The Moral Front

CERVANTES once said that in war it is courage that vanquishes, not good weapons. The author of Don Quixote was perhaps well qualified to express an opinion on this point since he had himself seen much military service and even participated in a number of famous battles of his time. Courage in the face of danger has been equally extolled by other eminent persons as "half the battle." It is a virtue most needed in our daily life—one might say, in the battle of life. How often are we called upon to make our little conquests of everyday problems—threats to personal freedom and convenience, and obstacles of circumstance that bar the way to happy living. True courage indicates a cool and calm mind in the midst of disturbing circumstances. It implies poise, the ability to know at a moment what is what; and nerve, the courage to act. Greatness is judged by these standards. It does not matter which walk of life a person belongs to so long as this basic gift of rational courage is found in him; he is then bound to stand out head and shoulder above the rest.

VULNERABLE

TODAY a people's will to resist is an important factor in military strategy: it has certainly assumed much more importance than perhaps it had in the days of Cervantes. Belligerents now constantly keep an eye on the morale of the enemy's army and civil population. The moral assault starts simultaneously with the physical oneoften it precedes. Indeed critical studies have been made in human psychology in order to discover the vulnerable points in a particular nation's character, and have been followed up by a highly developed technique designed to drive the attack home. Thus we hear now of such things as "a war of nerves," "defeatism," "infiltration." Carefully cooked up rumours are let loose to wear down the mental resistance of a populace, while "authentic" stories are passed round to create panic and scare. These are disreputable methods of warfare which could only be expected from disreputable, power-maddened aggressors. But it is a disease which, however insidious, is at least not incurable.

WELL PREPARED

ONE remarkable thing about the present war is that we largely know what the enemy knows—that is, the way world events develop. There can be no suppression of facts, no barrier to prevent a piece of hard news from getting known. However much an enemy might try to twist and turn them, no intelligent person with his eyes and ears about him would fail to know the correct facts in good time. The international exchange of information over the air provides everybody without distinction with a valuable guide to the march of world events. It also adds to his moral stature. Unlike the uncertain times of 1914-18, there is no more groping in the dark about the vital happenings with which the fates of peoples in all countries are so closely linked. Radio has today kept the ordinary citizen at home as much in frontline preparedness as the soldier in an advancing tank.

MORAL STAND-BY

ARE we, then, making use of this listenerarmy—armed with new-found knowledge that gives faith and courage and confidence? Are they holding for us the moral front? Radio helps to-day 1,53,520 homes in this country to keep up with the swift moving world, although an infinitely larger section actually profits by its war-news and war-commentaries every day. It may be contended that this is a small number in a country of 40 crores; but nobody, we hope, will dispute that this comparatively small section of listener public of the country remains in the intellectual vanguard, posted with up-to-the minute news. These are knowledgeable persons who cannot be led away by untruths or loose, ill-digested opinions. They are persons who know things at first-hand and therefore cannot be stampeded into believing anything which does not have its foundation in truth. They are, also, persons who have the necessary mental background of steadiness and resolution, and are. therefore, the least likely to wilt under a threat of peril. It is but natural that the larger but less-informed majority should look up to them today as a moral stand-by.

FATHER KRUSCHEN catches

Look at father! He steps out because he keeps himself fit and his bowels regular with the "little daily dose" of Kruschen Salts in his early morning tea. The Chinese Scene

TILL recently China remained to most of us a land of mystery—of Marco Polo, magic and mandarins. Even the long drawn-out Sino-Japanese war which began in 1937 failed to arouse more than a mere passing, sympathetic interest. Actually, in Europe this war was dubbed "senseless"—one of those inexplicable affairs of the East.

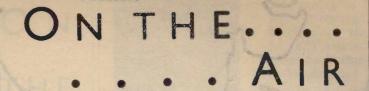

But today all this is changed. China is in the news; to us in India, particularly, resurrected China is a new find. Cultural contacts that we had with this great country are now being recalled today in the face of the common danger, and India which has in the past exchanged knowledge with China now finds it necessary to learn from her great neighbour and ally the secret of fighting Asia's Big Bad Wolf.

Timely, therefore, are the new series of talks on China planned by All India Radio which will be inaugurated on April 4 at 8.45 p.m. by the Consul-General for China in India, Dr. C. J. Pao. The talk will be entitled "My Country and my People". On April 11, Victor Kiernan will discuss the new national movements in China and their repercussions on Chinese culture. The talks will be heard simultaneously from Delhi, Lahore and Lucknow.

Youth Looks Ahead

IT is the privilege of the young to be idealistic. Mod-ern youth holds certain ideals dear which it is ever eager to expound. Next fortnight Delhi AIR providing an opportunity to some discuss the ideals generally associated with the "under-thirties". The opening talk will deal with the dictum "Art for Life's sake", as opposed to the slogan "Art for Art's sake", and the talker will be Mr. Indrajeet Bhattacharya. (April 8: 5.30 p.m.)

Newer Vision

WHAT we call the modern outlook is per-haps a compound of many factors, but primarily it is known for its distrust of the Victorian order of things. One might take, for instance, the field of economic welfare where we have plainly moved a long way from the 19th century conception of "every one for himself and devil take the hindmost." Today social welfare is given precedence over individual welfare. On April 10, at 8.30 p.m., Dr. V. K. R. V. Rao will discuss this changing outlook, with particular reference to the economic field.

European Orientalists

IT is amazing how some men of letters belonging to one nationality and nurtured in one language and culture, become great exponents of another. Indeed more often than not the character and personality of these scholars get permeated with the spirit of the language and culture they dedicate themselves to. In a new series of Hindus-tani talks to be broadcast from A I R Delhi next fortnight, some Indian scholars who have studied under the guidance of eminent European orientalists, will review the work and life of these great men. The first talk, on April 9, is about the well-known orientalist, Professor W. Winternitz, and the talker is his old pupil, Dr. Har Dutt Sharma, of Hindu College, Delhi.

War-time Humour

CHOULD we laugh when things go wrong? The answer is: No—and Yes. We should not laugh if we are guilty of letting things go wrong, but we can laugh if, despite our best efforts, the expected does not happen. Indeed a sense of humour is the best preventive of "nerves" which abnormal times are apt to bring on. It implies a sense of proportion and it has therefore a steadying effect on people. The Chinese claim laughter as their "finest weapon" against the Japanese. Blitzed London produced many instances of "quiet understatements" which amused and braced up the people. The subject is being presented by A I R Lucknow in a feature called "Topical Miscellany", the first of a series to be inaugurated on April 13 at 8.0 p.m.

Four Years Ago

FOUR years ago, on April 2, A I R Lucknow first went on the air. A flash-back of this year's highlights will be given by the Station next fortnight in the form of a radio survey when some of the main criticisms of its listeners will be dealt with. These will be embodied in a feature programme to be broadcast at 7.45 p.m., and will be more than a complacent autobiographical record. At 6.20 p.m., another short programme will tell listeners about the trials and tribulations of the staff on the opening day. At 7.15 p.m. some of the voices which have become so familiar and yet remain mere voices, will be transformed into living human beings in interviews before the microphone. The same evening, from 10 p.m. to 11 p.m., there will be a "Mehfil"—incidentally, a revival of an old institution-in which Akhtari Bai, Rasoolan Bai, Siddheswari Bai, Dhela Bai of Gaya, Allaudin Khan of Maihar, Mushtaq Husain Khan of Rampur and Anokhey Lal of Benares will participate. All popular stars of A I R Lucknow will be heard during this anniversary week, which promises excellent entertainment.

Studies In Crime

RIME has somehow always evoked wide popular interest: it has even held great fascination for some people. The large number of readers of detective fiction—who are neither criminals, nor engaged in the detection of crime—is proof positive of the fact that unsocial acts, (and those who perpetrate them) can provide points for useful objective study. The standard of intelligence employed by the Indian criminal, (although he is greatly helped by the gullibility of the Indian villager) is fairly high, and compares well with that of his more accomplished prototype in the west. To discuss the various types of criminals and their modus operandi, A I R Lucknow is starting next fortnight a series of talks entitled "Studies in Crimes and Criminals." It will be inaugurated by Sir Hugh A. Inglis, Inspector-General of the

New Forms of Expression

TWENTY years ago short stories, one act plays, films and post-impressionist art were the new forms of expression. Today these have yielded place to documentary films, reportage (accounts based on personal observa-tion and "angle" commentaries), radio fea-tures, the art of posters, and so on. AIR Lucknow is starting a series of talks to describe some of these new forms and to discuss as to how far they are a proper medium of artistic expression. The first two talks-"The Documentary" and "Reportage"—will be broadcast by A. A. Hamid, I.C.S. and Ahmad Ali, the novelist, on April 5 and 10, respec-

The talks are scheduled for April 1, 4, 7, 10 and 13 and, if the demand justifies, will be made a daily feature.

Is Marriage an Anachronism?

WELL, we should not really commit our-selves. The subject is one which has been talked over quite a lot and yet no two opinions have tallied entirely. Now A I R Lucknow has arranged to broadcast a discussion between Janak Kumari Zutshi and K. B. Jindal, and listeners interested to know the answer might tune in at 8.30 p.m. on April 4

Court-room Comedies

THE spirit of comedy rarely makes its appearance within the solemn, grey-walled room of a law-court. But when it does, it is invariably at its best. For a moment it takes away the heavy atmosphere of the courtroom and even the judge relaxes and breaks into a smile. Such humour, however, may originate either from a witty counsel, or rise out of the unwitting remark of a nervous witness. It may equally emerge from the dignified and ponderous utterances of a stern-looking judge. Some such comedies during the administration of justice will be the subject of a series of Marathi talks from Bombay next fortnight. On April 3, the first talk in this series entitled "When Judges Smile", will be broadcast by Mr. P. M. Lad, I.C.S., at 7 p.m.

Calcutta's European Music

The latter half of the 19th century saw France achieving great success in the world of music, almost rivalling Germany. A great part of her contribution to European music was vocal and "Debussy's Contemporaries," to be radiated from Calcutta on April 13 at 6.12 p.m., will give listeners an idea of the versatility of many modern French composers. Again, Easter Sunday will be celebrated with Beethoven's Sixth Symphony in F in which he sings the praise of life. The symphony, played by the N. B. C. Orchestra under Toscanini, will be broadcast during the lunch hour.

During this fortnight Alex Shemansky, the well-known 'cellist of Calcutta, will also give a recital. (April 7, at 6.12 p.m.)

Old Bengali Songs

TRIPPED of highbrow music, many old Bengali songs may be accepted as embo diments of the great mystical traditions that flourished in Bengal for many centuries chief exponent of which was Ramprasad Unfortunately, with the passing of time these songs have lost much of the popularity which they once enjoyed. But one must admit that that cannot take away from them the spiritual truths which they embodied. tempt to revive the popularity of this mystical and spiritual heritage will be made by A I R Calcutta on April 11, at 7.30 p.m.

Assam Through The Ages

SSAM is a country of varied interests. Hordes of Mongolian immigrants from western China entered India through this north-eastern gateway. A large section of the population is of mixed origin, but one also comes across numerous tribes who are almost pure Mongolians. To ethnologists the physique, language, religion and social customs of these people afford plenty of scope for research. In fact, reference to Assam is found in the great epic, Mahabharata, and in other ancient Hindu writings such as the Joginitantra, the Kalika Puran, etc. The history of Assam starts with the advent of the Ahom conquerors. The Ahoms ruled the country for about seven hundred years till the coming of the Burniese in 1817. They left interesting records which give detailed accounts of the conditions then prevalent. In 1826 Assam came under British influence after the Burmese were forced to sign a treaty at Yandaboo.

In this series of four talks Dr. M. I. Borah, a distinguished Assamese scholar, will give a brief survey of the history of Assam as could be gleaned from the available material. Dr. Borah was invited to deliver the Prativa Debi Memorial lectures on the history of Assam at the Cotton College, Gauhati. He also edited and translated Mirza Nathan's "Baharistan-i-Ghaybi" which has thrown a flood of light on the political and social conditions of Assam, Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, during the reign of Emperor Jehangir. The first talk in this series entitled "The Country and the People" will be broadcast in English from Dacca on April 6, at 7-30 p.m.

The Mute Speaks

MORE than two hundred thousand persons in this country are handicapped by the physical disability known as deaf-mutism. Psychologists and physicians have been working to conquer this evil for some time, but it was not till recently that various artifices could be evolved to make the deaf-mute speak. They now "hear with eyes" by reading the formation of words on the lips. After practising to imitate these formations, they can pronounce words.

In a series of talks to be broadcast from Dacca next fortnight, Mr. H. D. Das, Superintendent of the Deaf and Dumb School, Dacca, will discuss the problems of educating the deaf-mute in their various aspects. Mr. Das will give practical demonstration before the microphone with the help of his trained deaf and dumb children. Mr. Das has been for many years intimately connected with the education of deaf-mutes. He had been to the U.S.A. and travelled all over the country to acquaint himself with the latest researches in this domain. He has also published several REDERIC CHOPIN died in 1849.

To-day, nearly a century later, he still stands supreme as the most brilliant of all composers who devoted his art entirely to the piano. His amazing inventiveness laid the foundations of modern pianoforte technique: and Arthur Rubinstein, when recording the Mazurkas, remarked that they contained practically every tonal and harmonic effect of which the piano is capable. His music is, of course, well represented in the repertoire of every great pianist, and "His Master's Voice" offers numerous superb recordings by world-famous artists.

Radio Chronicle of the War

THE month of February was remarkable for listeners in India in two respects: it saw intensive fighting at the eastern gates of India-in Burma, Malaya and Singaporeand it was distinguished by the historic visit of Marshal Chiang Kai-shek and Madame Chiang. All ears were lent to the great events taking place on the Pacific front and the demand for latest news and talks explaining the progress of the war was very keen.

His Excellency the Viceroy broadcast from Delhi on February 6 a message to Indians in Malava and Burma. Its recorded version as well as translation in several Indian languages were broadcast from the various A I R stations. On February 3, Delhi inaugurated a special programme for Singapore which was broadcast from five to six in the morning. This included musical items and messages from India to friends and relatives in the Singapore island. gramme was discontinued on February On the same date Mr. Winston Churchill spoke from the B B C on the fall of Singapore. This talk was either relayed or rebroadcast by Delhi, Bombay, Calcutta, Lahore, Lucknow, Trichy and Dacca. The Hon'ble Mr. Fazlul Huq, the Bengal Premier, broadcasting from Calcutta on February 16, spoke on "Bengal and the fall of Singapore". The talk was relayed by Dacca. Calcutta also broadcast on this day a feature programme entitled "The Voice of Singapore".

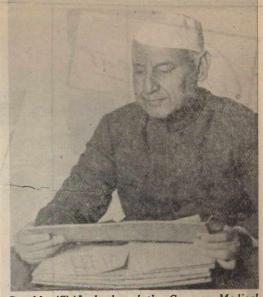

INTEREST IN CHINA

LISTENERS' interest in China and their appreciation of the brave resistance which that country has put up against Japanese aggression for over four years now was greatly stimulated by the visit to this country of the Generalissimo and Madame Chiang Kai-shek. A large number of talks, feature programmes, etc., were put over on this occasion by the various stations. Special mention may be made of the programme "Tribute to China" radiated from Calcutta on February 10, in which poems were recited by Mr. Harindranath Chattopadhyaya and Prof. Humayun Kabir. Appropriate songs and instrumental items were also included in this programme. On the eve of their departure from India, the Generalissimo broadcast from the Calcutta studios a message to India in Chinese, rendered into English by Madame Chiang Kai-shek. These were relayed by all A I R stations.

A. R. P. TALKS

A LARGE number of talks on A.R.P. was broadcast in various Indian languages. The Hon'ble Mr. E. Raghavendra Rao, Member for Civil Defence, broadcast on A.R.P. from Bombay on February 5. Lt.-Col. A. J. Reeve gave from Delhi short talks on various aspects of A.R.P. work on February 16, 17, 18, 23, 24 and 25. On February 17, Lucknow broadcast a feature programme entitled "Your Home is Your Fortress" which was introduced by Lady Hallet. The script was written by Vera Jackson. Three days earlier a feature entitled "Why A.R.P.?" written by Mr. J. Lobo Prabhu had been broadcast from the same station. An interesting talk on his experiences was broadcast from Calcutta by Mr.

Cedric Salter on February 19.
On February 21, Major-General Molesworth's talk on "The War Situation" was broadcast from Delhi and relayed by all other stations. Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, formerly British Ambassador in China and now Ambassador-designate to the U.S.S.R., speaking from the Calcutta studios discussed "China behind the Front-line". This talk was relayed by Madras, Lucknow, Trichy and Dacca. Among other outstanding talks broadcast during the month may be mentioned those by Prof. Humayun Kabir on "Greece" (Calcutta: February 5); Mr. W. H. Shoobert, Director-General, Posts and Telegraphs, on "The Soldier's Mail" (Delhi: February 18); Lady Paw Tun on "In Burma Today" from Bombay (February 20); the Hon'ble Mr. Vere Mocket on "The Common Cause" from Madras (February 25) and Lala Shanker Lal on "Industrial Opportunities in War-time" from Delhi (February 20).

On February 3, Mr. D. F. Karaka interviewed Sir Evelyn Wrench over the Bombay microphone about the Far Eastern events and about Sir Evelyn's opinion of the British in India. This broadcast was in the series "Dot and Dash" started from Bombay in January last.

LISTENERS' QUESTIONS

THE Delhi feature "War Enquiry" about listeners' questions and their answers was broadcast from Delhi on four days during this month, viz., February 7, 14, 24 and 28.

His Highness the Nawab of Rampur, who recently returned from his visit to Indian troops in the Middle East, broadcast a talk in Hindustani from Lucknow on February 3 giving his impressions of Egypt and Libya.

Among important talks relayed or rebroadcast from the B B C may be mentioned those by the Rt. Hon'ble A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, who spoke in the series "Matters of Moment" on February 18. This talk was relayed by all stations. Mr. Roosevelt's "Fireside Chat" was also rebroadcast by all stations on February 24.

English will be broadcast on four days of the week. This attempt at adult higher education through the radio has evoked considerable interest, especially of women at home, and has been welcomed with enthusiastic approval.

SERIES of special programmes has been planned by A I R Trichy for April 13 which is the Tamilian New Year's Day. On the previous day "Ariel", the popular sound weekly of this Station, will bring out its special number. Summer School

WITH the advent of summer the schools and colleges in South India close for the long vacation, and the educational broadcasts from the Trichinopoly Station are suspended as they are directed mainly towards the listening-in classes in the schools possessing radio sets. The time alloted for these educational programmes is, however, as in previous years, being given to an extension course for grown-ups who have discontinued their studies with the pre-matriculation or matriculation class. A series of programmes under the title "Summer School" is being inaugurated on April 1 to extend over the three summer months. The course comprises

INDIA SPEAKS TO CHINA

GOODWILL MESSAGES BROADCAST

ON March 7, 1942, India observed China Day when she specially remembered her great ally across the Himalayas—China, with whom she has maintained for centuries past a unique cultural bond of learning and progress. Leading persons in India broadcast on this day their messages of goodwill and sympathy towards a brave and determined people.

Sir Maurice Gwyer

HOPE that I may be permitted, as Vice-Chancellor of the University situated in the capital city of India, to send my greetings to the University of Chungking and to her two sister universities of Nangking and Nankai, which in exile still guard the sacred flame, in the sure knowledge that it will one day burn again in halls risen from the ashes of the old. I speak only of the universities which have found a resting place in resting place in Chungking itself, but I do not forget those six other universities which have also been driven from their homes but have been welcomed in other cities and enabled to continue their noble work. Nothing has more stirred the imagination of scholars and students throughout the world than the story of the young men of China who have made so long and strange a pilgrimage over so many hundreds of miles, often we are told carrying their books and apparatus with them, to seek places of refuge where they might pursue their studies with unabated zeal. Inspired by that great leaders who in the words of the English poet

With plain heroic magnitude of mind And celestial vigour armed, sustains the national struggle, the universities at Chungking have set an example of courage and endurance to every university in India now menaced by the same implacable foe.

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru

MANY years ago I thought and dreamt of China and India coming closer to one another, meeting again after a long separation and co-operating to their mutual advantage. When fate and circumstance sent me to China two and a half years ago, that dream became more vivid and my mind was filled with the days of long ago when pilgrims and travellers crossed the oceans and mountains between China and India in search of the rich cultural inheritance which each country possessed. I saw myself in the long line of those pilgrims journeying to the haven of my desire. The recent visit of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and Madame Chiang seemed to bring that dream very near to realisation. We had in our midst the very symbols of China and they came to us bringing goodwill for India and her people, and their ardent desire for closer bonds with our country. They brought China very near to us and their presence itself was an inspiration. Rocklike they had stood in the midst of peril and disaster and never flinched, and out of misfortune itself they had plucked the fine flower of youth and hope and strength. The Generalissimo was the symbol of China's freedom and unity and the determination which never wavers; the radiant lady who came with him and who was partner in life's journey, showed us how gracious womanhood can face even the storm of war when the cause of freedom beckons. Together with millions of their countrymen and countrywomen they had played the game of life and death and thrown themselves in that brave adventure which had transformed China and astonished the world

And so the dream came very near to me and took shape and I saw the future filled with hope because China and India were friends and comrades in the great adventure of man. The countries of Europe were small and stuffy, the history of Europe, in spite of its brilliant periods, was a mere episode in man's history. But India and China looked back to thousands of years and, drawing strength from their rich heritage, had survived the shocks and catastrophies that might otherwise have overwhelmed them. They will survive the peril and dangers of to-day also, and, I have no doubt, will forge new bonds which will keep them linked together in friendship and comradeship. May good fortune attend China in the present and in the future and the victory she has so richly deserved be hers in full measure.

Sir Mahomed Usman

CHINA has been at war with Japan for nearly five years. It has been a struggle which the great democracies of the world have watched with anxiety; for it has been a struggle in which an ancient civilisation, with all its great culture, serenity, philosophic approach to life, and its abiding desire to enrich the world by peaceful means, has been faced with the armed might of a nation that has absorbed the secrets of the Western countries but little of their enlightenment.

I have said that it has been a struggle that has been watched with anxiety. I might say with great anxiety; for the world owes much to China, the home of a wonderful civilization. My message goes to you as a representative of another great civilisation which has also given much to the world and is now threatened by the onward march of Nippon. Thanks to the protection of the British Empire, India has been free from the horrors of war. She has not known all the privations that war entails; its huge sacrifice of human life; its immense vandalism in the destruction of all that is good and best in life; and the wanton misery it leaves in its trail. You, however, have known these sorrows for the past five years. Your people have died by the millions; your towns and cities have been ruthlessly and without warning razed to the ground; your student population has been scattered; your universities bombed; and your intelligentsia hunted and often brutally killed; for Japan does not love the light of free learning or the placidity of your nation-

A G E N C Y 114, SIR VITHALDAS CHAMBERS, FORT, BOMBAY.

Sir S. RADHAKRISHNAN

Yet, despite the trials and persecutions of these years, China lives on and will always live on. She has a tradition which cannot die. She has seen many nations rise and fall and still herself lives on. She cannot be conquered, for her civilisation is too ancient and enveloping. It has been said, and I think truly, that all attempts at conquest of China have ended in the absorption of the invader into the Greater China. I am sure that Japan is realising this to-day—that she cannot conquer China and that in attempting to do it she is running the grave risk of losing her own personality and nationhood in the China which never dies and has swallowed the usurper at all periods in her history.

To-night the two greatest civilisations of the East and the world—China and India—stand welded together in their common determination to preserve their freedom from the march of Nippon. What has come to China and India through the ages—the deep spiritual background, the belief that the things of the spirit can overcome the wiles of the flesh and men's diabolical cunning, and the enduring patience to suffer, will bring them safely through this great time of testing.

The visit of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to India has knitted closer the two countries in this struggle for freedom from the invading forces of Japan. These forces have not overrun this country as they have done in China; but I feel that the time is not far distant when the united strength of China and India will hurl them back from all the places that China holds dear. Japan has flung her tentacles far and wide. At the moment she gloats over her triumph. It is a triumph which will be short-lived, and for which she will eventually pay dearly. My message to China is what I would give to my own country: Let us go forward determined to make this struggle a joint one, convinced that right will triumph over brute force, and that by putting forth our united resources we shall rid the world of the attempt for all time to try and dominate freedom-loving people by Nazi tyranny, whether it be from the East or from the West.

Sir S. Radhakrishnan

WE are living in one of the high moments of history when humanity is being moulded into new shapes. If we had not grown accustomed to the military tradition, which ranks wealth, power and enjoyment higher than life, beauty and happiness, we would long ago have condemned as insane and inhuman this frenzy of commercial rivalry and colonial expansion, this world of unnatural strife. I say 'unnatural' because it is natural for man to love, to be gentle, to be merciful; and unnatural for him to hate, to be hard, to be cruel. The efficiency for which we crave consists in the skill to do certain ingenious tricks, in the ability to make ourselves into machines. If the times seem mad and the world shudders with grief, it is because of the incomparable bleakness of the human spirit, of the essential ignorance of the truth that we are all brothers and sisters, that our pride and patriotism must embrace all mankind.

If the world is to return to the pursuits of peace, if the glorious possibility of kind-liness and beauty are to be given a chance, we must let the ideals for which China and India have stood, shape the future destinies of our race. No nation has the right to overpower or dominate another, or even prosper or survive by the use of violence and crime. We must all repudiate our past follies, have an access of repentance and love and work for a commonwealth of free nations. This weary and disillusioned world, when it is not in actual torture, when its sensitive and believing spirit is quickened, testifies to the light inherited by these great countries—faith in the supreme spirit, rareness of the human race. For centuries India and China have lived together as close and friendly neighbours, have conquered each other in affairs of mind and spirit; and to-day they are brought together again. For four and a half years peaceloving China has struggled nobly to preserve her independence against great odds.

In the process of achieving victory in this war for freedom and justice for which we all pray, China and India, we hope, will not lose the allegiance to the great ideals of peace and goodwill among men. For them the military victory will turn into a moral defeat, the material triumph into a spiritual failure. Our hearts go out to-day to the valiant and suffering millions of China and it may hearten them to know that we are with them and feel for them.

Sir Sikandar Hyat Khan

WE, the people of India, dedicate this day to China in admiration of her illustrious past, in admiration of her heroic determination and resistance in the present and with best wishes for her future. For long years, China has stood up resolutely and has refused to bend her knee to wanton aggression, however powerful and however ruthless. The trials and tribulations of a long and hazardous war have not shaken the unity of her people. They have rather helped to knit them more closely together irrespective of creed or belief, and thus China has shown to the world that the will of a united people determined to preserve its freedom can confound the diabolical plans of any tyrant. China's strength lies in her determination and her determination comes from the conviction that her cause is just and that whatever the obstacles in her path may be, right must ultimately prevail. I have recently had the honour of meeting her great leader Generalissimo Chiang Kaishek, who is to my mind one of the most outstanding personalities in the world to-day. Under his brilliant leadership China's struggle against Japan is no longer the struggle of one country against another but has now become a conflict of great significance to the whole of humanity. For it is a brave battle for the cause of freedom and for the dignity of men. India and China stand to-day shoulder to shoulder as comrades in a grim struggle against forces of evil and aggression, and the freedom-loving people of China can rest assure that their example will continue to be a source of inspiration to us till final victory is acheieved.

Dr. C. J. Pao

MAY I take this opportunity through the courtesy of All India Radio to convey to all friends of China and the people in India my greetings and appreciation for arranging a China Day. Our forefathers centuries ago conquered natural and physical difficulties and built a solid friendship between our two countries-not based upon any material benefits or vested interests, but on a thorough cultural understanding which is indispensable to the progress of civilisation. I am glad to know that this traditional friendship has been strengthened in these dark hours when our civilisation is hanging in the balance.

The splendid gallantry of your great sons in the anti-aggression front during the last few years deserves great admiration. Your determination to co-operate with China to eliminate the Pacific menace and to better the world is an encouragement to us. I consider the co-operation between China and India as the dawn of a new civilisation under which all men will live as a free people and for which we are struggling to-day.

On this occasion may I ask you to put the bitter experience of my country, especially the past four and a half years, as an object lesson. The key to the success of my Government and my people in resisting this Japanese aggression is determination, endeavour and unity. We are ready to make greater sacrifices which we regard is the price for peace with justice.

I wish you every success for your country and your people. May our final victory be soon when China, India and all of our allies

FRIENDS of India—We, the members of the Generalissimo's party, came this time to visit your country with His Excellency the Generalissimo and Madame Chiang Kaishek. Although we stayed in your country for a short period only, we were able to form a very high impression of your people. India and China are the two great Asiatic nations which have glorious history and the best of civilisations in the world. The population of our two nations is more than half of the population of the world. If we unite together and co-operate in our efforts, we

We have been conducting a war against the aggressors for more than four years and a half, and we will continue to fight to the last. We hope our friends of India will join us in this struggle for independence, freedom and happiness for the world. I am quite sure we will achieve them

Hints on Civil Defence—3

HOW TO ACT IN AN AIR-RAID

By Lt.-Col. A. J. REEVE

THIS talk is intended to advise you. It or if they must leave their home, they can explains what you should do if you are bombed out of your house, or if you are compelled to leave it because of unexploded bombs, nearby fires or other enemy

First, general advice.—After air-raid, as at all other times, persons whom providence helps most are those who have learnt to help themselves. Always obey the police and airraid wardens; they have made it their job to help you. Take shelter and leave your houses when they tell you. If you do not you will suffer most.

Keep calm.-Naturally you may get excited, perhaps distressed, but please, at all costs, avoid panic. Above all, do not listen to and do not spread wild rumours. You will be told in due time, all the truth and given all the news as to what has happened.

There are certain things which you can do now. You may have to leave your home at any time of the day and night; therefore, have ready, where you and every member of the family can find them, warm clothing and some food ready to slip into your pocket. See that every preparation is made in your house to deal with incendiary bombs, that is sand, preferably in sandbags, and tins or buckets of water.

COMMON FRIENDSHIP

T is hoped that all who are not invalids will enrol in one of the Civil Defence Services, that is, as wardens or members of street fire parties or first-aid parties. Make arrangemust leave your home, you can go to them, sleep.—Broadcast from Delhi.

come to you. This is the wisest and best step to take and, after all, it is only an act of common friendship. You should also ascertain the address of the nearest warden's post, first-aid post and fire station so that if you want help, you know where to obtain it.

Now for during the raid.—The first warning of the approach of enemy bombers will usually be the warbling notes of the siren. When it sounds, you should at once take cover. If there is no cover near at hand, lie down in a ditch or any fold in the ground and remain there until you hear the "raiders passed" signal. When you hear short blasts on the whistle, it means incendiary bombs are falling. If you know how to, help the fire parties to deal with them, otherwise stay under

AFTER THE RAID

O not go out into the street to see what is going on. That is just stupid; remember what happened in Rangoon. Also, do not stand near a window, flying glass is one of the worst causes of serious injuries. After the raid, always go where the police and wardens tell you. The seriously injured, of course, will be taken to hospital in an ambulance. If you have only a slight injury, then go at once to the nearest first-aid post for treatment. Doctors and nurses will be there waiting to treat you. If you have been bombed out of your home and have nowhere to go and have not been injured, go at once with your family to the nearest rest centre. The police and wardens will tell you where ments with relatives or friends, so that if you this is. There you can rest and get some

Learning a NEW LANGUAGE

A HUNDRED years ago if a man knew his mother tongue and Sanskrit he was regarded as a cultured Hindu. If he was a cultured Muslim he was expected to know his mother tongue which was Urdu, some Persian and Arabic. These languages covered everything for cultured Indians and although they knew that there were more languages besides these they had no necessity to learn them.

But it is very different to-day. You read in some book that a certain Carl Spitteler was a great writer and that he got the Nobel Prize. You at once remember that Tagore got it too; and, if you are interested in literature, you want to read him. You go to your booksellers, and, of course, the shop assistants tell you that they have never heard of Spitteler, and perhaps even maintain that he never existed. Finally, the big boss comes to the scene, and with the dignity of a pseudo-scholar tells you that Spitteler was a Swiss, wrote in German, and that his works have not so far been translated into English; but that he could procure you the German original in six weeks' time. Would you care to place an order?

You thank him profusely and reply in the negative. You do not know German.

A GOOD LINGUIST

THERE you are. A student of an Indian university usually knows his mother tongue, English and a so-called second or classical language, i.e., Sanskrit, Pali, Arabic, Persian, French, and, rarely, Latin or Greek. Thus he knows at the most three languages—let us not discuss how much he knows. We shall take it for granted that he can understand his mother tongue and English with ease, and books in his second language with the help of a dictionary.

But supposing he is not satisfied with three languages and wants to learn a few, more, he would be perfectly justified in his desire; for, believe me, the Indian is a good linguist. Time at my disposal is too limited for producing evidence for it, but ask any one who has been to Europe and he will tell you that whether in London or in Paris, Berlin, Rome or Geneva, the Indian has the reputation of an excellent linguist. Generally, the only person before whom he takes off his hat is a Russian. But, of course, Russians are exceptions. They learn Greek in six months, and Jerome K. Jerome says: "As regards English, they learn it as they hear two Englishmen speak it in the train. That is a slight exaggeration but, by the way, that is Jerome's greatness. You know it to be an exaggeration and yet you enjoy

To come back to the point, Indians are excellent linguists. So, supposing you want to learn a fourth language what do you do? If you have an analytic mind you look back and realise that you understand an English book with some difficulty, although you have been learning it for about 10 years, and that even in your mother tongue, which you have been learning ever since you were a child, there are a few words which you do not know.

So you come to the conclusion that it would take you another 10 years to learn a fourth language.

NOT DIFFICULT

AND I want to tell you this evening that there you are wrong. My experience is this: If you have been able to learn enough of three languages it could not be difficult for you to learn a few more in much less time.

In order to explain this conviction I shall have to go into detail. I know details are always painful. I would, therefore, request you to hear me patiently.

Let us say you know Gujerati, English and Sanskrit. Now you want to learn a fourth language. With what language must you begin?

My advice would be to start with a language which is related—let me emphasise related—with one of the languages you already know. Do not begin with Chinese, Russian or Arabic. Try Bengali. We all know Tagore was a great poet, why not read him in original? And I shall show you in a minute that the North Indian languages are all very closely related to one another. We have all heard the song:

Janaganamana adhináyaka jaya-he Bharat bhagya-vidhátá,

By Prof. SYEED M. ALI

Punjáh, Sindhu, Gujrát, Maráthá, Drávida, Utkala, Banga, Vindhya Himáchala, Yamuná, Gangá uchhala jaladhitaranga. You know all these words. But you will perhaps say that most of these words are proper names; Punjah, Sindhu, Gujrat, Maratha, etc. All right: Let us take another paragraph from the same song.

Patana abhyudaya bandhur panthá yuga yuga dhávita yátree, He chirasárathi tava ratha-chakre mukhrita patha dina-rátree.

So you confess that you know these words, or at least that you should have known them if you are a fairly good student of Sanskrit. How do we explain this?

It is pretty simple. All the North Indian languages—Assamese, Bengali, Oriya, Maithili, Hindi, Gujerati and Marathi—owe their origin to Sanskrit. The Aryans who came down to India thousands of years ago spoke a kind of Sanskrit and the modern North Indian languages are all derived from them. That is to say, our mother tongues, Gujerati, Marathi and Bengali, etc., have as their mother tongue Sanskrit.

At this stage you may protest and say, "But I am a Gujerati and I do not understand Marathi." In reply I shall say, "There are certain words in Marathi which do not occur in Gujerati, and you have never tried to learn them. But if you try to read a Marathi book for two months with a teacher and yet fail to understand it, please drop me a card and I shall come to you personally—at my cost—to convince you that there must have been something very wrong with your knowledge of your mother tongue and Sanskrit.

Before I proceed to European languages let me repeat that these remarks regarding the affinity of the North Indian languages do not apply to Urdu and Sindhi to the same extent. They derive their abstract words from Arabic and Persian. So that, if you know Urdu well you can learn Persian with ease, and from Persian you can jump to Arabic.

EUROPEAN LANGUAGES

IT is, however, possible that you are not interested in Oriental languages. You may be a scientist and want to learn one more European language besides English, let us say French or German.

In a sense French is more intimately connected with English than German is. So you would do well to begin your linguistic adventure in Europe with French. Besides, it is a very beautiful, clean and rich language.

Both French and English have their abstract words in common. Let me read a few French lines at random. I am afraid you will not understand much, for although the spelling of common words in English and French are very alike the pronunciations are poles apart:

Les hommes superficiels n'apprecient pas le romanesque dans la vie; aussi Tartarin leur paraît grotesque. Quand il part pour ses expeditions, au lieu de regarder antour de lui et de

TOPICAL FEATURE

From March 23, All India Radio has introduced a daily Topical Feature which is broadcast immediately after the News Bulletin in English at 6-0 p.m. This is radiated by the four transmitters of Delhi and relayed by all A I R Stations. The evening News Bulletin in Hindustani now starts at 6.15 p.m. and continues till 6.25 p.m. We regret that owing to late advice it has not been possible to carry out the change in the detailed programmes.

se modeler sur l'usage, ce qui est le propre de realist, il n'etudie que les livres et il les copie fidèlement.

I shall give you a word for word translation now.

Superscial men do not appreciate the romantic in life; therefore Tartarin appears grotesque to them: When he departs for his expedition, instead of looking round him and modelling himself according to custom (usage), which is proper among resalists, he studies only books and he copies them with fidelity.

Now I shall show you how abstract words are the same in both the languages and when they are not the corresponding, words do exist in English in slightly different form and consequently they are not stranger to you.

Hommes superficiels: 'Superficiel' is 'superficial.' Hommes means 'men' in French—Surely you know, 'homicide,' which means killing a man—apprecient means 'appreciate.' romanesque is 'romantic,' vie means 'life,'

which you have in the English verb 'revive'— to bring back life again, parait means 'appear,' grotesque is 'grotesque' in English, part is 'depart,' only 'de'—a prefix—is added in English, expedition is 'expedition,' au lieu de is 'in lieu of,' modeler is 'to model,' usage is 'usage,' propre is 'proper,' realist is 'realist,' etudie, is 'study,' livre is 'book' (from which you have the English word library), copie is 'copy,' fidelement is with 'fidelity.'

Why is it that such a large number of words is common to both the languages. Just as Gujerati, Marathi, Bengali, etc., have their words from a common stock—to wit, Sanskrit—French and English borrow their abstract words from Latin, and partly Greek. So also Spanish, Italian and Portuguese. If your English vocabulary is good you can jump into French, Italian, Spanish very easily. And, as you go on jumping from one to the other, the process becomes easier and easier.

COMMON Vs. ABSTRACT

I must, however, draw your attention to the fact that easy, everyday words in these languages are not common. But in very rich language abstract words outnumber by thousands the common words. Scientific books are always full of abstract and technical words; that is why it is easier to learn technical French more quickly than conversational French. Just as it is easier for a Gujerati to read a difficult Marathi book full of Sanskrit words than a colloquial Marathi drama.

If you are desirous of learning German, you will find it infinitely more difficult than French, for, although German and English have a common origin, the former builds its abstract words from its own verbs and rarely borrows from Latin as English does. Their abstract words are different but these every-day words are common. I shall give a sentence.

Mein Haus ist warm im Sommer Which means 'My house is warm in summer.'
—Aber kalt im Winter,—but cold in winter: kalt—'cold', Winter—'winter'. Ich kam am Freitag—'I came on Friday'...
und trank—'drank', Wein—'wine,' aus einem Glass.—'out of a glass'.

But as I have already told you everyday words are few in a language; it is the large stock of abstract words which counts and is difficult to learn unless it is common with a language you already know.

But if you learn German, you can jump into Dutch easily and the final jump towards North, i.e., Denmark, Sweden and Norway becomes less trying.

WITHOUT GRAMMAR

BUT let me tell you here before I close that by learning a language in this talk I have meant reading a language and understanding it. Speaking and writing a foreign language are a very different job. You have got to learn grammar for that, which means the painful uphill task of mugging up declension, conjunctions and what not. But few of us go to foreign countries, and it is good for all of us if we can read books and understand them.

To sum up, God has given us one tongue to speak and two eyes to read.—Broadcast from Bombay.

Dr. G. S. ARUNDALE, who broadcast a talk from A I R Madras on "New Horizons" in the University series "Ordeal by Fire."

NEW HORIZONS .- Dr. G. S. Arundale.

THE whole world is passing through a long tunnel of utter darkness. The old world is dying in the darkness of the tunnel. and it is reincarnating at the tunnel's end. It is dying to universal suspicion and distrust and separative pride. It is reincarnating to universal brotherhood. The ordeal of fire is bringing this about. In other words, the ordeal of suffering is bringing this about. Suffering is fiery in its purificatory power, in its strengthening, and in its magic release out of the dross of selfishness and the gold of brotherly understanding. The war is helping to do this, for everywhere there are signs that when the war is over every land shall become a brotherhood it has never been before, and shall participate in an international comradeship the world has never known before.....If these new horizons depict the universal brotherhood of faiths, of races, of nations, of individuals, with its essential characteristics of peace and freedom and prosperity for all without exception-to each his due needs, to each his due opportunities, then I say that these horizons have ever been the world's horizons. But the world has been blind to them, or has only seen them now and then, reverting again and again to blindness.—Broadcast from Madras.

LOOKING AROUND .- C. H. Barry.

I NEVER cease to be amazed by the patience and good humour of the crowds who travel inter and third class, nowadays often hanging precariously to doors and windows, every inch of space jammed with sweating or shivering passengers; and yet, be-yond a good deal of high-pitched comment, and an occasional argument, there is an amazing serenity and calm about it all, in spite of the noise. There is little of the intense hurrying and fierce determination of the crowds at London or New York termini in the morning and evening "rush hours";

Points from Talks

and even if the platforms at Lahore have recently reminded me of Victoria on a Bank Holiday in the density of their crowds, there is a sense of detachment, an "acceptance" which would be foreign to a western crowd. Mothers feed their children, and maintain the circle of family life on a little patch of platform; passengers, weary of waiting or of travelling, find a space in which to stretch their limbs, and to sleep, despite the noise and bustle; or they sit beside their luggage for hour upon hour, their journey not merely a process of going or coming, an interval between life here and life there, but the full continuance of life itself. And you must have shared my admiration for the heroic hygiene of those who take a complete public bath beneath a cold platform tap, and execute the most successful jugglery with their garments, so that they may combine cleanliness with decency.—Broadcast from Lahore.

MY LAB. DIARY .- Dr. K. N. Bahl.

THE main subject of my work for the last THE main subject of my 25 years has been "earthworms". Most of you, I daresay, have seen these long slimy creatures as they come out of the earth during the rains, and are found crawling about in your garden and on the roadside. Some of you will ask at once what good it is to study earthworms. I shall remind you that Charles Darwin, the greatest biologist of all time, published a book in 1881 on earthworms after some forty years of observa-tion. He found out that "earth-worms are great friends of the agriculturist; they are tillers of the soil and by throwing up infinite quantities of earth in the form of castings, form a fine manure for grain and grass". Darwin concluded by saying, "it may be doubted whether there are many other animals which have played so important a part in the history of the world as have these lowly organised creatures". Would you believe that since Darwin's time our knowledge of earthworms has grown ten-fold, if not more? There are as many as 1,800 species of earthworms known to science, and of these about 500 are found in India.—Broadcast from Lucknow.

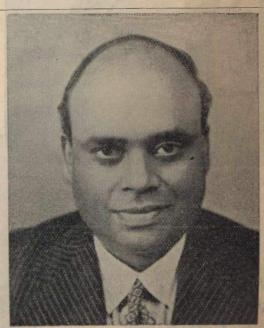

LOVE LETTERS.—Sidney Ralli.

THE value of Swift's letters to Stella lies not in the love interest, which is practically non-apparent, but in the informal, indiscreet and racy chronicle of the times, much on the lines of Pepys's Diary, which was written a few years earlier. Incidentally, Pepvs and Swift have another point in common. Pepys's Diary was written in code, in a sort of shorthand, while Swift endeavours to cloak some of his observations in a cypher, quite apart from his endearments, which are shrouded in a curious baby language, involving the transposition and substitution of let-Swift himself says, "My letters would be good Memoirs, if I durst venture to say a thousand things that pass; but I hear so much of letters opening at yr Post Office that I am fearful". Occasionally he does try to exercise elaborate caution. He explains at lengths that he will in future refer to the Lord Treasurer, with whom he is very intimate, as Eltee-E. L. T. E. E. But more often than not he forgets to, and he frequently refers to well-known people in unflattering terms. For example, he says, "I went and dined at Lady Lucy's, where you know I have not been this long time; they are plaguy Whigs, especially the sister Armstrong, the most insupportable of all women, pretending to wit, without any taste."-Broadcast from

THIS HAPPENED TO ME.—Dr. S. Ganguli.

W E embarked at an English port and were greeted by the Luftwaffe even at the harbour, several times during the twenty-four hours we stayed there. Of course, our boat returned the greeting lustily. Shells fell to the right of us, shells fell to the left of us but they neither volleyed nor thundered, for they just fell on water. Thus we sailed, carrying always the life-jacket and knowing well the boatstations against an emergency. For two days we sailed in peace. At 1 o'clock on the third day as some of us were finishing a game of quoit-tennis, my Maharastra friend, who hap-pened to look up, cried out, "A dive-bomber!" It had showed itself from behind the clouds, apparently from nowhere. We had to take cover, and we did. Then began real business. Guns roared from our ship, the sister ship and the escorting destroyers; and they from above-two, three of them came-began to unload their unholy burden all around us. Poor fellows, luck was against them. All were misses they made—some, of course, dangerously near-misses and we, too, missed one of them by a few yards! How unlucky! _Broadcast from Dacca.

Talk by J. D. Gulick
The 1st of April—well, any prank is permissible on this day of licence. The history of this day is long and interesting, and the 1st of April has figured in English Literature ever since the days of Chaucer, if not earlier. Here is J. D. Gulick to tell you something of this old custom—and to pull your leg with a prank or two, if you'll let him.

YEASIN QAWWAL Bin pani mori na Maya alhah allah Close down TRANSMISSION II JOHANNES BRAHMS (May 7th, 1833-April 3rd A strong musical personality born in a musically turbulent time. In his music he expresses a side of the soul of his people rather opposed to that which comes out in Wagner's compositions. Although it is heavy, it is free from the pompousness and aggressiveness that have made Wagner's music dear to the Nazis. His works include every form of music except Opera. Brahms felt particularly happy in composing for a chamber music ensemble and his piano quintet in F minor is a perfect example of his genius.

Edward Elgar

London Philharmonic Orchestra Conducted by the Composer
'A stream of music flowed through our house, and I was all the time bathing in it'—thus wrote Edward Elgar, describing the atmosphere in which he was brought up. He learned to play all the musical instruments he could lay his hands on in his father's music-shop and gained valuable experience in conducting as bandmaster of the staff of a lunatic asylum. The English Festival System gave him the much-needed opportunity for establishing himself as a composer and in spite of the fact that his works were at one time much in demand in Germany, he remains in the words of a critic an 'English composer'. London Philharmonic Orchestra

Ideas and Progress, 1
Harvey—and the Circulation of Blood Talk by Dr. Albert Batty Talk by Dr. Albert Batty Facts as they stand are incomplete.
They are part of a story that began really in ideas. Thus progress, even material progress must be viewed against the larger background of revolutionary ideas.

In this series some of the world's foremost scientific ideas to the practical application of which our civilisation owes so much, will be discussed. In this first talk, Dr. Batty will explain the significance of Harvey's discovery that blood circulates in the body.

Put them ON GUARD AGAINST DIRT

teach them to protect their health with LIFEBUOY

Listen, Mother. Just a minute, Dad. Will you take a bit of advice about those boys? You cannot stop them scrambling about in the dirt—it's natural for them to play that way. But you can do something about the danger in dirt.

For there is danger in all dirt. Doctors will tell you that dirt carries germs that can be the cause of many serious illnesses. So why not teach them the Lifebuoy habit?

Lifebuoy is an antiseptic soap. It contains a special health element. If those boys wash themselves with Lifebuoy after their games, before their meals, you need not fear the danger of germs in dirt. For Lifebuoy protects.

It's a grand soap is Lifebuoy and the family will love it. They'll love its rich lather and clean, healthy smell. And, between you and us, you'll like it too because it's not expensive and it lasts a long time.

LIFEBUOY THE "GOOD HEALTH" SOAP
