

The other Hindustani play, to be broadcast from Delhi, on January 10, is "Khushk Dali". It unfolds the character of a diehard grandfather who has long ruled the family with an iron hand. Crisis, however, comes in the shape of his daughter-in-law, who strives to match her feminine will against the prevailing orthodoxy. Both plays will be on the air at 10 p.m.

The Post-War World

FORECASTING about the future may be everybody's venture, and can even be considered as everybody's right. Yet a trained specialised intellect is necessary to guess, within the four corners of probability, the shape of things to come. What will be the division of powers in the post-war world? How will the world powers group themselves after this world war? These are questions that have passed beyond the stage of pure speculation and are engaging the attentions of practical politicians. Sir Evelyn Wrench, a former editor of the London Spectator and founder of the Overseas League, has made a special study of the problem of post-war world organisation. On January 3, at 8.15 p.m., A I R Delhi will broadcast a talk on this subject by Sir Evelyn Wrench.

Welcoming the New Year

AT 9-45 p.m., on New Year's day, A I R Delhi will broadcast a musical feature entitled "Naya Sal". This is an opera in which the different seasons of the year have been poetically personified by the author, Ahmad Nadim Qasmi. The delineation is scientifically based and opens up an appropriate panorama of the New Year.

Marathi Journalism

THERE are today a number of flourishing Marathi newspapers, catering for various tastes of the Marathireading public. Yet few among their readers know the story of their early struggles and their gradual achievement of the present standing.

Do you like the cover? If you do, and would like to have a copy of the original photograph, a postal or money order for Re. 1/addressed to the Editor, The Indian Listener,

New Delhi, will bring you by registered post a glazed black and white print (Size: 6"×4"). It will be an actual photograph without any lettering, and will be sent post free. No. V.P.P.

The photograph is of a young broadcaster, occasionally heard in the Children's programmes broadcast from A I R Lucknow.

In two instructive talks, to be broadcast from Bombay, the growth and influence of the Marathi Press will be traced. On January 9, Professor N. R. Phatak will survey the last 100 years of Marathi journalism, and will underline the various stages of its chequered career. The other talk will be on the air in the second fortnight of January.

A Gujarati Comedy

A GOVERNMENT of women, for women and by women is the theme of a hilarious comedy in Gujarati which will be radiated from Bombay on New Year's day. The plot works up expectations of great reforms from the new regime, but the leaders use their power to wreak vengeance on men for their past misdeeds. The new Government starts "liquidating" the men till, one day, it suddenly dawns on them, much to their horror, that there were no more wise heads left in the land. The author is Ras Kavi Ragunath Brahmabhatt the Gujarati to January 4, will be reviewed in a broadcast talk from A I R Bombay on January 6, at 8-30 p.m. The inaugural address of the Jubilee session will be delivered by Sir Purushottamdas Thakurdas.

Mushaira from Bombay

THE Hindustani section of AIR Bombay recently scored a success when it broadcast the first Hindustani opera. On January 4, its enterprise will enable Hindustani listeners to hear a relay of a mushaira from Ismail Yusuf College, Jogeshwari. Among the poets expected to participate are Kaifi Charayyakoti, Natique Lucknavi, Mirza Yagana, Sikandar Ali Wajid, Mahmud Israeeli and Siraj Lucknavi. The broadcast will begin at 6-30 p.m. on both wavelengths.

Visions and Facts

HUMAN progress is indebted equally to the mystic who first has visions of things to come and to the practical man who makes the most of things already known. In a discussion to be broadcast from A I R Lahore on January 7, Victor G. Kiernan and Agha Abdul Hamid will endorse the views respectively of the "intellectualist" and the "mystic". The "mystic", we presume, will talk of the intuitive vision that sees far into the working of the Universe but perhaps does not see clearly enough. The "intellectualist", who perhaps does not see very far at one time, but nevertheless would not believe anything beyond what he is sure of, will put forward the case of the rational mind.

Another discussion of a similar nature will be on the air on January 14—this time between the "Utopian" and the "practical man". On this occasion, G. C. Chatterji, the "Utopian" will perhaps indulge in visions of a best of all possible worlds—and perhaps a better than the present one—whereas Mr. Aslam, the "practical man", will insist on cautious consolidation of every foot of ground won, dissuading us from confusing our mind by thinking of the unattainable, though frequently dreamt of, "Utopias." Both discussions will be broadcast from Lahore at 8.30 p.m.

Full-length Bengali Dramas

portunities for full-length plays. A I R Calcutta, however, has arranged its programmes in the first fortnight of the New Year in such a way as to give its listeners two complete radio adaptations of Bengali dramas. The one is based on some incidents in the life of the poet Kalidasa, with a strong love interest; and the other is a social play entitled "Plavan" in which, incidentally, a large number of popular film and stage artists are participating. Special arrangements have also been made to provide the necessary floods "effect" which should make the drama fully realistic. Both plays will be on ference for long sessions, may be advised to switch on at 8 p.m. on January 5. On this occasion, they will find a short "thriller" on the air, produced by the film director, Hiren Bose. A large number of special "sound effects" will be brought into use to make the "thriller" thoroughly uncanny. Also recommended, for those in lighter vein, is "Bakkeswar Babur Biday Abhinandan", on January 10, at 2 p.m. You will be able to participate in the "farewell party" of Bakkeswar Babu, that well-known radio character who has already established himself as a popular laughter-maker.

The 1941 Scrap Book

ON New Year's day, A I R Calcutta will be in retrospective mood for a while, and look back into the events of the past year. It will provide a rapid review of the march of political events, ending with the final grouping of Democratic and Axis Powers. The survey will be on the air at 6-5 p.m.

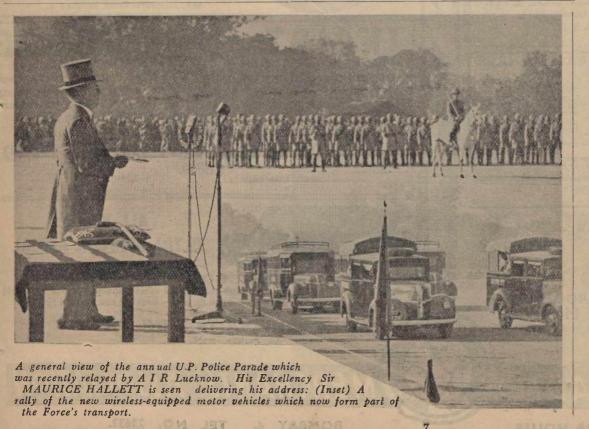

Oriya Songs & Drama

A I R Calcutta will radiate next fortnight a programme of songs and a humorous sketch for Oriya listeners. The sketch, originally written in Bengali, has been translated in Oriya at the request of Oriya listeners, and will be broadcast on January 4 at 4-30 p.m.

Telugu Drama

In the early days of the talkie many producers turned to the stage for material, so that every other film was a stage "hit." Then followed a slacking off, when critics murmured that the stage play was unsuitable for the screen, since it did not utilise the scope available in this medium. But the stage play has not been abandoned, and even today we find the screen "hit" of Broadway usually based on the stage "hit" of the season. Next fortnight, A I R Madras is presenting a stage play in Telugu. "Thintamani", the story of Bilwamangal, has been adapted for broadcasting from the original stage play by Kallukuri Narayan Rao. The cast includes leading Andhra stage stars, and Parupalli Satyanarayana, Pulipati Venketaswarulu and Shrimati Bezwada Rajeswari play the leading roles. The play is produced by K. For Madras Colleges

A I R Madras has been broadcasting special programmes to college students for the last two years. While these programmes have been quite popular, it was generally found that the lunch hour, when these items were broadcast, was inconvenient to the college listeners. In the new year, therefore, these programmes will be presented at 7-45 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays in the series "For Universities", and it is expected that a larger number of students will be able to listen in.

Fun with Vitamins

71TAMINS may be of nutritive importance, but A I R Dacca has decided to present yet another aspect of them. A doctor who could talk of nothing else but vitamins and the vitamin chart, even at the risk of disregarding the patient's real needs, meets a woman patient whose diagnosis by him produces unexpected results. The author of this humorous drama, which will be radiated on January 4, at 7.30 p.m., is Buddhadeva Bose.

Short Stories from Lucknow

A I R Lucknow is starting a new series in which short stories in Hindustani and English will be broadcast. Hindi, Urdu and English short-story writers of the Province have been invited to contribute to the series. The first short-story, to be radiated on January 12, is a parable in English entitled "Companion" by Raja Rao. Mr. Raja Rao lived in France for more than 10 years and returned to India only a year ago. He writes in English and French with equal facility and has been contributing regularly to several English and French journals.

The Art of

Amrita Sher-Gil

from returning to India. She was eight years old when her parents came back to India and settled down in Even at this young age Amrita showed considerable talent for painting. Her parents encouraged her interest in art and her mother took her to Florence at the age of 11 for her education in this direction. But the dull routine of a formal art school was not suited to Amrita's freedom-loving temperament; and, after only three months' stay at Florence, she came back to India to stay here until 1929.

During these four years in India she kept up her occupation of drawing and painting and even the work of that early age showed that she worked entirely from her imagination and was exceptionally sensitive to colour. In 1929 she was taken, on her own insistence, to Paris by her parents and there started work under Piere Vaillant of the Academy of Grand Choumiere. It was here that she was discovered by Prof. Lucien Simon. She was the first Indian to have the coveted privilege of being admitted to Prof. Simon's studio at the Ecole des Beoux Arts.

This studio provided a congenial atmosphere for the growth of her talents and it was here that she started the process of discovering herself as a painter. To quote her own words: "Lucien Simon never taught. He made us think for ourselves and solve the technical and pictorial problems ourselves, merely encouraging the pupil whose work interested him in his or her own individual form of self-expression". Her career at the Ecole Des Beoux Arts was marked by the attainment of one distinction after another. She won prizes at the annual portrait and still life competitions for three years in suc-

ing year another of her pictures entitled "Young Girls" at the same exhibition was considered the best picture of the year. It brought her an associateship of the Grand

RETURN TO INDIA

COON after 1934, when she exhibited her picture, "Young Man with Apples", she set up an independent studio. So far, however, she was only a very talented student of European art. Her work in these days was absolutely Western in conception and execution, and showed all the influences of the schools of painting then in vogue. But even at that time she showed her individuality by her boldness, both in form and colour. As her personality developed she began more and more irresistibly to be attracted towards India. Once again to quote her own words: "I began to be haunted by an intense longing to return to India, feeling in some strange inexplicable way that there lay my destiny as a painter".

In 1934 she returned to India—this time as a professed Indian painter. Here

An unfinished painting by Amrita Sher-Gil.

IT is a sad privilege I have tonight * of talking about the life and art of Amrita Sher-Gil on the occasion of her death. It was only yesterday morning that I went to her house to look at her newly arrived paintings; she was arranging an exhibition in Lahore before X'mas. I had been given the privilege of seeing her old and new paintings and of saying a few words about them. Recently, I had the good fortune of meeting her and her husband, and had discovered in them two most delightful and charming friends. When yesterday, therefore, I arrived at their house early in the morning to receive the entirely unexpected news of her death my first reaction was, naturally, that of the shock of receiving the news of the death of a cherished friend. But even in that first moment of shock I experienced the immense sense of loss by her death to the world of Indian Art. She was very young; yet she had already produced, some at least, of the many finest pieces of modern Indian painting.

NOT yet 29, she was undoubtedly one of painters of our generation. She was a born painter-if ever there was one. She herself said once: "It seems to me that I never began to paint; that I always painted and have always had, with a strange certitude, the conviction that I was meant to be a painter and nothing else"

She was born in 1913 in Budapest. Her father belongs to a well-known Sikh family of Amritsar and is the elder brother of the late Sir Sundar Singh Majithia. Her mother is a Hungarian. Amrita and her younger sister, Indira, spent their earliest years in Europe. The Austro-Hungarian Empire was in its death agony because of the world war, which, incidentally, prevented the family are her impressions in her own words: "It was the vision of a winter in India-desolate, yet strangely beautiful—of endless tracks of luminous yellow grey land, of dark-bodied, sad-faced, incredibly thin men and women who move silently looking almost like silhouettes, over which an indefinable melancholy reigns. It was different from the India, voluptuous, colourful, sunny and superficial, the India, so false, of tempting travel posters that I had expected to see".

A COLOURIST

FROM then on, her mind and imagination were completly possessed by India and it was in the painting of Indian subjects and themes that she not only gradually discovered her own individual style but by the production of her best work, which reflected both western and Indian influences, opened up a new path for the young Indian painter. In Paris she had worked under the influence of the post-Impressionists and by painting in various styles had e acquired technical efficiency. In India she was deeply influenced by the frescoes of Ajanta and by the paintings of the Moghul and Rajput periods. But she slavishly imitated neither the European masters nor the Indian. It was her original personality which combined the technical skill acquired in Europe with an intensely Indian vision and succeeded in producing paintings like "The Ancient Story-teller", "The Siesta", "The Bride's Toilet", "Elephant Promenade", "The Swing" and "The Woman in Red". These pictures embody the best work of her all too short young life.

One of these "The Ancient Story-teller" has a remarkably bold and charming colour scheme. It shows the strength her style and colour sense had already acquired. More than that it gives promise of far greater individuality and sureness which she secured on the threshold of achievement.

Amrita Sher-Gil is primarily a colourist. and it is only natural that Gauguin should have been one of her favourite painters. In some of her earlier pictures the influence of Gauguin is particularly noticeable. There is nothing pretty about her art. It is vigorous, bold, robust. The great merit of her work was its fundamental solidity of construction. a simplification of masses and forms and an insistence on the vividness of essential details. Her best work brought to modern Indian painting the verve and vitality it so sorely needed. It is only befitting that India should mourn today the loss of this young artist whose best work was yet to come. Broadcast from Lahore.

THE term vegetables as commonly used covers a considerable number of quite different plant products. It includes seeds, stems, pods, fruits, flowers, bulbs, roots, tubers and leaves. Fresh green peas, for example, are usually described as vegetables though in fact they are legumes and have the chemical composition peculiar to that group of plant seeds. Sprouted soya beans are consumed as a vegetable in China and Japan. In the case of asparagus, celery, colocasia, amaranth stalk and numerous other plants the stem is eaten. Pods are the chief edible portion of certain kinds of beans as also of chillies. Cauliflower is actually a flower and tomatoes, brinjals, gourds and tender jack fruit, often classed as vegetables, are in reality seed-bearing fruits. The bulbs include leeks and onions and the roots radishes, carrots, turnips, sweet potatoes, and many others. The familiar potato is a tuber, that is to say, it is, botanically speaking, not a bulb or root but a thickened stem. Leafy vegetables include cabbage, spinach, lettuce amaranth, fenugreek and indeed a very large number of different plants, both cultivated and wild. About 38 kinds of leafy vegetable, cultivated and wild, which are eaten in South India have been listed.

Under primitive conditions, consumes roots, leaves, etc., which he finds growing wild in the forest and jungle. The diet of aboriginal peoples in India still includes such foods in quite large quantities. The systematic cultivation of vegetables is, however, a relatively recent development in the history of mankind, which took place many thousands of years after the domestication and cultivation of the cereal grains—rice, wheat, maize, etc.

NUTRITIVE VALUE

NOW let us consider the nutritive value of vegetables. As regards food value, there is a marked difference between leafy vegetables and other kinds of vegetables. The former are very rich in vitamin A and contain considerable amounts of vitamin C, calcium and iron. Therein lies the chief importance of leafy vegetables as a food in India. The cereals which form the great bulk of ordinary Indian diets are deficient in some or all of these essential constituents. Vitamin A is present in milk fat and in Western countries whole milk and butter are usually the chief source of this vitamin in the diet. Milk is also very rich in calcium. But in a country like India, in which supplies of milk products are very limited, leafy vegetables are of great importance as a source of vitamin A and calcium. Vitamin A deficiency is very common in India. It leads to general ill-health and is the cause of various common eye diseases. Night-blindness, or inability to see properly in a dim light, is one of these. Another is keratomalacia, a destructive disease of the cornea of the eye, which is said to be the commonest cause of permanent blindness in South India. Many cases of this disease are seen in eye hospitals.

THE cheaper "country" varieties of green leafy vegetables, amaranth leaves, coriander leaves, drumstick leaves, etc., are as nutritious as the more expensive ones, such as cabbage and lettuce. Leafy vegetables contain little or no fat and carbo-hydrate and they are not rich in the B vitamins. Their protein content is low and they do not contribute materially to the calorie content of diets. But in spite of these defects they are very valuable food.

The chief solid constituent of root vegetables and tubers is carbo-hydrate. They contain appreciable amounts of protein, essential mineral elements and vitamin Bl, but little or no fat or vitamin A. The carrot with its high vitamin A content is an exception in this group. Most of the root vegetables, unlike the cereals, contain some vitamin C. It is well known that in Northern Scandinavia, where the supply of fresh fruits is very limited, the inhabitants depend largely on the potato for their supply of vitamin C and if potatoes run short scurvy makes its appearance.

A word about "other vegetables", that is, the kinds which do not fall into the groups, leafy vegetables and roots and tubers. The greater part of the vegetables consumed in India are of these kinds. The commonest are brinjals and various gourds. In general vegetables of this kind contain little protein, fat or carbo-hydrate. They are not as rich in vitamins and minerals as green leafy vegetables and they contribute tewer calories than root vegetables. They contain only small quantities of the B vitamins. Their chief value is as a source of vitamin C and, to a lesser extent, of vitamin A.

DIET SURVEYS

A N increase in the production and consumption of vegetables in India is very much to be desired and this is particularly true of green leafy vegetables. Diet surveys have shown that the latter are usually taken in small quantities, though they are among the cheapest of foods. While the importance of leafy vegetables must particularly be emphasised, there is no doubt that a greater consumption of vegetables of other kinds would be of value.

Sir John Russell, in his "Report on the Work of the Imperial Council of Agricultural Research", remarked:

Much more work should be done on the cultivation of green leafy vegetables and demonstration fruit and vegetable gardens should be set up adjacent to the villages where they can receive manure and water. A market extension of vegetable growing is very desirable.

KITCHEN GARDENS

THE villager in many parts of India is not interested in growing vegetables even when land and water for this purpose are available. In some areas village cultivation of fruits and vegetables on small plots provides appreciable quantities of valuable food, but taking the country as a whole such cultivation is sadly neglected. This is sometimes due to difficulties about water supply, but the chief reason for it is ignorance and apathy. Education and propaganda are required to teach the villager the value of vegetables as food and to persuade him to grow these for his own use when circumstances permit. Special emphasis may be laid on the development of kitchen gardens in villages, which is part of the programme of Health Units and other organisations working among village populations. In the neighbourhood of large towns market gardening is a paying proposition and has been quite vigorously developed. Excellent and abundant vegetables are available in large urban markets. But in villages a trim and productive kitchen garden is not often seen.

In a village in North India an energetic and progressive teacher wished to introduce vegetable growing. The villagers told him it was quite hopeless; there was no regular water supply. He thereupon persuaded them to remove some boulders from a stream adjacent to the village which were diverting water in the wrong direction. The result was plenty of water. But even with plenty of water, the villagers said, it was still quite hopeless; the goats would eat everything that was grown and no mortal power could stop them. The teacher then constructed rough thorn barricades round his own garden which kept the goats out. Others learnt from him, with the result that the village soon possessed numerous vegetable plots.

INDIA'S NEED

TT is well known that one of the greatest needs of India is greater production and consumption of milk products. But there are many formidable obstacles, which indeed at times seem insurmountable, in the way of achieving a substantial increase in milk supply. An increase in vegetable production is quite a different matter. The Nutrition Research Laboratories recommend a daily intake of two to three ounces of leafy vegetables and six ounces of non-leafy vegetables for an adult man. There is no vaild reason why such an intake should not be generally attained, even by the poorer sections of the population.—Broadcast from Madras.

BROADCAST OF V. C. CEREMONY

DERHAPS for the first time the presentation ceremony of a Victoria Cross was broadcast when All India Radio arranged for a radio commentary, on November 10, 1941, from the Viceroy's House, where His Excellency the Viceroy presented the highest awards for valour to Lieut. Preminder Singh Bhagat, of the Royal Bombay Sappers and Miners, and the widow of Subedar Richpal Ram, of the 4/6th Rajputana Rifles. The occasion was also an historic one as it was the first time that the award had been thus presented in India.

Although the ceremony itself was simple, elaborate broadcasting arrangements had to be made. Three microphones were employed: one for the commentator, another for the Military Secretary to the Viceroy (who read out the deeds of valour of the recipients), and a third to pick up the music of His Excellency the Viceroy's Orchestra and the band of the 10/6th Rajputana Rifles which accompanied the Guard of Honour. A dramatic control panel, set up in a small alcove and effectively concealed from the spectators, was placed at the head of the main staircase of the Viceroy's House. The commentator, Lawrence Clarke, sat on a small platform at the head of the main staircase from where he had a perfect view of the proceedings.

The ceremony opened with the Guard of Honour, provided by the 10/6th Rajputana Rifles, marching with the band playing into position in front of the Viceroy's House. The other two sides of the main court were occupied by detachments of the 10/6th and 25/6th Rajputana Rifles, while on the main staircase were accommodated over a thousand spectators. The scene was an impressive one, with troops drawn up along three sides of the hollow square and spectators forming the fourth side. Below sat Lieut. P. S. Bhagat and the widow of Subedar Richpal Ram with her little son and daughter. On one side were displayed the two Victoria Crosses.

TIME broadcast went through according to schedule. Music from the two bands and the Military Secretary's speech, as also its translation in Hindustani by an Indian A.D.C., came through clearly. Nor did the commentator let interest flag for a moment during the whole period of the ceremony, which was radiated from the four transmitters of Delhi and also relayed by all other Stations of A I R. An electrical recording was put on the air the same night for the benefit of those who might have missed the actual broadcast.

CHEER UP

says Father Kruschen

Do cheer up, man! Don't mope around uttering harsh words about your stomach. If you allow your inside to be choked up with yesterday's food-food that won't digest properly, that's turning sour in your stomach, slowing up your liver and kidneys and spreading poisons in your system-can you wonder that you feel ill and bad-tempered.

Take the "little daily dose" of Kruschen Salts. A pinch in your early morning tea will keep you fit and well. Kruschen Salts swill poisonous waste matter out of the intestines. They help the liver to neutralize poisons that have seeped into the blood-stream. Kruschen Salts flush the kidneys to enable them to expel those poisons.

Let Kruschen's three-fold action have its way. You'll enjoy "that Kruschen Feeling"! Get Kruschen Salts from your Chemist or Store to-day!

To make the roughest skin soft, clear and velvety-smooth—to end blackheads, enlarged pores and other skin defects—try this recipe. Mix one ounce of pure cream of milk (pre-digested) with one ounce of olive oil. You can have it pre-pared by your chemist, but making a small quantity is expensive. You can get it cheaply—already prepared in Crème Tokalon (Vanishing non-greasy). This actually contains pre-digested dairy cream and olive oil combined with other valuable nourishing and tonic ingredients scientifically blended in correct proportions. Crème Tokalon restores youthful freshness to the skin in a most amazing way. One woman writes: "After only 3 days" use of Crème Tokalon my skin became so clear, so fresh, so lovely, I could hardly believe my eyes." WILLIAM OSCAR BROWN, correspondent and press photographer of the "New York Times," who gave a talk from Bombay on "A Year in the White House" on November 6, the anniversary of the 3rd successive election of President Roosevelt.

DURING November the various stations of A I R broadcast in all 663 items relating to the war. Of these, 500 were talks and discussions, 66 plays, feature programmes, etc., and 97 relays from the B B C.

The main interest in the news centred round the fighting in Russia, Nazi repression in France, Poland and other German-occupied countries, and the growing complications in the Pacific. Explanatory talks and other items planned to help the listener to follow the developments from day to day were broadcast in English and the various Indian languages.

Perhaps the most outstanding broadcast during the month was the ceremony at the Viceroy's House on November 10, when His Excellency presented Victoria Crosses to Lieut. Preminder Singh Bhagat and the widow of Subedar Richpal Ram. L. G. E. Clarke, chief announcer at the Delhi Station, gave a running commentary which was relayed by all our stations (See page 15).

On November 28, His Excellency the Governor of Madras gave a speech at a public meeting at the Trichy Town Hall on the subject "War and Ourselves". A recorded version of this was broadcast from Trichy the

A recorded talk by H. H. the Maharaja of Jammu and Kashmir, giving impressions of his recent visit to Indian troops in the Middle East, was broadcast from Delhi on November 17 and was relayed by Calcutta.

The Hon'ble Mr. E. Raghavendra Rao, Member for Civil Defence, broadcast a talk on "Civil Defence" from Delhi on November 7, which was also relayed by Calcutta and

A MONG other important talks broadcast during the month may be mentioned those by Mr. H. V. Hodson in the series "Commonwealth in the New World" (Delhi: November 1 and 29); Major-General G. N. Molesworth on "The Expansion of the Indian Army" (Delhi: November 30; relayed also by Calcutta and Madras); Hon. Mr. Justice S. Wadsworth in the series "It is Up to Us" (from Madras on November 9,) the Hon. Sir M. Abdur Rahman, also in the same series (Madras: November 16); Mr. F. L. Brayne on "When our Soldiers Come Home" (Lahore: November 14) and Sir R. S. Sarma, C.I.E., on "The Press and Public Opinion" in the series "Democratic Expression" (Trichy: November 6).

AIR stations continued to broadcast some of the popular B B C series, such as "World Affairs", "War Commentary", "Matters of Moment", "The Voice of the Nazi", "Listening .Post", etc. Outstanding talks relayed or re-broadcast from London Prime Minister's were the British speech at the Lord Mayor's Luncheon (Delhi, Lahore, Trichy and Lucknow); and those by the Rt. Hon. L. S. Amery, Secretary of State for India (Calcutta), the Rt. Hon. C. R. Attlee (Calcutta) and Sir Hari Singh Gour (Lahore).

Proj. D. B. DEODHAR, the veteran cricketer of Makorastra, who recently gave a talk on Sports in the School Broadcast programme from Bombay.

FROM SALESMAN TO AMBASSADOR.— Geoffrey Tyson.

RIBBENTROP, who spent most of his earlier life as a champagne salesman, in which capacity he did a comfortable business with certain British Empire countries, relies on a hectoring—and certainly tactless-kind of technique for purposes of diplomacy. In his very earliest days, when he was translated from the post of salesman to that of German Ambassador to the Court of St. James, he was known in Fleet Street as Herr Von Drop-a-Brick, and, as we know, his mission to Britain was brief and, in so far as it misled Hitler on certain extremely important matters, it was also disastrous for the peace of Europe. Ribbentrop has shed none of his earlier plumage; nor, in fact, has he altered his fundamental technique. He still blusters and bullies in the same charac-Nazi way.—Broadcast from teristically Calcutta.

DACCA IN THE HEYDAY OF PROSPERITY.— Dr. R. C. Majumdar.

SHAISTA KHAN'S rule well illustrates that peace hath her victories no less than those of war. Never before did Dacca enjoy so great a prosperity. The number and variety of goods which Dacca produced and exported to almost every country in the world speak a volume of her trade and industrial activity. Tavernier who visited Dacca in 1666 found muslin, silk and cotton stuffs and flowered or embroidered fabrics being exported in large quantities to Provence, Italy and Languedoe. To Bhutan, Assam and Siam went coral, amber and tortoise shell; to Nepal, large quantities of cloth, outer skins, and conch shell bracelets; to the Coromandel coast rice which sold in Dacca at the extraordinary rate of 8 maunds to a rupee. It is unnessary to repeat the extravagant praises that more than one contemporary writer has recorded about the exquisite fineness of the muslins of which a large variety were produced in Dacca. According to one the cloth was woven to such a degree of fineness that a garment could be drawn through a ring of middling size. Tavernier relates that a turban sixty cubits in length was contained in a cocoanut about the size of an ostrich's egg. An English writer has justly remarked that "for transparency, fineness, and delicacy of workmanship these fabrics have never been equalled and not all the improvements in the art of manufacture in modern times have been able to approach them". Another European traveller, Francois Bernier, has described in glowing terms the plenty and prosperity during the viceroyalty of Shaista Khan. After referring to the extreme cheapness and abundance of all kinds of provisions and commodities he remarks: "I know not whether there be a country in the world that affords more and greater variety".-Broadcast from Dacca.

RADIO LICENCES

The total number of broadcast receiver licences in force in British India at the end of November, 1941, was 1,43,812, representing an increase of 26,254 licences during the last 12 months.

During the month altogether 13,182 licences were issued, of which 4,433 were new and 8,749 renewed licences.

PETROL SAVING-Francis Watson.

THE other day I saw a series of pictures illustrating life in Holland, that once thriving and industrious country. The Dutch people have always worked hard and cheerfully. In their spare time they used to enjoy little trips across their flat countryside like anyone else, whether in private cars or big clean buses. Now even heavy furniture has to be moved about by man-power. One of these pictures showed a huge closed motorvan of the kind that is called a pantechnicon. It was being hauled through a Dutch street by a gang of men pulling on ropes. Under the picture it was explained that this was compulsory unless the van were fully loaded. Both the picture and the explanation were published by the Germans, and they seemed proud of it all. Don't you think it's worth cutting down your motoring a little now, so that you may not later find yourself with no petrol at all?-Broadcast from Delhi.

NEXT to Valmiki I place Kalidasa, who, I consider, is the greatest dramatist of the world. There are beautiful translations of Kalidasa's Shakuntala in English, German, French, and other European languages, but the drama is not as well known throughout the world as it ought to be. In tense dramatic situations, in delineation and development of character, in portrayal of deep human emotions-love, pity, grief, courage, sacrifice-there is no drama to come any way near that great drama. It is not a mere The story of ordinary love in it love story. is sublimated into one of suffering and sacrifice. There are other great dramas in Sanskrit literature, especially Sudraka's Mrichhakatika and Bhavabhuti's dramas. They are excellent. They are widely read, again and again, and I read them with great pleasure.—Broadcast from Bombay.

ELIZABETHAN LYRIC.—Dr. F. M. Velte.

BOVE all else, the Elizabethan age was, A musically, an age of song, and the Elizabethan lyric is notable for its singing quality. The larger number of the lyrics were definitely songs. In addition to the countless songs in the plays we might note the large numbers of song books and books of the time. Thomas Campion, composer and poet alike, at once comes to mind. His mastery over word-music is amazing. But Campion was only one of many. Lyly, Peele, Lodge, Daniel, Shakespeare, and a host of others, all have the same gift of song. Like its music the lyric of the age is a blending of native England with Italiote culture. The prime father of the English lyric were, indeed, to use Puttenham's phrase "courtly makers", and their first attempts were largely imitation of Italian or classic models.—Broadcast from Lahore.

Dr. S. L. SHEETS, who recently broadcast from Lahore a talk in the University series, "The Age of Romanticism".

Sukhendu Goswami broadcasts songs from A I R Calcutta today.

Much is heard about the effect of the heat of African deserts and the icy cold of Russian Steppes on war. Presumably war like all human activities is greatly affected by weather. Cold finished Napoleon's march on Moscow and heat stopped the Libyan campaign for both partisans. This talk discusses how the conduct of the war is influenced by weather.

The auspicious new moon has risen and the month-long fast is over. The festival marks the renewal of hospitality in which tea plays a significant part. It is over cups of tea that you and your friends gather and exchange "I'd-Mubarak"; it is again tea which adds to the enjoyment of your festive meal. Celebrate every great occasion with tea.

This quintet, which is one of the finest works of its kind, was written by Brahms as a tribute to the genius of Richard Muhlfeld, the greatest clarinet player of his day. We are told that Brahms did not have a special affection for the clarinet as a solo instrument, though he had of course used it with real ingenuity in the Orchestra.

Talk in English by a Pole: Max

Chaderowski
There are many sceptics who cannot fully believe the stories of atrocities committed by the Nazi conquerors in occupied Europe, trickling down to this country. The brutal methods of exploitation and enslavement and also mass massacre of civilian population cannot really be imagined by any civilized man. Some natives of the occupied countries have been able to fly from Nazi justice and come to our country, after covering thousands of miles of perilous journey. The trek continues and will continue so long as the vile tryranny of the Nazis is not stopped.

In this series of talks All India Radio, Calcutta, will bring before the microphone representatives of these countries who will tell their own tales and also something of their native lands to the listeners. Chaderowski

Freedom from anxiety over questions of personal hygiene is essential to the woman of today. She challenges life in the social or business sphere with the self-assurance that comes only from knowledge and experience. Every woman can learn from Nurse Drew's booklet "Hygiene for Women" the Indispensable facts of feminine hygiene and obtain information about Rendells Products. Ask your chemist or Medical Stores for a free copy, or if you prefer, write to P.O. Box 542, Bombay.

	BENGALI LITERATURE, 1 The Ideals of Modern Bengali Prose
	Talk in Bengali by Pramatha Choudhuri
	At the beginning of the introduction of Western education in this country the attitude of the average Bengali towards his mother tongue was apathetic, and people prominent in the realm of politics and literature gave expression to their thoughts in English, ignoring a thousand years of Bengali language and literature. This attitude has gradually changed and today Bengali has assumed an honourable position in world literature. Though "style" belongs to the individual the shape of the language as well as the method of expressing ideas changes with time.

	Siddiqui Men are often not what they seem; they are different in their social life and in their offices from what they are at home. Their actions rarely spring from one clear motive. But there is another way of knowing them, a way which makes one more eager to understand and sympathise than to judge, just as one always wants to understand rather than judge one's intimates and friends. This other way of knowing them is by reading through the pages of their diaries, the records they keep chiefly because they want to understand themselves and to see the truth about themselves.

Selections from Marlowe's Classics Christopher Marlowe is the father of tragedy—his plays are laid out on huge canvases—a sombre and brooding atmosphere pervades them. His tragedies are tragedies of character and his Barabbas and Tamburlaine are the predecessors of Hamlet and Othello. And those were stirring times—when a man could write such a great work and then go out and get killed in a street brawl—as Marlowe was THE BLACK CREDO, (2) Mein Kampf and the Jews Talk in Bengali by Hirendranath Mukherjee Mukherjee

New 'VEET' ends all unwanted hair in 3 minutes without trouble, mess or bother.

New 'VEET' leaves the skin soft and smooth, without trace of ugly stubble.

New 'VEET' is a dainty white cream—sweetly scented and pleasant to use.

New 'VEET' avoids coarse regrowth—unlike the razor which only makes the hair grow faster and thicker. Obtainable at all dealers.

Put them ON GUARD AGAINST DIRT teach them to protect their health

with LIFEBUOY

Listen, Mother. Just a minute, Dad. Will you take a bit of advice about those boys? You cannot stop them scrambling about in the dirt—it's natural for them to play that way. But you can do something about the danger in dirt.
