

Spun cities

Nearly half the $4.3 billion worth of radio-station spinoffs required by the merger of Clear Channel Communications Inc. and AMFM Inc. have made their way to the FCC. According to documents made public last Tuesday, San Antonio, Texas-based Clear Channel is on the record with $2.04 billion worth of deals for 68 of the 112 stations it said last month that it was selling (B&C, March 13; station totals as Clear Channel counts them exclude stations it is acquiring in a swap). Here are the deals made public and corresponding buyers' interests. Note that the sellers are listed as Clear Channel or AMFM because the two companies have not yet merged:
