FROM BODH GAYA

ART consists in concealing art.
The good artist keeps the effort to himself and communicates the pleasure. Few who hear the fast-flowing commentaries on the radio realise how much of toil goes into them. Here is Melville de Mellow describing how the AIR team handled the commentaries from Bodh
Gaya last month;

"I reached Bodh Gaya on May 9. After an interview with the members of temple committee I decided to record in two parts. Part I, the major part, was to capture the atmosphere of Bodh Gaya and would run to 14 minutes, while Part II would be used to cover the actual ceremonies of Buddha Purnima day I had allotted six minutes for this. For Part II we began immediately, by literally inducing sound from the Temple Tree and the Tibetan, Chinese and Burmese temples. A self-imposed vigil under the Bodhi Tree from 10 p.m. to dawn the next day by myself, Madan Khanna and Mr. Pandey, seemed the only course open. We therefore did this, faithfully recording on tape a running commentary with all the attendant sounds of night and early dawn. The commentary itself traced the great Temptation and the Enlightenment and culminated in the Buddha's final inspiring words on attaining en-lightenment, taken from "The lightenment, taken from Light of Asia". We completed Part I by May 10, left for Patna on May 11, taped the programme the same day and despatched it to Delhi by air the next day. Part II, of six minutes' duration, was built on the ceremonies which took place on the morning of Buddha Purnima. We fed Delhi with Part II by seven p.m. on the day of broadcast, May 13. Press cuttings seem to indicate that the method was successful and produced good dividends.

"Suitable accommodation within easy range of the target area halves the difficulty and increases the chances of success of a commentary. A good liaison officer can make all the difference in the world to a radio team keen on absorbing a maximum amount of knowledge in a minimum amount of time. Every contact of importance was arranged, every facility was made possible, and from start to finish the Patna Station went all out to help us do a good job. The finest bit of concentrated effort I have ever witnessed in my broadcasting career took place on the evening of May 13, when the Patna Station put four programmes on the line to Delhi in the space of a few hoursin Burmese, Tibetan, English and Sinhalese—and then went on to broadcast its own pro-

WEEK'S HIGHLIGHTS

South Indian music-lovers have heard of and heard Chembai for more than forty years. At 61 he is as vigorous a vocalist as ever, and he will sing in the National Programme of Music this Saturday.

Chembai Vaidyanatha Bhagavathar was born in Chembai village, near Palghat, Kerala State. He comes from a family which has had a musical tradition going back six generations; among his forefathers may be counted the famous Chakra Tanam Subba Iyer. He had his education under his father, Ananta Bhagavathar, and his career as a musician began when he was only eleven years old.

Vaidyanatha Iyer, once the possessor of the most powerful singing voice in the South, is noted for individuality of style, adherence to tradition and striking originality in rendering swara prastara, raga alapana, tanam and pallavi. He has an extensive repertoire of classical compositions. He is not only a senior practitioner of Karnatak

Music, but has contributed greatly to the popularisation of classical art for a generation.

His recital will be broadcast by all AIR stations on July 6 at 2130 hours.

Accompanists are: M. S. Gopala Krishnan (violin), Ramnad V. Easwaran (mridangam), and Devakotai Sunderaraja Iyengar (kanjira).

Last week's National Programme musician, Ali Akbar Khan, will give a Sarod recital from Delhi A on Sunday at 2115 and again at 2215 hours.

WEDNESDAY FEATURE

The featured artiste of the Wednesday Night Concert of the Western Region is Sardarba Karadgekar. The programme will be broadcast by Bombay B, Ahmedabad-Baroda, Poona, Rajkot, Nagpur, Hyderabad and Dharwar at 2200 hours.

Mudikondan Venkatramier will sing ragam, tanam and pallavi on Madras A at 2015 hours on grammes for Buddha Purnima."

The bridge across the mighty Ganga in progress at Hathidah near Mokamah is one of the biggest bridges under construction in the world at present.

The Ganges divides Bihar into two parts. The northern part is served by the meter gauge system of North-Eastern Railway and the southern half by the broad gauge system of Eastern Railway. The passenger and goods traffic accross the Ganga is at present handled by barges across the river. The bridge, when completed, will replace the ferry barge working at Mokamah and will allow the traffic between North and South Bihar to move without hindrance throughout the year, irrespective of the intensity of the floods of the river.

The new link will help the development of North Bihar by ensuring free movement of essential commodities from South Bihar.

The foundation of this gigantic project was laid by the President, Dr. Rajendra Prasad, on April 28, 1956. More than half the construction has been completed. The river has been trained as desired and the foundation work of the 19 piers is complete. The steel work will start in the near future.

The documentary on the progress of the work will be broadcast by AIR Patna on Sunday at 1945 hours. The script will be written by Ram Briksha Benipuri and the feature will be produced by Prashant Pandey.

July 4. Tiruchi, Hyderabad, and Vijayawada will relay the Programme.

INDORE—BHOPAL

DHARMA CHAKRA

When King Asoka was in war with Kalinga, Maharani Mahadevi accompanied her husband. A Kalinga-born girl, Charudutta. was an attendant of the queen. One day, as Charudutta was dancing in the camp of Mahadevi, Asoka took this merriment as disloyalty and ordered her to dance on fire. But Mahadevi saved her life.

Charudutta was aggrieved and wanted to prove her loyalty. She went to the battlefield and sacrificed her life while saving Asoka. The victorious king was so moved that he decided to renounce war and bloodshed forever. A new era of Dharma Chakra started.

The play entitled Dharma Chakra by Dr. Ram Kumar Verma is based on this episode and can be heard from Indore-Bhopal on July 3 at 1930 hours.

VICTORIOUS GRANNY

The members of Sivaswamy's are a competitionminded lot. The sons decide to try their luck in elocution competitions, while the daughter hopes to come off with flying colours in a music contest.

Even young. Pichu, the little boy, is busy with his 'picture' for a drawing competition for children. It appears as though poor old granny is the only one devoid of any aspirations. When the excitement of all the contests is over, the entire household is surprised to discover that it is granny who has stolen a march over all the others and has won distinction for the family.

Listen to AIR Tiruchi's broadcast of a play entitled Parisu Yarukku, written by D. Parthasarathy, on Wednesday at 1930 hours, to find out how granny manages to score over the others.

MUSIC INSTRUMENTS

Tiruchi is introducing this week a series of programmes entitled Isaik-karuvigal, explaining the structure, the manufacture and mode of use of the various musical instruments.

The first of these broadcasts. to be heard on Wednesday at 2115 hours, will be on the Tanpura. The programme will be devised and presented by K C. Thiagarajan, Assistant Producer, Music.

KARNATAKA'S CONTRIBUTION TO

The spread and consolidation of Indian culture in the different regions within the borders of India is a fascinating study. It may be said that a co-ordinated study of this kind has yet to be seriously undertaken and the wealth treasured in Indian languages has yet to be added on to what has been gathered. from Sanskrit, Pali, Prakrit and other ancient Indian languages. It is only after that is done that a consolidated and full picture of India's varied culture be presented to the world.

It is vainglorious, however, to think that one of the regions alone has contributed something very significant or very important to Indian culture. All regions in India have contributed heavily to make up the Indian culture of today. Karnataka is but a small state with about 20 million people, of whom only 14.4 million can claim to be Kannadaspeaking. What can such a small fraction of the 360 millions of Indians claim to have contributed to the nation? And yet each somewhat distinct group of people in India, including Karnataka, has done something which can be said to be very creditable, worthy of being proud of, and also something for which the whole of India may feel grateful.

Role In History

A contribution to be really so should be such as is worthy of being recognized as a contribution to India by impartial hisINDIAN CULTURE

torians and should have all-India value and importance. It should be worthy of preservation and of help to the whole of India. It should be such as enhances the strength, prestige and glory of India.

bravery and the great architecture and sculpture that they encouraged, the Rayas of Vijayanagar successfully stopped the tide of Muslim invaders for not less than about 250 years (1336 to 1565). They built a glorious

By R. R. DIWAKAR

Shri Diwakar, Governor of Bihar and former Minister for Information and Broadcasting, is a distinguished scholar and author in Kannada and English. He is a past President of the Kannada Literary Conference.

I shall now examine the different fields of activity in which the contribution of Karnataka may be said to be somewhat significant. To take politics and administration first, it is Pulakeshi II of Vatapi (7th Century AD) who first attracts our attention, since he defeated Harshavardhana of Kananj on the banks of the Narmada and stemmed his southward march. We have a good description of Vatapi (modern Badami), the capital of Pulakeshi, and its people by Yuan Chwang. Then came the dynasties of the Chalukyas, Hoysalas, Rashtrakutas and the Rayas of Vijayanagar.

While the Chalukyas and others have immortalized themselves in Indian history by their empire. The great renaissance of Sanskrit learning and culture of the time is rightly attributed to them. The Rayas were also great builders and their works in civil engineering and even planning are well-known.

After that period, it is only during the reigns of Haidar and Tippu in Mysore that resistance to foreign British armies is discernible. The part that Karnataka played in the struggle for independence is well-known. Its devotion to Gandhian ideals, as well as the very important notax campaign it conducted during 1931-34, are real contributions to the history of India's nonviolent struggle against foreign rule

Religious Centre

India's achievements in every field have been remarkable, but she has been, par excellence, a land of spirituality, of religion and of philosophic thought. In this field, Karnataka, as one of the constituents of Bharat, may be said to have played an important part. We find Karnataka giving shelter to the Jain Shrutakevalin Bhadrabahu, who with sixty thousand monks left Magadha in the 2nd century AF on account of a famine lasting twelve years.

Shravana Belgcia (the pure lake of Shramanas) still marks the place where this big entourage encamped. It is this centre from which Jainism spread southward and westward. Later on Kannada literature for about three centuries (9th. 10th, and 11th) may be said to have been dominated by Jain poets.

Then we come to the age of the three great Acharyas who added to the mansions of Indian philosophic thought by writing Sanskrit commentaries which still hold sway on the Upani-

shads, the Brahma Sutras and the Geeta. Adi Shankaracharya, the founder of Adwaita school of Vedanta, though born in Kerala, founded the first and most important Peetha (pontifical seat) at Shringeri in Shimoga district, Mysore State.

Shri Ramanujacharya, the founder of Vishishtadwaita who was persecuted in the land of his birth, found shelter and flourished at the court of Vishnuvardhana, a well-known Hoysala king. Shri Madhwacharya, the founder of the Dwaita school, was born and bred in Udipi, now a famous place of pilgrimage in Karnatak for all lovers of Lord Shri Krishna.

It is also significant that the Veerashaiva cult, with Shakti-Vishishtadwaita as its philosophy, spread widely in Karnataka as a result of the efforts of Shri Basaveshwara in the twelfth century at the court of the Jain king Ballala, of Kalyan, in the district of Gulbarga, Karnataka is also a land of numerous Shaiva and Vaishnava saints who have left behind them a rich heritage of Kannada aphorisms and songs, thousands in number. Especially the mystic Vachana literature, written by about 300 saints, is something unique which may well repay the attention of the scholars of India.

Religious toleration has always been a great virtue in India. Asoka, in his twelfth rock-edict, emphasises it as necessary for the growth of spiritual strength (Saravriddhi) of all and that concord alone (samavaya) is good and meritorious. The very fact that Karnataka welcomed the founders of different schools of thought and that various creeds and sects have been living in comparative concord in this

VALMIKI RAMAYAN

The Ramayana forms the bed-rock of Indian culture and literature. Almost all the great poets in the different Indian languages have drawn inspiration from the Adikavya. A talk in Hindi on the Ramayana can be heard on July 6 at 2015 hours. The script writer is Kshemachandra Suman.

BANGALORE

A CITY'S STORY

The first of a series of three talks on This City of Bangalore will be broadcast from AIR Bangalore on Thursday at 2115 hours. This talk on "Bangalore, its origin and History" is by M. Narayana Iyengar, Curator of the Bangalore Museum.

An important town for over four centuries now, from the days of Kempe Gowda and later in the days of Tippu Sultan and of the British Commissioners, Bangalore is known for its bracing climate. The Dewans of the Mysore State clothed it with beauty and richness. The modern age has given it a technological and industrial importance, not to mention the fact that it is the cultural metropolis of the Kannada country.

MADHUSUDAN'S PLAY

Sharmistha was the daughter of the King of Daityas, but through misfortune she had to become an attendant of Devyani, daughter of Sukracharya and Queen of King Yayati. While living in the King's palace Sharmistha won the love of the King who married her. This story from Mahabharata has received masterly treatment in Shri Madusudan's Sharmishtha, first classical and regular drama in the Bengali language, staged in 1859.

land, proves that religious to leration was not merely observed, in words but was a rule of daily conduct.

Literary Wealth

Now a few words regarding language and literature. Kannada, no doubt, is the predominant language of the people of Karnataka. It is a language which is derived from the Dravidian stock but is Sanskritfed. It has a long and glorious record. It must have had a literature dating back to about the 1st Century AD. The earliest Kannada inscription available so far, however, is the one found at Halmidi, dated 450 AD.

The most remarkable earliest written book available in Kannada today is 'Kavirajmarga' (the royal road of poets), a look on poetics which gives the names of about thirty poets and quotes illustrations from them. This book is dated the 9th century and is attributed to Amoghavarsha, the Rashtrakuta king.

Gomateswara or Bahubali

Kannada is specially rich in classics in Champu style and some of them can well compare with the works of well-known Sanskrit poets. Apart from prose pieces in Champu Kavyas, the first sustained Kannada prose work, Chaundaraya Purana, is dated the 10th century AD. Kannada has a continuous history of literary production up to date and about 1,200 poets and writers have been listed up to the start of the modern period (1900 AD). It is recently being influenced by Western, chiefly English, patterns of literature.

The contribution of Karnataka writers to the production of some very important Sanskrit works is worth noting. Shri Madhwacharya of Udipi (13th Century) has a large number of Sanskrit works to his credit. They aim at establishing the truth of Dwaita

KARNATAKA'S CONTRIBUTION TO INDIAN CULTURE

Nedanta Anubhashya Sudha, Bharata Tatparya Nirnaya and several devotional songs are only some of them. His 'Rigbhashya,' a commentary on about four hundred verses of the Rigveda, may be said to be the oldest available Sanskrit commentary on some verses of Rigveda.

The two other Acharyas have not written anything on the Rigveda as such. In this book, Shri, Madhwacharya propounds the important theory that every Rik has a threefold meaning, literal, psychological, and spiritual. There are somewhat equally important learned commentaries in Sanskrit on his other books by Tikacharya.

When we come to the age of the Vijayanagar Empire we have the two great brothers Sayana and Madhava, alias Vidyaranya. It is universally admitted that but for Sayana's commentary on the Vedas, they would have remained a sealed book. Vidyaranya's Panchadashi is almost the last word on Adwaita Vedanta after Shankara. It is an original work and not a commentary. Well-known Sanskrit books on music were also written during the Vijayanagar period. In addition to such important works, what is significant is that not less than ten thousand inscriptions in chaste and literary Sanskrit are available throughout Karnataka. Many of the Kannada poets were also writers in Sanskrit and they were designated as Ubhaya Bhasha Visharad.

Architecture

Another important field in which the contribution of Karnataka is worthy of consideration is architecture and sculpture. We get the first glimpse of grand conception and equally artistic execution in the temples of Aihole and Pattadkal, as well as in the cave temples of Badami, all in Bijapur district. They go back to the early Chalukyan period, the seventh century AD. The artists have worked in pinkish but hard sandstone and the figures to this day retain a freshness rarely to be found elsewhere.

Then we come to the Rashtrakuta and Hoysala periods Verul stands supreme as an example of the Rashtrakuta period, while the temples of Belur and Halebid represent the Hoysala period. They are unrivalled in their massiveness, in the wealth variety and richness of fine sculpture, in their classic style and in the elegance, ease and grace of carved figures. Such buildings are scattered over many other parts of Karnataka, showing thereby that the art was very widespread. The artist has worked there in greenish granite which is said to harden as it is exposed more and more to the weather.

Mention must be made of the biggest monolithic statue in the world, that of Bahubali, standing 57 feet against the sky on a hillock of solid granite at Shravana Belgola. The date given is 965 AD. It may be said to represent a style all its own. Later, we have the Vijayanagar period between 1336-1565. This was a period of renaissance and as in other matters, there was enough of great architecture and sculpture. But what stand out most significantly are the Vijayavithala temple in grey granite and a few other structures.

Karnataka' was then subjected to Muslim rule. They too have left remarkable monuments such as the Bol Gumbaz, the biggest dome in the world and a most remarkable whispering gallery. There are half a dozen more buildings which are worthy of note.

Among other arts music has a special attraction for Karnataka. She has the proud privilege of having maintained the classical style of Indian music in purity. To this day the southern style of music goes by the name of Karnatak music.

These few words should suffice to show that like all other States in India, Karnataka too has contributed enough to Indian culture and is still capable of repeating the performance in the age of independence that has dawned already.
